In the complete "Principles of Ethics" the reader possesses one of the most able and at the same time lucid interpretations of modern philosophical thought. In familiar language and entertaining style, with no tendency toward abstruseness, the author deals with his subject in nearly one hundred brief chapters, discussing such topics as "Good and Bad Conduct," "Ways of Judging Conduct," "Conciliation," "The Confusion of Ethical Thought," "Revenge," "Justice," "Generosity," "Veracity," "Chastity," "Culture," "Amusements," "Marriage," "Parenthood," "Animal Ethics," "Human Justice," "The Right of Property," "The Rights of Women," "The Rights of Children," "The Nature of the State," "The Duties of the State," "Pecuniary Aid to Relatives and Friends," "Relief of the Poor," "Political Beneficence," etc. A detailed list of chapter-titles of all the volumes of the Synthetic Philosophy Series will be sent to any address on request.

READY NEXT WEEK:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract :

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

Bound uniform with Poole's Index and the "A. L. A. Index," in one vol., cloth, $3.50.

NOTES IN SEASON.

G. W. DILLINGHAM will publish next month Albert Ross' new novel, "An Original Sinner," which is said to be a much deeper study than any of its predecessors.

MORRILL, HIGGINS & Co. have received positive word from Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox that the MS. of "Men, Women and Emotions," will be in their hands not later than May 15. The book will be ready June 15 and will be issued in paper and cloth editions.

HARPER & BROTHERS have begun the publication of Harper's Quarterly, a new periodical publication which will be devoted to the production of successful American novels in an inexpensive form. The first issue contains Mrs. S. P. Mc-

Lean Greene's popular story, "Vesty of the Basins." They have just added to their Franklin Square Library a new novel by David Christie Murray, entitled, "A Wasted Crime." The title of Brander Matthews' new book was given incorrectly in our last issue. It should read "The Story of a Story, and other stories."

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & COMPANY announce for publication a volume of short stories by Henry S. Brooks. Most of these stories have appeared first in the Overland Monthly and other Western periodicals and have been widely copied all over the United States; some of them even found their way into English publications. The best known among them are perhaps "A Catastrophe in Bohemia," "The Crazy Professor," "Dona Paula's Treasure," "The Don of Pauper Alley" and "La Tiboruna." Mr. Brooks lived for many years in the far western part of the United States, in Lower California and in Mexico. These stories depict various phases of life in these strange and out-of-the-way places.

D. APPLETON & Co. will shortly publish a new book by Sara Jeannette Duncan, author of "An American Girl in London." It is called "The Simple Adventures of a Mem-Sahib," and narrates with spontaneous humor the quaint and amusing experiences of a young lady who goes to India, where she is married and begins housekeeping under entirely fresh conditions. It will be illustrated by F. H. Townsend. They also announce "Appletons' Guide to Alaska and the Northwest Coast." It is by Miss E. R. Scidmore, the Alaskan traveller, and forms a complete handbook for all the coast country between Puget Sound and the Arctic Ocean. It will be fully illustrated and contain many maps, several of which have been made specially for the book by well-known explorers, among whom are Prof. Harry Fielding Reid and Prof. Israel C. Russell. The summer excursion routes in Alaska have been extended to the Aleutian Islands, and the "Guide" will fully describe the new scenic regions thus opened.

UNDERHILL & NICHOLS, Buffalo, will publish early in June "The Niagara Book," under which title they have prepared a handsome souvenir volume relating to Niagara. It is to contain sketches, stories and essays, descriptive, humorous, historical and scientific, by well-known American writers, and it is to be illustrated throughout by Harry Fenn. No efforts have been spared to make "The Niagara Book" the most complete souvenir of Niagara that has yet been published. Among its interesting features are "Niagara First and Last," a short sketch by W. D. Howells, describing the prominent features of the falls and written in the form of a personal reminiscence; a delightfully humorous article by Mark Twain, treating of "The First Authentic Mention of Niagara Falls, being extracts from Adams' diary," and a treatise on "The Geology of Niagara Falls," by Prof. N. S. Shaler, of Harvard University. "Famous Men at the Falls" will be described by Rev. Thomas R. Slicer; Hon. Peter A. Porter will contribute a "History of Niagara Falls;" Professor Forbes will describe the "Niagara Tunnel" and the proposed "Harnessing of Niagara;" and these contributions will be supplemented by a new and interesting guide-book to the falls, by Frederic Almy. The book will be a twelvemo, of about 300 pages, and will be published both in cloth and paper. It will be out on or about June 1.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Bourget, Paul. Un scrupule: roman. N. Y., Amblard & Meyer Brothers, 1893. c. 99 p. S. (Petite collection Lemerre.) pap., 40 c.

An episode in the life of a Parisian bachelor again shows the subtlety of Bourget's psychological speculations and his audacity in attacking the most delicate situations. The history of a young girl who was spared through the "scruple" of a man of the world, but nevertheless fell victim to her own vanity and love of ease and pleasure. Delicately gotten up in French style. Printed in this country.

Boyd, A. K. H., ["Country Parson," pseud.] Towards the sunset: teachings after thirty years. N. Y., Wilbur B. Ketcham, [1893.] 4-248 p. D. cl., $1.

The author of "Recreations of a country parson" embodies the belief and wisdom of his many years of study and preaching in thirteen chapters, named: Not quite sure; Begin at home; Get wisdom; An unlamented departure; Speech and silence; The spirits of just men made perfect; The questionings of old friends; The invitation to church; Is there anything?; Fruits meet for repentance; The communion of saints; Joyful is the house of prayer; Judged of necessity.

Cassell's new biographical dictionary; containing memoirs of the most eminent men and women of all ages and countries. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 3+741 p. O. hf. mor., $2.50.

A concise, inexpensive biographical dictionary like the present has long been wanted. The publishers have aimed to make it a thoroughly reliable book of reference; it gives particulars of the world's celebrities, whether living or dead, from the earliest times up to the present date. It also gives the pseudonyms of popular writers, with their real names.

Catherwood, Mrs. Mary Hartwell. Old Kaskaskia. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 8+200 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Illinois Territory early in the century, with its inhabitants of French Canadian descent, calls out the peculiar talent of the writer of "The lady of Fort St. John." An old French woman of upwards of a hundred years, who is a tyrannical, bed-ridden family autocrat, a half dozen young girls, two totally differing priests and several strong men are the characters. The flood that swept away old Kaskaskia is described in detail with its far-reaching effects upon the chief characters.

Coppée, François. The rivals. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 2+99 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

A pathetic story of theatrical and artistic life in Paris.

Cullen, Rev. P. J. A guide to the true faith. Balt., Md., J. Murphy & Co., 1893. 6+192 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Written principally "for the benefit of those who do not belong to the Catholic Church, with the hope that it may be instrumental in bringing some of them to the knowledge and practice of the true faith."

Deland, Mrs. Margaret. Mr. Tommy Dove, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 4+280 p. D. cl., $1.

Mr. Tommy Dove is one of the most distinct and in a way most charming of Mrs. Deland's characters. His gentleness and shyness, his kindness and genuine goodness, win the heart of the reader as well as Miss Temple's; and it is a satisfaction that the course of true love of these two mild souls, though it could not be otherwise than smooth even when obstructed, eventually led out into sunshine and peace. The other stories are: At whose door?; A fourth-class appointment; Elizabeth, and The face on the wall.

Dixon, Margaret. Chronicles of Christopher Columbus: in twelve cantos. New ed., rev. by the author. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Green, J. R. A short history of the English people. [New] illustrated ed.; ed. by Mrs. J. R. Green and Miss Kate Norgate. V. 2. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 33+469-931 p. Q. cl., $5.

See notice under v. 1, "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 3, 1892, [1088.]

Gunther, Albert G. L. G. An introduction to the study of fishes. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 720 p. 8°, cl., net, $6.

Hatton, Jos. Under the great seal. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 4+406 p. D. cl., $1.

The opening scene is the little fishing village of "Heart's Delight," not many miles from St. John's, Newfoundland, the time being almost one hundred years ago. A conflict between the settlers and a company of unprincipled men, who claim their land "under the great seal" of George the Third, precipitates the action of the story, turning a beautiful picture of love and peace into one of hatred and revenge. One of the most deeply injured of the settlers seizes with his companions a French war-ship and enters upon a career of piracy, sweeping the Spanish main for twenty years. His treasures he brings back to bury in Newfoundland. His son's life in England, his love for a good girl, the finding of his father after many years and the almost fabulous wealth that becomes his are full of romance.

Herder, J. Gottfried v. Leaves of antiquity: the poetry of Hebrew tradition; from the German, by Caroline M. Sawyer. 3d ed. Bost., Universalist Pub. House, 1893. c. 177 p. D. cl., net, 75 c.

These prose poems are drawn from the histories of ancient Oriental nations; they embrace in all nearly fifty traditions and are the earliest known traditions of the human race. They so closely resemble the Bible narratives as to be most interesting. Herder is little known in this country save by his work on the "Spirit of Hebrew poetry;" he was a man of wonderful literary attainments, familiar with almost every Oriental or European language. It was in the study of Oriental languages that these traditions came under his notice.

Hickle, W. J. Lexicon of the Greek Testament. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 16°, cl., net, 75 c.

Higginbottom, J. On the non-alcoholic treatment of disease: extracted from a paper read before the British Medical Association, August, 1862. N. Y., The National Temp. Soc. and Pub. House, 1893. 24 p. S. pap., 10 c.

Hocking, Jos. The story of Andrew Fairfax. N. Y., Ward, Lock, Bowden & Co., 1893. 480 p. 12°, cl., $1.

Horace, [Quintus Horatius Flaccus.] Odes, Bk. 1; ed. with notes for use in forms below the sixth by E. C. Wickham. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 109 p. 16°, (Clarendon Press ser.) cl., net, 50 c.

Howells, W. D. The unexpected guests: a farce. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 8+54 p. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

A slight misunderstanding over a dinner invitation causes some amusing complications, which Mr. Howells has worked up into a capital little play.

Hubbard, J. Niles. Sketches of border adventures of Major Moses Van Campen, by his grandson, J. Niles Hubbard; rev. by J. J. Minard. Rochester, N. Y., E. Darrow & Co., 1893. 337 p. map, il. 12°, pap., $1.

Huntington, Burton Ames, comp. The coming American civil war: Washington's words of warning, Lincoln's apprehension, and the prophecy of General Grant; the indications of coming conflict abundant and certain. Minneapolis, Minn., published by the author, Burton Ames Huntington, [for sale by The Western War Assoc., St. Paul, Minn., 1018 Pioneer Press Building,] 1893. c. 801 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The book is divided into two parts: the first is a general tirade against the Roman Catholic Church in America, which the author accuses as aiming to gain possession of the government for its own purposes; the second part is devoted exclusively to quotations and reprints from newspapers and books.

Jennings, Abraham G. The Mosaic record of the creation explained: Scripture truth verified. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1893.] c. 2-67 p. D. pap., 20 c.

Keary, A. The nations around Israel. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 331 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Kimball, Mrs. Henrietta D. Witchcraft illustrated: witchcraft to be understood; facts, theories and incidents; with a glance at old and New Salem and its historical resources. Bost., G: A. Kimball, [for sale by C: T. Dillingham, N. Y.,] 1892 [1893.] c. 185 p. por. il. sq. D. cl., $1.50.

Witchcraft in all times and places is treated as the subjects of the chapters which follow show: Story of Salem witchcraft; Witchcraft in Maine; Witchcraft in Lancashire; A New Hampshire witch-story; Witchcraft in Sweden; Witchcraft in Germany; The Rosicrucians; Eastern jugglers; Old Mother Shipton's prophecies; Old and new Salem. Strange stories, facts and poems are intermingled in the volume.

Kitto, J., D.D. Cyclopædia of Biblical literature. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 800 p. il. 8°, cl., $3.

Knox, T: Lowell, ed. Scenes from every land: over five hundred photographic views; with an introd. by L: Wallace; descriptions of every scene prepared especially for this work by Washington Gladden, D.D., E: Everett Hale, D.D., W: Heth Wittsitt, D.D., [and others.] Springfield, O., Mast, Crowell & Kirkpatrick, 1893. obl. 8°, subs., cl., $3.75; hf. mor., $5; hf. levant, $6.50.

Koonce, J. Alexander. Everybody's law-book; legal rights and legal remedies; with business forms and valuable information; a clear description of Am. law, its sources, principles and maxims, the national and state courts and their jurisdiction, also actions, proceedings and defences: a complete guide to the law affecting persons, property and business transactions for men of affairs, students, married women and others, [etc.] N. Y., B: W. Hitchcock, 385 Sixth Ave., 1893. c. 768 p. O. shp., $2.50.

Lemaitre, Jules. Prince Hermann, Regent, (Les rois en 1900;) from the French, by Belle M. Sherman. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 2+340 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 144.) pap., 50 c.

A European kingdom is disguised under the name of Alfaine. In 1900 Christian the 16th, King of Alfaine, on account of age and ill-health abdicates his throne in favor of his eldest son Hermann, a pronounced Liberal, through whom he seeks to effect the reforms for which his subjects clamor. Hermann's reign ends with a tragedy, for which it is not made clear whether love or politics is responsible. His brief career is made wretched through the opposition of his wife to his democratic ideas and the socialistic disturbances of his kingdom. The work is a prophetic one and seems to point to the final abolishment of monarchical government.

Matthews, Ja. Brander. The story of a story, and other stories. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 5+234 p. il. cl., $1.25.

The initial story tells in a graceful and sympathetic manner the history of a short story, its creation, acceptance, publication and the part it played in the lives of some of its readers. The others are: A cameo and a pastel; Two letters; The new member of the club; Etelka Talmeyr, a tale of three cities. All show artistic perception and possess a flavor of satiric humor.

Meline, Ja. F. Mary Queen of Scots, and her latest English historian: a narrative of the principal events in the life of Mary Stuart; with some remarks on Mr. Froude's "History of England;" a reprint of the 1st ed.; with an introd. by Mary F. Meline. Cin., O., Rob. Clarke & Co., 1893. c. 73. 14+345 p. D. cl., $1.50.

For some years this book has been out of print. It embraces a series of articles which appeared in the Catholic World in the years 1888-9.

The achievements of one of the most brilliant and picturesque figures in the Revolutionary army—the hero of Stony Point—are related in this volume. It is explained that the sobriquet of "Mad Anthony," by which he was generally known after his death, did not arise from any recklessness or untrustworthiness on his part. He was among the ablest of Washington's generals. Mr. Stillé prepared his biography as he did that of another illustrious Pennsylvanian—John Dickinson—in the interests of students of history, believing that no adequate account has ever been written of the part taken by Pennsylvania in the Revolutionary struggle, or of the influence of her statesmen and soldiers in moulding the national policy. He has made liberal use of the abundant and valuable papers deposited by Gen. Wayne's family in the Historical Society of Pennsylvania. These papers embrace copies of the letters written by Wayne during his campaigns, letters received by him from the most eminent personages of the Revolution and many documents illustrating his life. The letters are allowed to tell their own story, being connected, when it seems necessary, with an account of the events of the time.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

MAY 20, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE AFFAIRS OF THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

UNDER date of May 6 the committee of the creditors of the United States Book Company and its subsidiary companies have issued a circular (that, by the way, bears no signature of any kind) urging upon "all other creditors the serious danger to their interests of further delay in putting in operation some plan for the liquidation of the affairs of the companies that will avoid a forced sale of their assets and a disruption of their business."

The committee again presents the plan discussed editorially in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY April 1, with a few verbal changes and the following substantially new clauses:

Ninth.—It is agreed that the committee shall employ the services of some competent person familiar with the book trade to superintend, under the direction of the committee, the conduct of the business of the companies.

Tenth.—The committee shall prepare and print and send to each of the creditors, every half year, a statement of the business and affairs of the several companies and of the conduct thereof.

The circular, after referring to the plan as "under all the circumstances the best and fairest for all interests that can be devised," continues:

"Through the efforts of the committee, soon after the failure, the property of the several companies was taken out of the hands of the sheriff and turned over to the receiver, who has continued the business under the direction of the court and preserved the assets for the benefit of all. But for this action the property would long since have been sacrificed at sheriff's sale for the benefit of attaching creditors, whose claims aggregate some $300,000, and all hope for any payment to general creditors would be at an end. This course was consented to by the attaching creditors only under orders of the court, which expressly preserved and continued their rights and priorities under their attachments, and which further provided that they might ask the court at any time for the application by the receiver of the net proceeds and receipts of the business towards the satisfaction of their claims, or for such other order or direction as might seem proper.

"The present situation is such that, unless some agreement is entered into, creditors having attachments will, undoubtedly, soon seek to satisfy their claims out of the property and, in that event, it is needless to say that an enormous sacrifice of the assets through forced sales is sure to follow.

"Even should the attaching creditors remain inactive, disaster is threatened by the fact that the first mortgage bondholders are preparing to require the trustee of the mortgage to take steps that must take from the United States Book Company its publishing plant of stereotype and electrotypes plates and copyrights; thus depriving the receiver of the means of continuing the business and ending all possibility that the earning power of the company may be made use of to pay creditors.

"It seems to us only necessary to call attention to these facts for creditors to appreciate how imperatively their interests demand that a plan which will preserve the property intact and will, it is believed, result in the ultimate payment in full of all their demands, should receive prompt consideration and assent."

We are not aware that the committee has as yet recognized the fitness of presenting a list of the holders of bonds, of the preferred and non-preferred creditors, of the holders of guaranteed liabilities, who are vaguely referred to in the agreement as also preference creditors, and of the stockholders, so that those creditors who have not been concerned in the management of these properties should know on whom the responsibility rests and to whose hands the affairs of the reorganization committee are to be entrusted. The possibility under these circumstances of replacing the receiver, who is to an extent responsible to the unprotected creditors, by "some competent person familiar with the book trade" who may be accountable only to the powers by whose word he holds office is not reassuring, and we regret, therefore, that we have no reason to change the opinion we expressed on this matter in our issue of April 1.

WE beg to remind our readers that our issue for May 27 will be the Summer Number, which we hope again to make an excellent medium both for the home and summer resort bookseller for making the most of summer trade. We do not think it necessary to repeat the claim that much can be done with this publication in the way of following up and retaining trade—the success of those who have used it being sufficient proof. We ask publishers to be prompt in supplying their advertising, and booksellers in sending their imprint orders for this issue.

THE OLD-BOOK DEALERS OF PARIS.

OCTAVE UZANNE's long-promised "Physiologie des Quais de Paris" is full of information and bright epigrammatic sentences regarding the world-famed bouquinistes of Paris. The work opens with a dedication to the stall-keepers of the borders of the Seine, which shows how thoroughly M. Uzanne appreciates his subject and how well-fitted he is by nature, temperament, taste and experience to be its historian. Many noted French authors have written about the second-hand dealers who, for nearly three hundred years, have had possession of the quays of the Seine, but a thoroughly exhaustive and at the same time interesting treatise has not appeared before. M. Uzanne first describes the book-stalls of antiquity, and many of the characters who as dealers and customers were for years identified with the locality are made real in vivid word-portraits. The day of great bargains on the quays is over. The entire field from Pont Royal to Pont Sully is examined every day as if with a microscope by the book-brokers, the book-agents, the clerks of the shop-keepers and government detectives on the alert for publications indexed by the censors or condemned as improper or seditious. The stalls, which formerly were kept for generations by dealers who had always lived by books, are now often manned by individuals who come from every walk of life, to the great disgust of the older fraternity, who complain loudly that books are now sold like apples and cheese by ignorant hucksters. The vendor varies according to position on the quays. On the Quai Voltaire he is a dude in exterior and oppressively dignified. On the Quai Malaquais the influence of the Institute is felt; the vendor is more autocratic and dogmatic, discusses bibliographical questions and takes good care of his books. On the Quai Conti the man of letters triumphs and upholds the dignity of his profession. His cases are always well dusted, ordered and classified. He takes the same care a captain does of his company, because he is expecting the review of the dukes, princes, marquises, poets and dramatists that must pass his stand on their way to the Pont des Arts. His manners are good and he is well informed and a good conversationalist. On the Quai des Grands-Augustins there is more laissez aller and the boxes have less serious contents. The shepherd looks like his flock, careless and shabby, and his chief wares are paper novels and trashy papers for women and girls. Quai Saint-Michel is the quay of the students and the best market in Paris for volumes of poetry, which naturally are kept in great abundance. When the Pont Notre-Dame is reached other second-hand articles of every description outnumber the books, and here even now among old music, knick-knacks, gew-gaws, old bric-à-brac, family portraits, etc., a connoisseur may stumble upon a treasure.

During the last ten years the number of vendors, which had remained almost unchanged since 1860, has almost doubled. Permits to establish stands are given by the sheriff, and there are a set of laws that must be complied with to retain one's place. Each vendor pays the city of Paris 25 francs annually, and if he is considered a broker the sum is doubled. In 1864 there were sixty-eight of these dealers, owning 1020 boxes, containing 70,000 volumes. To-day M. Uzanne reports 156 dealers, 1636 boxes and 97,260 volumes. It is estimated that the daily receipts average about 10 francs to each dealer, which certainly must leave a very small margin of profit to these men who throughout the year are exposed to all the vicissitudes of wind and weather. M. Uzanne says they become as expert as pilots in their constant watch for changing weather, and scientific psychologists in their daily study of the physiognomy of possible buyers, which is the only bookseller's handbook they have ever made use of. As a rule the bouquiniste does not approve of women. They hold books in one hand, open them badly, are undecided about buying, or else bargain for a coveted volume "as if it were a chicken or a lobster." Female students especially use books of reference to hunt up information and never buy. The stalls are securely fastened to the pavements and stay on the parapets of the Seine day and night. We have exceeded our limits in pointing out the interest of this fascinating book and have barely touched upon its rich materials. [The work is attractively printed and illustrated, and is for sale in this country by Dyrsen & Pfeiffer, successors to F. W. Christern. It cannot fail shortly to get into English for the benefit of all lovers of old books this side the water.] A. G.

THE SEARS LIBRARY.

THE admirable collection of books illustrating in a bibliographical sense the history of the art of typography, formed by George Edward Sears, has passed at private sale for $25,000 into the possession of William Evarts Benjamin, of New York City.

Mr. Sears, son of the founder of the printing house of Sears & Cole, made the selection of this library his sole occupation for twenty years. The books were not placed in the house where he lived, but in an apartment in an ancient Park Avenue mansion without steam heat or gaslight, and reminding one, as a writer in the New York Times put it, "of the Christian chapels in the catacombs." Many grave meetings were held there in winter of studious bibliophiles who would have been changed into glaciers in an hour if they had not been warned to wear their heaviest fur cloaks.

Mr. Benjamin is classifying the books in chronological order for a public exhibition in his new gallery in the fall and compiling an analytical catalogue of them. The collection contains misals, books of hours, manuscripts with miniatures, books with wood-cuts of the fifteenth century, a complete Caxton, examples of famous printers of all ages, bindings of great artisans, and an incomparable collection of text-books. Mr. Sears was enabled to make out of his collection alone a bibliography of the Dance of Death and a bibliography of Alciati's emblems, privately printed in editions of 100 copies. He had formed, the Times says, "a perfect chain of all the links by which the work of the copyists and bookbinders of the fourteenth century is allied with the work of the publishers of the present time."

Now that he regards the work as finished, the collector's interest is expressed only in the wish that the collection shall not be dispersed. It is to be hoped that his wish may be realized, as a similar collection will not easily be formed again.

IMPORTS AND EXPORTS IN RELATION TO BOOKS, ETC.

THE summary statement of the imports and exports of the United States for the month ending March 31, 1893, and for the nine months ending the same, compared with the corresponding periods of 1892 (corrected to April 29, 1893), makes the following showing as regards books, etc.:

RARE EARLY ENGLISH BOOKS AT THE GROLIER.

THERE is now on view at the Grolier Club a collection of original and early editions of some of the poetical and prose works of English writers from Langland to Wither. The earliest printed book in the exhibition is "Lives of the Fathers," by William Caxton. It is a folio and the date is 1495. There are five editions of the translations of George Chapman—"Homer's Illads," first twelve books, folio, 1610; "Homer's Illads," first complete edition, folio, 1612; "Homer's Odyssees," folio, first edition; "Homer's Batrachomyomachia," folio, 1624; "The Georgicks of Hesiod," quarto, 1618. Geoffrey Chaucer is represented by six editions of his works from 1532 to 1602. Samuel Daniel, who was a contemporary of Shakespeare, is seen in sixteen editions from 1585 to 1623. "A Panegyrike Congratulatory," folio, first edition, has in it an autograph of the Countess of Pembroke, a sister of Sir Philip Sidney.

Among other noted names are Michael Drayton, his earliest work dating from 1594. Of Shakespeare there are four books—"Lucrece," quarto, valued at $2000; the first edition of the Countess of Pembroke's "The Rape of Lucrece," 1655, with a portrait of the poet; "Shakespeare's Sonnets," quarto, first edition, 1609; and "Poems Written by Wil Shakespeare, Gent. Octavo," first edition, 1640. Sir Philip Sidney is represented by "The Countesse of Pembroke's Arcadia," quarto, first edition, 1590; third edition, 1598; fifth edition and "Apologie for Poetry," quarto, 1595.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. HUMPHRY WARD is writing a new novel, a companion work to "David Grieve" and "Robert Elsmere."

ALICE MORSE EARLE, author of "The Sabbath in Puritan New England," is at work on a new book to be entitled "Customs and Manners in Old New England."

THE announcement is made that Madame la Comtesse de Mirabeau-Martel—otherwise "Gyp"—is about to publish a number of sketches bearing on the Panama scandal and its effects upon the "high life" of Paris. No promise could more whet curious anticipation. For no doubt many members of the most exalted "monde" are more or less involved in Panama. And surely there is no one who could more cleverly set them off than "Gyp."

PROFESSOR LANCIANI, the Roman archæologist, has resigned his place under the government in the Department of Antiquities to accept a promotion in the University of Rome, and has thus secured the requisite leisure to prepare and furnish his archæological map and description of ancient and mediæval Rome. The labor of completing this task is enormous, because the materials necessary to be studied are scattered all over Europe. Professor Lanciani hopes to consult those in Paris, Lille, London, Windsor, Brussels and some other places this summer, and to bring back a fine series of unedited documents. He is much encouraged at the interest and support given to his work, especially his forthcoming archæological map, in America, where he has many friends.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE World's Fair number of the Youth's Companion is a marvel, in its way, of matter of unsurpassed excellence and artistic beauty of execution. It presents the best survey, pictorially, of the Columbian Exhibition that has thus far been published.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., is to have a new illustrated weekly called Men and Women, of which the editor will be Perriton Maxwell, formerly art editor of the Cosmopolitan, Once a Week, etc., and the business manager Walter L. Loyd. Men and Women is to give a weekly résumé of the social, sporting and literary features of life in Brooklyn, and it is to be conducted on original lines.

THE PROGRESS PUBLISHING CO., Philadelphia, Pa., have issued the first two numbers of Woman's Progress, a new monthly magazine edited by Jane Campbell. The magazine is designed to be a record of woman's progress in literature, science, art, education and politics. Among the contributors are Mary Grew, Emma V. McLaughlin, Minerva Parker Nichols, Elizabeth Powell Bond (dean of Swarthmore College), Lucy Langdon Williams and the editor. The magazine is of a high order of literary merit.

AN interesting series of articles on "The Colonial Dames" is now running in Mr. Eugene L. Didier's illustrated Baltimore magazine, Success. The May number contained the distinguished pedigree of Miss Elizabeth Livingston. The June Success will have the illustrious pedigree of Mrs. John R. Tait, ninth in descent from the Princess Pocahontas, who was the first Colonial Dame. In the same number will be commenced "A Marsian Maiden," a story by Rosa Vertner Jeffrey, the gifted Kentucky poetess; some facts about "My Maryland," the famous war song of the South, will be read with interest.

BUSINESS NOTES.

FORT WORTH, TEX.—J. S. Carruthers, it is reported, will sell his book and stationery business.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Elzevir Company is a new publishing firm doing business at 57 Rose Street. John B. Alden is president and Frank Tracy is secretary.

NEW YORK CITY.—At a somewhat stormy meeting of a number of the creditors of Worthington Co., held at the rooms of the Stationers' Board of Trade on the 12th inst., a committee was appointed consisting of Frank Squier, Chas. E. Barrow, John Gay, J. W. Arnold, T. Alfred Vernon, Jas. S. Packard, who recommended that "the permanent receiver of said corporation be requested to fully inquire into the bona fides of the various transactions made known at said meeting."

ST. LOUIS, MO.—The John L. Boland Book and Stationery Company has increased its capital to $250,000.

SANDY CREEK, N. Y.—Pruyn & Co., booksellers, have sold out.

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—Miss S. I. Cooley has sold her old-established stationery and art store at Springfield, Mass., to Henry R. Johnson, who has been in charge of the stationery department of J. D. Gill's store. Mr. Johnson took charge May 1, and he brings to his store a long and varied experience in the stationery trade.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Edward G. Wyckoff has added a fine stock of books and stationery to his office-supply business.

TICONDEROGA, N. Y.—S. L. & W. F. Burleigh have opened a book-store here.

TOLEDO, OHIO.—John W. McCormick, bookseller, has sold out.

TORONTO, CANADA.—The Willard Tract Depository is in financial difficulties, and will go out of existence. The stock of the depository has been sold to Fleming H. Revell & Co., of Chicago, for 50 cents on the dollar. The stock is estimated at $50,000 and an inventory is now being taken.

TORONTO, CANADA.—Belden Brothers, of 126 Bay Street, have asked for an extension. At a meeting of their creditors last month there were represented claims to the amount of $62,600. It was resolved that an extension of twelve months be granted and that Mr. H. G. Beckwith be appointed receiver.

TUNKHANNOCK, PA.—Mrs. W. G. Polen, book seller, has sold out her business to A. B. Fargo.

WABASH, IND.—Wm. J. Albert, bookseller, has sold out.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE Toronto Books and Notions for May contains a "Bibliotheca Canadiana," being a list of the current books by Canadian authors and concerning Canada.

THE GROLIER CLUB, 29 East 32d Street, New York, has just issued a brief hand-list of an exhibition of old English books, designed to illustrate bibliographically the poetical and prose works of English writers from Langland to Wither. (37 p. 16°.)

THE TREGASKIS, 232 High Holborn, London, have prepared another issue of their Caxton Head Catalogue, which will be acceptable to bibliophiles not merely for the list of choice books and manuscripts, some 700 in number, gathered from the libraries of eminent collectors recently dispersed, but for the numerous fac-simile reproductions of early-printed engravings and colored illustrations of royal and historical bookbindings from the Royal Library, Windsor Castle. Among the works included in the catalogue are a first edition of the very desirable "Hypnerotomachia Poliphili," issued from the Aldine Press in the fifteenth century, the "Speculum de Passione Ihesu Christi," with engravings after Hans Scheufelein, printed at Nuremberg in 1507, and a Book of Hours, fifteenth century MS. on vellum, richly illuminated with miniatures, etc.

CATALOGUES OF NEW AND SECOND HAND BOOKS.—John W. Cadby, 397 River St., Troy, N. Y., A selection of books from the library of Mrs. Martha J. Lamb, and other sources. (No. 11, 847 titles.)—A. S. Clark, 34 Park Row, N. Y., Odds and ends of a literary junk-shop. (No. 36, 32 p. 16°.)—John Hitchman, 51 Cherry St., Birmingham, Eng., Miscellaneous. (No. 222, 293 titles.)—Luzac & Co., 46 Gt. (No. 236, 5383 titles); Spanish books and works relating to Spain. (No. 235, 1123 titles); Genealogy and Heraldry. (1032 titles.)—James Rimell & Son, 91 Oxford St., London, W., Eng., Miscellaneous, including architecture, engraving and etching, furniture, heraldry, pottery, etc. (No. 141, 1132 titles.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

HARPER & BROTHERS have in preparation a novel by Edward Fuller, of the Providence Journal, entitled "The Complaining Millions of Men."

MACMILLAN & CO. will issue in the fall a third volume of William Winter's "Shadows of the Stage," which will be devoted to Edwin Booth.

MATTHEW ARNOLD's "Letters" are to be brought out in the fall. Arnold's old friend, George Russell, the Under Secretary for India, is editing them.

WORD comes from Constantinople that the Turkish censors have caused to be seized copies of Harper's Magazine containing an article on European armies and the political situation.

THE new volume of B. F. Stevens' "Fac-similes of Manuscripts in European Archives Relating to America, 1773-83," the seventeenth of the series, will contain letters of Lafayette. The forty-three documents which make up the volume extend from February, 1779, to April, 1782, the correspondence being almost exclusively addressed to the Comte de Vergennes.

A. N. MARQUIS & Co., Chicago, have just ready a thorough and complete "Ready Reference Guide to Chicago and the World's Columbian Exposition." It comprises all the features of a descriptive handbook, simply and conveniently arranged; contains an excellent map of Chicago, with numerous illustrations, and gives detailed information as to what to see and how to see it.

MR. LOUIS MEYER, of the firm of Amblard & Meyer Bros., of New York, has just returned from Europe, after an absence of several months. He has made special arrangements with most of the leading French publishing houses by which his firm will be able to carry a full line of every important French publication. They will publish shortly new volumes by Bourget, Daudet and Coppée.

WALTER SCOTT, the English publisher who has done so much in these days for cheap literature, went to Newcastle more than forty years ago as a journeyman mason, and, beginning work at the Central Station, gradually rose to be one of the largest contractors in the north. He is engaged in a multitude of enterprises—soap factories, mines, iron works, and what not; but is certainly best known through the thousands of good and useful volumes issued monthly from the famous establishment at Felling-on-the-Tyne.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS Co. will publish as the second volume of their Breezy Library a charming story by Eden Phillpotts, entitled "Summer Clouds." The Messrs Tuck in connection with their illustrated juvenile and gift-book publications have inaugurated a unique prize competition. The value of the prizes aggregates $1500, and the competition is absolutely limited to amateurs. A considerable proportion, dealing with the children's books and toy-books, is reserved to children only, subdivided into ages ranging from ten to fifteen years.

THE CONTEMPORARY PUBLISHING Co., Philadelphia, have issued "The Arctic Problem and Narrative of the Peary Relief Expedition," by Professor Angelo Heilprin. Professor Heilprin, who is president of the Geographical Club, of Philadelphia, was the leader of the Peary Relief Expedition. He discusses in detail the "Arctic problem" of polar expeditions, describes the various routes to the pole and the physical peculiarities of the regions, and narrates fully the experiences of the rescuing party on their expedition in search of the Peary explorers.

AN interesting discovery has been made by Mr. John Muir, late editor of the Burns Chronicle. While collecting materials for the biographical introduction to be prefixed to his annotated edition of Carlyle's "Life of Burns," he discovered that the article of Montuda in the Edinburgh Encyclopædia, the review of Hansteen's work on chemistry in the Edinburgh Philosophical Journal, and the two translated articles—one from the French of Berzelius, and the other from the German of Prof. Mohs—contributed to the same journal, were all written by Carlyle. Mr. Muir intends to publish a full account of the matter.

AN order has been issued by the Post-Office Department to postmasters, reiterating the instruction that no mail matter, except letters, is to be returned to the senders when found to be undeliverable, except when bearing a specific request for such a return. The mere name and address of the sender (which secures the return of undeliverable letters) will not be sufficient to secure the return of packages of printed matter or merchandise. A printed or written request for return must appear on the wrappers of such packages, but special written requests for their return will receive attention if addressed to the post-office to which the packages were originally directed. This rule has always been in vogue, but has frequently been disregarded by the local authorities.

EUGENE FIELD, in the Chicago Record, May 11 pays this handsome compliment to Mr. Schulte: "It is pleasant to know arrangements are making whereby the publishing house of F. J. Schulte & Co. will be enabled to continue operations. This is good news for the authors in the West, for this house has been particularly friendly to those people. Mr. Schulte himself has always expressed and shown an interest and a faith in Western authorship, and his retirement from the field in which he has moved so actively and so earnestly would be, we think, a real disaster to the cause of letters hereabouts. Mr. Schulte is a man of high purposes; he is shrewd, kindly, enterprising and indefatigable. We wish that there were more like him in the midst of us, and it is pleasant, we repeat, to know that his career is to be resumed and continued where it has already wrought so much good."

BERNARD QUARITCH's antiquated hat is a favorite theme with London and other bookmen. A committee of the Grolier Club once made a marvellous collection of newspaper clippings about it, and a member of the Société des Bibliophiles Contemporains wrote a tragedy which was a parody of Æschylus. In this tragedy Power and Force and the god Hephaistos nail the hat on Mr. Quaritch's head, like the Titan on the summit of overhanging rocks. Divinities of the Strand and Piccadilly in the guise of Oceanidæ try to console the hat; but less fortunate than Prometheus, the hat knows it is forever nailed and not to be rescued by Herakles. However, "tout passe, tout casse, tout lasse," as Dumas said, for Mr. Quaritch has bought a new hat, and a journal of London announces that the epic hat is "enshrined in glass" in the bibliopole's drawing-room.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

“Summer Reading,”

To RETAIL DEALERS:

The SUMMER CATALOGUE, issued now for sixteen years, has been found so useful and profitable by enterprising dealers, that it has become a regular feature of the trade. The sixteenth issue, with an entirely new cover, in a special pamphlet adapted for imprint circulation all through the summer, will be published in connection with THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY next week.

The imprint editions will contain, in addition to a catalogue of guide-books and light literature for summer reading, an entirely new selection of reading-matter both of a practical and entertaining character, chiefly intended for the use and amusement of tourists, pleasure-seekers, and visitors of summer resorts.

Booksellers should remember that, while summer is usually a dull time, the sales of light literature, etc., can be pushed to make a successful business even in this season. The classes who travel are of course those who have money to spend, even in dull times, and the summer is the time when very many bookbuyers do the greater part of their reading. Booksellers at or near summer resorts should especially avail themselves of this publication, while city dealers should remember that it will be also useful to tempt stay-at-homes to make investments, or to follow up customers otherwise out of reach.

Orders for imprint editions at subscription rates should be sent in at once.

Terms for Editions with Imprint, Payable in Advance.

WHERE THREE EMPIRES MEET.

A Narrative of Recent Travel in Kashmir, Western Tibet, Baltistan, Ladak, Gilgit and the Adjoining Countries. By E. F. KNIGHT, author of "The Cruise of the Alert," etc. With a map and 54 illustrations (27 full-page). 8vo, 511 pages, cloth extra, $5.00.

"A most attractive volume, very well written and very copiously and effectively illustrated. . . . Mr. Knight is a keen and shrewd observer of men, manners and nature, and he writes with a very lively and graphic pen."—Times.

"Mr. Knight's book is vastly entertaining, and it is hardly less instructive. There is an amount of 'go' in it which is rare and welcome."—Daily Chronicle.

OUT OF DOORS IN TSARLAND.

A Record of the Seeings and Doings of a Wanderer in Russia. By FRANK J. WHISHAW. With frontispiece and vignette by Charles Whymper. Crown 8vo, 384 pages, $2.00.

"It is a positive relief to come across a book on Russia which is not full of the intrigues of the Nihilists, the iniquities of the spy system, and the characteristics of that real or imaginary reign of terror which is alleged to exist at Moscow and St. Petersburg. 'Out of Doors in Tsar Land' is altogether a delightful volume. . . . Mr. Whishaw describes himself as a wanderer in Russia, and those who dip into his entertaining pages will quickly discover that that means a plucky, light-hearted, roving Englishman, who rambled hither and thither through the Tsar's domains with rod and gun."—Speaker.

COTTON WEAVING

AND DESIGNING.

The Profession of Bookselling,

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. . . . It treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. . . . For its main purpose this is an excellent manual."—The Nation.

"Booksellers in this country [England] will find this work both useful and entertaining."—London Bookman.

JUST ISSUED:

The Doomswoman.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," "A Question of Time," etc. 16mo, cloth, ornamental, $1.00.

This last product from the pen of Miss Atherton is one continued narration of thrilling incident and vivid picturesqueness. The scene is laid in Mexico, and, as may well be imagined, is full of the passion and unconstraint of that southern clime. Some of the scenes, notably that in the last chapter, are intensely dramatic and forceful. "The Doomswoman" is by far the most powerful piece of fiction yet rendered by Miss Atherton, and will not lack appreciation by those previously unfamiliar with her style.

Venus Victrix.

A Study of a Woman. By HELEN MATHERS, author of "T'other Dear Charmer," "Hedri," etc. Shandon Series. 18mo, paper, 25 cents.

A dramatic story of the intense order, with an element of the unusual about it that makes it a tale of absorbing interest. "Venus Victrix" is the name given to a young, beautiful and helpless paralytic. The mystery of her death is well sustained, but all the misery it was designed to bring upon her rival is averted at the end, and thus the horror of her machinations passes away. Helen Mathers has seldom, if ever, done better work than this.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Reproach of Annesley," "In the Heart of the Storm," etc. Illustrated by A. G. Reinhart. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"A story strong in plot and character-drawing, rich in the accessions of an abundant imagination, and its central movement has a psychological potency that it would be difficult to match in the writings of any novelist since Hawthorne. 'The Last Sentence' may be, without reservation, accepted as one of the really significant novels of the year. It will bear more than a single reading and its merits are more likely to be appreciated at a third than a first perusal."—Boston Beacon.

Oriole's Daughter.

By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, author of "The First Violin," "A March in the Ranks," "Healey," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Like all Miss Fothergill's books, it is charming reading."—Glasgow Herald.

"In fine, 'Oriole's Daughter' is a book which will maintain the author's reputation for refined portraiture and sound workmanship."—Athenaeum.

Dearest.

By Mrs. FORRESTER, author of "I Have Lived and Loved," "My Hero," "Diana Carew," "Fair Women," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Written with the good taste and the good breeding which are characteristic of all Mrs. Forrester's works. It gives us two types which reveal at once the author's knowledge of the world and her self-restraint—for either the one or the other might easily have run into caricature in less skilful hands."—London World.

THE ALGERIAN SLAVE. By G. CAROLI.

This narrative of extraordinary adventures among the piratical Moors of Algiers twenty years before this cruel race had its power for evil wrested from it by the French conquest of 1830, is based upon the actual experiences of an English lad captured by the Dey's cruel sea robbers. The story is told with a simplicity as effective as it is touching.

THE FAMOUS ROMANCES OF VOLTAIRE. With 32 superb illustrations. "A standard work." "No library is complete without it."

THE MYSTERIES OF THE COURT OF NAPOLEON III. By G. A. THIERRY. "Startling and true." With special Parisian illustrations.

WOMEN MUST WEEP. By EDGAR FAWCETT. This strong story of New York life and New York people is undoubtedly the master effort of the famous writer of so many popular tales. The poignant fate of woman in our times has never been so strikingly portrayed. With a fine half-tone portrait of the author.

A GOLDEN PILGRIMAGE. By MARQUISE CLARA LANZA.

The gifted daughter of Dr. Hammond, late Surgeon-General U. S. A., has written here a strong tale of the bartering of a soul for gold, and of the dire disaster that follows the bargain. There is a great deal of power in this story, and the interest of the reader is kept unflagging. Illustrated with a half-tone portrait of the author.

DUCHESS ANNETTE. By ALEXANDRE DUMAS, fils. An entirely new edition from the pen of Max Maury, with eight exceptionally fine full-page illustrations drawn specially for this edition by A. Leroy.

CAMILLE. By ALEXANDRE DUMAS, fils. With 16 photogravures on enamelled paper.

MAUPRAT; or, The Bandit Noblemen. By GEORGE SAND. Illustrated with 10 half-tones from the original etchings by Le Blant.

DR. PHILLIPS. By FRANK DANBY.

This is a recent and very powerful novel. The scene is laid in London among the Jewish middle classes. Never has the undying antagonism and animosity existing between the Semitic and Aryan race been more vividly pictured, and, although the novelist is by birth a Christian, his descriptions are both true and fair.

GERFAUT. By CHARLES DE BERNARD. One of the greatest novels of the century. The only English translation ever published with ten exquisite etchings reproduced in half-tone.

DR. PERDUE. By STINSON JARVIS. With splendid illustrations. "This second prize novel is an enthralling tale of Yachting Adventures upon the Great Deep."

MADAME BOVARY. By GUSTAVE FLAUBERT. With a special preface by Max Maury. Ours is the first and only American edition with 12 full-page illustrations from original etchings.

A. D. 2000. By LIEUT. ALVARADO M. FULLER, U. S. A. Illustrated with 16 half-tone engravings on enamelled paper.

AN UNCONSCIOUS CRIME. By Dr. N. T. OLIVER, author of "King of Gold," etc. Illustrated with 16 full-page engravings from original pen drawings by Henry Mayer.

A BARGAIN IN SOULS. By ERNEST DE LANCEY PIERSON.

This charming writer of so many excellent stories has never shown himself more brilliant in wit and more fertile in ingenious adventures. The first page of the book is sure to bring a smile upon the reader's lips, and it will not vanish until the word finis is reached. The humorous "hit" of the year. Illustrated.

"A WEEK AT THE FAIR."

A comprehensive and thoroughly RELIABLE Guide, illustrating the exhibits and wonders of the WORLD'S COLUMBIAN EXPOSITION.

With Ground Plans of the Main Buildings, and High Art Half-tone Engravings.

The most complete and reliable guide published, containing, as it does, SPECIAL DESCRIPTIVE ARTICLES, written by the following Exposition Officials:

MRS. POTTER PALMER,
President Board of Lady Managers,

MR. D. H. BURNHAM,
Chief Supervising Architect and Director of Works,

HON. W. C. CURTIS,
of Bureau of American Republics, and other architects of State and Foreign Buildings. Also descriptions of the Statuary, Paintings, and other decorations, by the Sculptors and Artists who designed and executed them, with an exhaustive explanation and criticism by MRS. SCHUYLER VAN RENSSELAER, the world-famed art critic.

It is not a mere dull, dry catalogue of exhibits, but a Guide that will enable the reader to visit the Exposition, and see it either in complete detail or to select intelligently what is best worth seeing in every department.

Assuming that the visitor has but a week at his disposal, and in that time desires to do the greatest amount of sight-seeing possible, with the least trouble and expense, "A WEEK AT THE FAIR" has been compiled with the view of enabling him, without other assistance, to reach the Fair grounds from any part of the city, and accomplish that purpose readily.

"A work of the greatest beauty and substantial usefulness."—The Independent.

NOW READY.

THE

Memorial History of the City of New York.

From its First Settlement to the Year 1892.

The Most Elaborate Work Ever Prepared on an American City.

It is the latest—it is the fullest—it is the best. Invaluable in the home, to every teacher and professional man, to every student and reader.

In four royal octavo volumes from the De Vinne Press, containing 2600 pages, as perfect as the printer, the artist and the engraver could make them; accurate and exhaustive, and a credit and honor to the great Metropolis of the New World.

More than $100,000 have been expended upon it.

In illustrative merits the Memorial History far surpasses anything ever attempted in a similar publication. There are 22 steel-engravings and 403 beautiful vignette portraits, each accompanied by a fac-simile autograph of the subject; 25 very interesting and valuable maps; 111 reproductions of rare and ancient documents; a unique series of signatures of every Burgomaster and Mayor for more than 250 years; and several hundred views of historic scenes, houses, statues, birthplaces, residences, monuments, tombs and autographs of illustrious New Yorkers.

It was prepared on the co-operative plan, many of the most eminent scholars and writers of the time being contributors to its pages.

Among these writers may be mentioned the following well-known gentlemen:

Mr. Moncure D. Conway.
Hon. Charles P. Daly.
Gen. Emmons Clark.
Rev. B. F. Da Costa, D.D.
Rev. Morgan Dix, S.T.D.
Mr. Berthold Fernow.
Mr. Robert Ludlow Fowler.
Hon. James W. Gerard.
Mr. Chas. R. Hildeburn.
The Rev. Dean Hoffman, D.D.
Hon. John Jay.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE WORLD'S FAIR AT CHICAGO.

From "Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair." (Copyright, 1893, by Harper & Brothers.)

The Columbian Exposition and Columbian Literature.

A WARM breeze blowing from the south, laden with the fragrance of many flowers, gently caresses the cheek of the tired worker and warns him that

"From brightening fields of ether, fair disclosed, Child of the Sun, refulgent Summer comes."

The warning sounds a pleasant note in the memory; visions of happy idling and gay holiday times bring with them fresh inspiration, and life and hope are renewed in a future that holds within its limits other pictures than those of the monotonous struggle for mere existence.

The old question of "where shall we spend our summer holidays?" so often discussed and answered before, is again in order. The universal interest that attaches to it, pleasantly illustrates how very general the custom of a mid-summer rest has become.

Ours is only to point the way to new lines of travel, as in previous years, through the latest books, leaving the final destination to individual fancy, or the depths of individual purses. Our lists and advertising pages offer many new volumes, showing that the world's possibilities are yet far from being exhausted by the seeker after fresh scenes and fresh impressions.

The Mecca of thousands this summer no doubt will be Chicago, whether a long or a short vacation is at their disposal. The possibilities for instruction or amusement to be found in the World's Columbian Exposition are not to be computed. While to the idler it will be a perfect Paradise of beautiful impressions to photograph forever upon his "mind's eye," the student will discover such a wealth of new ideas and suggestions in every direction as has not been offered to him since the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition of 1876. The impetus given then to American art and to American industries must be more than doubled by the present Exposition. The marvellous "White City," reflected upon the changing waters of Lake Michigan, a vision of enchantment, sprung up apparently in a night at the waving of a magician's wand, marks an epoch in our history the full meaning of which is scarcely yet realized. American artists and architects, painters, sculptors and landscape gardeners have contributed their best gifts, untrammelled by conventionalities or traditions, the result being an ensemble, in spite of all shortcomings, the grandest the New World has ever seen. This modern Venice, with its canals and lagoons, its graceful boats and picturesque gondoliers, lying upon the "virgin shore" of the blue lake, seems a singularly happy and fitting memorial to the great Discoverer, a charming union of the Old World and the New.

Besides the treasures of science and art, and the wonders of the civilized and uncivilized world, literature has its place in these beautiful buildings, and will be made an especially prominent and attractive feature during the summer months. There is an exhibit of books and libraries in the Liberal Arts Department of the Exposition proper that is full of interest, notably the model library of 5000 volumes in full working order, with catalogue, etc., made up from the contributions of American and English publishers. The books were selected and collected under the auspices of the American Library Association and are exhibited in connection with the Bureau of Education. The library illustrates in all its details the progress of library science. The Educational Exhibit as a whole is of great value, that made by George A. Plimpton, of New York City, illustrating through his library the growth of education from the textbook standpoint, being unique in the many rare and valuable volumes that it includes. A feature of the German book trade exhibit, which is held in the quaint "Deutsche Haus," is a representative library for an educated family of ample means. The library is intended besides to present as complete and varied a view as possible of literary activity and development in Germany. The "Deutsche Haus" is only one of the many tempting and cosy nooks in the book trade exhibit. The Century Co., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., and numerous other publishers have prepared charming parlors in which to receive their friends. A number of the States exhibit libraries composed of books written by the women of the State. That of New York in the Woman's Building is a collection of unexpected interest and value. The credit of the collection is due to the energy and industry of the brilliant woman's club of New York City known as the Wednesday Afternoon Club. It comprises, besides the 2300 volumes representing almost every department of literature, 300 papers read before the literary clubs of the State of New York, and a series of collections of the best periodical writings from the pens of New York women.

Beginning with July will be a succession of congresses or conferences of literature and education, in the Memorial Art Building, which offer broad, comprehensive programmes. With the many questions to be discussed in general literature, many of a practical character are included—a Congress of Authors being planned, in which many prominent men of letters from abroad have promised to take part—to consider such questions as the rights of literary property, relations between authors and publishers, copyright laws, national and international, etc. As many scientific and learned societies have decided to hold their annual meetings in Chicago, this year, the Exposition altogether has a very large literary element present and prospective.

The leading thought of the Exposition however, is that of Columbus and the discovery of America, and it will imprint indelible impressions on the memory of the rising generations. To assist the object lessons of the Exposition, we offer a brief bibliography of recent Columbian literature—histories, biographies, novels, a few stories for the young people, some descriptive works, literary essays, poems and souvenirs—all ready to supplement the various lines of thought a holiday time at Chicago and the World's Fair may give rise to. While the list is not remarkably rich in quality or numbers, it contains some notable works. John Fiske's "Discovery of America" and Justin Winsor's "Christopher Columbus" furnish exceptionally rich material for students of Columbian history. "The Admiral's Last Voyages" and its sequel, "With the Admiral of the Ocean Sea," describe mostly in Columbus' own words his wonderful voyages to our then unknown shores. Charles Paul Mackie, in putting the narratives together, succeeded in making two volumes of as entertaining a character as anything we have received from De Foe or other imaginative writers. The biographies of Columbus are quite numerous, that of Prof. Charles Kendall Adams in the Makers of America Series, and Frederick Saunders' compilation, entitled "Story of the Discovery of the New World by Columbus," being unusually scholarly and accurate, and com-celved in the spirit of modern criticism. Elizabeth Eggleston Seelye's "Story of Columbus" and "The True Story of Columbus" by Elbridge S. Brookes appeal strongly to the popular taste, through an attractive, simple narrative and a wealth of pictures, portraits, maps, etc. W. L. Alden's "Christopher Columbus," written a few years back by the then funny-man of the New York Times, is a comic and irreverent manent value may be found in Kurtz's "Art Gallery Illustrated" and Bancroft's "A Book of the Fair," the latter is a serial, being published in numbers from week to week; both are meant to cover the chief art features of the Exposition. The smaller guides have different features and are all new compilations.

presentation of the events in this "American worthy's" life.

Other works quoted have special points of value either in price or interest, which we have not space now to indicate. N. Ponce de Leon's "Columbus Gallery," a monograph on the portraits of the discoverer, offers amusing comparison and thought to the general reader only familiar with the accepted picture of Columbus. "The Caravels of Columbus," from the same writer, gives the only detailed description that has appeared of this picturesque and historic fleet.

The guides and works relating to Chicago are quite bewildering. Julian Ralph's "Harper's Chicago and the World's Fair," from which we have taken the several pictures which adorn this article, is a charming series of descriptions of the most novel and inviting features of the Exposition. Two handsome art-works of p r-

Chicago, but would get "far from gay cities, and the ways of men"—men and women who recupe ate best in the solitudes of nature. For these are the latest volumes of travels and guide-books, describing new and untravelled routes, charming essays on the wonders and beauties of the forests and fields, the mountains and rivers, and books of out door sports full of information and suggestions, and a long list of the latest and best novels. Selections may be made from any of these classifications for the traveller seeking green fields or going to Chicago.

Nothing hastens the lagging hours like an interesting book. Carlyle has said, "If a book comes from the heart it will contrive to reach the hearts of others." The most recent evidences of the genius of our writers are laid before our readers for their amusement and entertainment.

IN THE SADDLE.

From "Oscar Peterson, Ranchman and Ranger." (Copyright, 1893, by D. Lothrop Co.)

How We Killed a Buffalo!

From J. M. Oxley's "Archie of Athabasca." (Lothrop.)

ARCHIE was quivering with intense excitement. His face was as pale as it could become, and not trusting himself to speak, he pointed with trembling fingers to the opposite bank of the river.

The moment Sawtloulai looked, he too shared his companion's emotion, for just entering the water, with the evident intention of crossing, was a noble bison utterly unconscious of the presence of any danger. Unless alarmed, he would undoubtedly land right at their feet. He was all alone, a young bull driven from the herd to seek his own fortune, and bearing the marks of recent conflict. Without opening their lips the boys looked into each other's eyes. Despite the opinion of shrewd old Akaitchko, then, there were bison still to be found on the Salt River Plains, and the five pounds might yet be won.

Breathlessly they awaited the bison's approach. In a leisurely fashion he stepped into the water, too shallow to take him off his feet, and ploughed through it until he reached the other side. Then he drew himself out, and stood for a moment sniffing the breeze somewhat suspiciously.

"Now," whispered Archie. The two guns made a single report, and the two bullets went straight to their mark in the broad breast of the bull, thus suddenly awakened to his peril. With a tremendous bellow the great creature lowered his head and charged furiously up the bank. The slope was slight, and in an instant he was at the top and looking round for his assailants. The boys had separated, one to the right and the other to the left, and were reloading their guns with feverish haste.

The bison caught sight of Sawtloulai first, and with another bellow bore swiftly down upon him. The clever Indian waited until he almost touched him, and then, stepping coolly to one side, resumed ramming down the powder. By the time the bison had checked his mad onset, and returned to the charge, Sawtloulai's gun was ready, and this time as he dodged he discharged it into his side a little below the shoulder. Mortally wounded, yet still able to do mischief, the infuriated animal, at this moment seeing Archie, who, having reloaded had hastened to his companion's aid, made a fierce dash at him, and the boy narrowly escaped his deadly horns. But a quick spring aside saved him, and the bison crashed into a clump of trees instead. In so doing he tripped and fell. Archie saw his opportunity, and seized it. Before the creature could regain his feet another bullet had found its way to his vitals. He strove gallantly to rise, but the weakness of death was upon him. He got as far as his knees, and remained there a few seconds, swaying from side to side, the blood pouring from his wounds, and crimson foam dripping from his mouth. Then, with a pitiful sound, half-groan, half-roar, he fell over, a shudder ran through his mighty frame, and he was dead.

"Hurrah! hurrah! hurrah!" shouted Archie, as, grasping Sawtloulai's hand, he danced three times round the huge carcass.

From Joaquin Miller's "Songs of Summer Lands"
(Morrill, Higgins & Co.)

Then holy bells came pealing out,
Then steamboats blew, then horses neighed;
Then smoke from hamlets round about
Crept out, as if no more afraid.

Then shrill cocks here, and shrill cocks there,
Stretched glossy necks and filled the air.
How many cocks it takes to make
A country morning well awake!

Then many boughs, with many birds—
Young boughs in green, old boughs in gray,
These birds had very much to say
In their soft, sweet, familiar words.

And all seemed sudden glad; the gloom
Forgot the church, forgot the tomb;
And yet like monks with cross and bead
The myrtles leaned to read and read.

And oh the fragrance of the sod!
And oh the perfume of the air!
The sweetness, sweetness everywhere,
That rose like incense up to God!

I like a cow's breath in sweet spring,
I like the breath of babes new-born;
A maid's breath is a pleasant thing—
But oh the breath of sudden morn!

Of sudden morn, when every pore
Of mother earth is pulsing fast
With life, and life seems spilling o'er
With love, with love too sweet to last!

Of sudden morn beneath the sun,
By God's great river wrapped in gray,
That for a space forgets to run,
And hides his face as if to pray.

Between a Music Publisher and a Composer.

From "Merely Mary Ann." (Raphael Tuck & Sons.)

"BUT you publish operas, oratorios, cantatas!"

"Ah, yes!—h'm—things that have been played at the big Festivals—composers of prestige—quite a different thing, sir, quite a different thing. There's no sale for these things—none at all, sir—public never heard of you. Now, if you were to write some songs—nice catchy tunes—high class, you know, with pretty words—"

Now Lancelot by this time was aware of the publisher's wily ways; he could almost have constructed an Ollendorffian dialogue, entitled "Between a Music Publisher and a Composer." So he opened his portfolio again and said: "I have brought some."

"Well, send—send them in," stammered the publisher, almost disconcerted. "They shall have our best consideration."

"Oh, but you might just as well look over them at once," said Lancelot firmly, uncoiling them. "It won't take you five minutes—just let me play one to you. The tunes are rather more original than the average, I can promise you; and yet I think they have a lilt that—"

"I really can't spare the time now. If you leave them, we will do our best."

"Listen to this bit!" said Lancelot desperately. And, dashing at a piano that stood handy, he played a couple of bars. "That's quite a new modulation."

"That's all very well," said the publisher; "but how do you suppose I'm going to sell a thing with an accompaniment like that? Look here, and here! Why it's all accidentals."

"That's the best part of the song," explained Lancelot; "a sort of undercurrent of emotion that brings out the the full pathos of the words. Note the elegant and novel harmonies." He played another bar or two, singing the words softly.

"Yes; but if you think you'll get young ladies to play that you've got a good deal to learn," said the publisher gruffly. "This is the sort of accompaniment that goes down," and seating himself at the piano for a moment (somewhat to Lancelot's astonishment, for he had gradually formed a theory that music publishers did not really know the staff from a five-barred gate), he rattled off the melody with his right hand, pounding away monotonously with his left at a few elementary chords.

Lancelot looked dismayed.

"That's the kind of thing you'll have to produce, young man," said the publisher, feeling that he had at last resumed his natural supremacy, "if you want to get your songs published. Elegant harmonies are all very well, but who's to play them?"

"And do you mean to say that a musician in this God-forsaken country must have no chords but tonics and dominants?" ejaculated Lancelot hotly.

"The less he has of any other the better," said the great man dryly. "I haven't said a word about the melody itself, which is quite out of the ordinary compass, and makes demands upon the singer's vocalization which are not likely to make a demand for the song. What you have to remember, my dear sir, if you wish to achieve success, is that music, if it is to sell, must appeal to the average amateur young person. The average amateur young person is the main prop of music in this country."

Lancelot snatched up his song and tied the strings of his portfolio very tightly, as if he were clenching his lips.

"If I stay here any longer I shall swear," he said. "Good afternoon."

Adam at the Niagara Falls.

Mark Twain in "The Niagara Book." (Underhill & Nichols.)

MONDAY.—This new creature with the long hair is a good deal in the way. It is always hanging around and following me about. I don't like this; I am not used to company. I wish it would stay with the other animals. . . . Cloudy to-day, wind in the east; think we shall have rain. . . . We? Where did I get that word? . . . I remember now—the new creature uses it.

TUESDAY.—Been examining the great waterfall. It is the finest thing on the estate, I think. The new creature calls it Niagara Falls—why. I am sure I do not know. Says it looks like Niagara Falls. That is not a reason, it is mere waywardness and imbecility. I get no chance to name anything myself. The new creature names everything that comes along before I can get in a protest. And always that same pretext is offered—it looks like the thing. There is the dodo, for instance. Says the moment one looks at it one sees at a glance that it "looks like a dodo." It will have to keep that name, no doubt. It wearies me to fret about it, but it does no good, anyway. Dodo! It looks no more like a dodo than I do.

WEDNESDAY.—Built me a shelter against the rain, but could not have it to myself in peace. The new creature intruded. When I tried to put it out it shed water out of the holes it looks with, and wiped it away with the back of its paws, and made a noise such as some of the other animals make when they are in distress. I wish it would not talk; it is always talking. That sounds like a cheap fling at the poor creature, a slur; but I do not mean it so. I have never heard the human voice before, and any new and strange sound intruding itself here upon the solemn hush of these dreaming solitudes offends my ear and seems a false note. And this new sound is so close to me; it is right at my shoulder, right at my ear, first on one side and then on the other, and I am used only to sounds that are more or less distant from me.

FRIDAY.—The naming goes recklessly on, in spite of anything I can do. I had a very good name for the estate, and it was musical and pretty—Garden-of-Eden. Privately, I continue to call it that, but not any longer publicly. The new creature says it is all woods and rocks and scenery, and therefore has no resemblance to a garden. Says it looks like a park, and does not look like anything but a park. Consequently, without consulting me it has been new-named—Niagara Falls Park. This is sufficiently high-handed, it seems to me.

My life is not as happy as it was.

"ONE WHITE MAY MORNING."

ONE white May morning odorous as June
 I wandered with my dearest, dreaming bliss
 Incomparable, if only I might kiss
 Her peaceful brow as lightly as the moon
 Doth kiss the lilies of a calm lagoon
 When early evening first begins to miss
 Its yellow sunshine; so I told her this,
 Timid amid the still, serene forenoon

Then she made answer, with a tender smile
 (A soft wild rosebud, such as might beguile
 The heart of Love himself, could he but see How winning-sweet her eyelids drooped, the while The rosebud blossomed swiftly, blushing),
 "Am I not better than a kiss? Take me!"

—Charles Winfred Douglas, in The Century.

The Home of John Ruskin.

From W. G. Collingwood's "The Life of John Ruskin."
 (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

SHALL I take you for a visit there—to Brantwood as it was in those old times?

It is a weary way to Coniston, whatever road you choose. The inconvenience of the railway uncultivated, uninhabited, except for one gray farm-house high on the fell, where gaps in the ragged larches show how bleak and storm-swept a spot it is.

To come out of the station after long travel, and to find yourself face to face with magnificent rocks, and white cottages among the fir-trees, is a surprise like walking for the first time down the High Street of Edinburgh to Holyrood. And as you are whirled down through the straggling village, and along the shore round the head of the lake, the panorama, though not Alpine in magnitude, is almost Alpine in character. The valley, too, is not yet built up; it is still the old-fashioned lake country, almost as it was in the days of the "Iliad;" still in touch with the past. You drive up and down a narrow, hilly lane, catching peeps of mountains and sunsets through thick, overhanging trees; you turn sharp up through a gate under dark firs and larches; and the carriage stops in what seems in the twilight a sort of court—a gravelled space, one side

BRANTWOOD, FROM CONISTON WATER.

From "The Life and Work of John Ruskin." (Copyright, 1893, by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

oute was perhaps one reason of Mr. Ruskin's preference for driving, on so many occasions. After changing and changing trains, and stopping at many a roadside station, at last you see, suddenly, over the wild undulating country, the Coniston Old Man—Maen, stone; a survival of Celtic Cumbria—and its crags, abrupt on the left, and the lake, long and narrow, on the right. Across the water, tiny in the distance, and quite alone among forests and moors, there is Brantwood; and beyond it everything seems formed by a rough stone wall crowned with laurels and almost precipitous scoppice, the Brant (or steep) wood above, and the rest is Brantwood, with a capital B.

You expect that Gothic porch you have read of in "Lectures on Architecture and Painting," and you are surprised to find a stucco Doric portico in the corner, painted and grained, and heaped around with lucky horseshoes, brightly blackleaded, and mysterious rows of large blocks of slate and basalt and trap—a complete museum of local geology, if only you knew it—very unlike an ideal entrance; still more unlike and ordinary one. While you wait, you can see through the glass door a roomy hall, lit with candles, and hung with large drawings by Burne-Jones and by the master of the house. His soft hat and thick gloves and chopper, lying on the marble table, show that he has come in from his afternoon's woodcutting.

Five Centuries of Ancestors.

From Charles de Barnard's "Gerfaunt." (Laird & Lee.)

THE beauty of the woodwork was almost entirely concealed by a very remarkable decoration which covered every side of the room and consisted of one of the most glorious collections of family portraits which a country château of the nineteenth century could offer.

The first of these portraits hung opposite the windows at the right of the entrance door and was that of a chevalier in full armor whose teeth gleamed from under his long mustache like those of an untamed cat. Beginning with this formidable figure which bore the date 1247, were forty others of about the same dimensions and placed in order according to their dates.

There were more gallant cavaliers cut after the same pattern as the first. Their stern, harsh faces, red beards and broad, square, military shoulders, told that by sword thrusts and broken lances they had founded the nobility of their race. An heroic preface to this family biography! A rough and warlike page of the middle ages! After these proud men of arms came several figures of a less ferocious aspect, but not so imposing. In these portraits of the fifteenth century beards had disappeared with the sword. In those wearing caps and velvet toques, silk robes and heavy gold chains supporting a badge of the same metal, one recognized lords in full and tranquil possession of the fiefs won by their fathers, land-owners who had degenerated a little and preferred mountain life in a manor to the chances of a more hazardous life. These pacific gentlemen were, for the most part, painted with the left hand gloved and resting upon the hip; the right one was bare, a sort of token of disarmament which one might take for a painter's epigram. It was the period of idle kings.

A half dozen solemn personages with gold braided hats and long red robes bordered with ermine, and wearing starched ruffles, occupied one corner of the parlor near the windows. . . . Was it not a symbolical image of the progress of civilization, of regular legislation struggling against barbaric customs? Thanks to these respectable counsellors and judges one might reverse the motto: Non solum toga, in favor of their race. But it did not seem as if these bearded ancestors looked with much gratitued upon this parliamentary flower added to their feudal crest.

In the space between the windows and upon the remaining woodwork were a crowd of military men, with, here and there, an abbé with cross and mitre, a commander of Malta, and a solemn-looking canon, sterile branches of this genealogical tree.

The last of all was a young man with an agreeable face who smiled superciliously from under a vast head of powdered hair; a rose was in the buttonhole of his green cloth pelisse with orange facings, a red sabertache hung against his boots a little lower down than the hilt of his sabre. The costume represented sprightly officer of the Royal Nassau hussars. The portrait was hung on the left of the entrance door and only separated by it from his great-grandfather of 1247, whom he might have assisted, had these venerable portraits taken some night a fancy to descend from their frames, in order to execute a dance such as Hoffmann dreamed of. These two persons were the alpha and omega of this genealogical tree, the two extreme links of the chain—one, the root buried in the sands of time, the other, the branch which had blossomed at the top. Fate had created a tragical resemblance between these two lives, separated by more than five centuries. The history of the French nobility was embodied in these two men, born in blood, who had died in blood.

Identifying Plants.

From Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "Art Out of Doors." (Scribner.)

MATERIALS for the study of botany are everywhere at hand; no travelling is needed, and no great exertion. The essential tools are few and cheap. A couple of volumes, like Gray's "Manual" and "Handbook," will give all needful introductory knowledge, full descriptions of all plants within a very wide area, and a glossary of terms to assist weak memories. With a knife, a long pin, and a common magnifying-glass the student has all he wants, unless he wants to end by being really a botanist. A few weeks of work with living things to illustrate the printed text—and of work which will seem quite like play—and any one will be able to identify all the plants in the neighborhood of his home, except grasses and mosses and such small fry.

I know that what I say is true, because it is not long since I made the experiment myself. I did not want to make it, for I was very busy in other ways; and, while I never was so foolish as to think that I should enjoy less by learning more, I did not even dimly imagine how much more I should enjoy by learning a very little. Compelled by a wisely insistent friend to open my botany, I was amazed to find that the identifying of plants was quite as amusing and a great deal easier than the reading of verbal puzzles; that when one was identified it became like a personal possession, doubly beautiful, doubly interesting; and that as soon as I had identified a few, the whole aspect of the summer world was changed for me. It was as though all my life I had gone with veiled eyes among people whose language I could not speak, and now the veil had been lifted and the language explained. I really saw the things that were before me—the little as well as the big things, and every part and peculiarity of the biggest ones; and I really began to appreciate them, to recognize their peculiar beauties, to feel the charm of their personalities. The green tangle by the roadside which, before, I had seen as a pretty tangle merely, now became a lovely interwining of a dozen different shrubs and vines; and it was only when each thus began to speak for itself to the eye that the composite beauty of the group was manifest.

The Great Masters of Sketching.

From Praipond's "The Art of Sketching." (Charles L. Webster & Co.)

I SPOKE of subjects sketched from life and effects well rendered. Study the drawings of Edouard Morin, who died a few years since. He left an immense number of compositions and sketches of every kind; nothing more delightful can be imagined, or fresher and crisper. Always charming, this great artist's works have inexhaustible "go." With black and white he produced an intensity of tone which the most vivid color could not surpass. And it was because he knew how to place his spot of deepest shadow exactly where it was of the greatest value in his drawing, without allowing the details, of which he was profusely lavish, to weaken the general effect. And then how full of fun, how admirably learned! Look through the pages of the Monde Illustré a few years back, and you will find endless marvelous designs signed by that masterly draughtsman; study any of the volumes he illustrated, and tell me whether any one could conceivably be more elegant and witty than Morin—one of the great masters of the art of illustration. In fact, he founded a school; a vast number of talented draughtsmen were his disciples—not copying him, however, but preserving all their individuality.

When you have feasted on Morin's sketches, turn to those of Vierge, another great artist, and, in the same sense, a colorist; his sketches have an indescribable briskness and vital truth; they are of rare elegance, and yet so simple in treatment—a line, a spot, and the trick is done. Yes, the trick is done; and you might almost believe you could do as much. Only try. And after looking at his sketches, study Vierge's drawings and illustrations: take my word for it, you will never think the time wasted that you spend upon them.

Marvellous sketches again, faultlessly drawn, absolutely true, are those of the painter, Edouard Detaille. I am speaking of worked-up detailed sketches; there you have them, and so full of life!

Types of character! Look at Renouard's work. Without having seen the people whose faces he has recorded in a few touches, you feel the likeness. Here are studies of character of the purest stamp. For drawings of animals, look at those by Lançon.

I mention these artists, for their names come naturally to the pen: they are past masters of their art; but there are many more whose sketches are marvels of skill. These are they from whom you must seek inspiration—not to rival them, for many are called and few chosen—but to learn from them, while preserving your own individuality, what must be recorded and what omitted in a good sketch—a matter which looks very simple when we see the result, but is very difficult when we try to do it.

From "Stories of a Western Town." (Copyright, 1893, by Charles Scribner's Son)

A Home in the Country.

From Octave Thanet's "Stories of a Western Town." (Scribner.)

THIRTY odd years ago Horatio Armorer had left the town to seek his fortune in Chicago. It was his day-dream to wrestle a hundred thousand dollars out of the world's tight fists, and return to live in pomp on Brady Street hill! He should drive a buggy with two horses, and his wife should keep two girls. Long ago, the hundred thousand limit had been reached and passed, next the million; and still he did not return. His father, the Presbyterian minister, left his parish, or, to be exact, was gently propelled out of his parish by the disaffected; the family had a new home; and the son, struggling to help them out of his scanty resources, went to the new parish and not to the old. He grew rich, he established his brothers and sisters in prosperity, he erected costly monuments and a memorial church to his parents, he married, and lavished his money on three daughters, but the home of his youth neither saw him nor his money until Margaret Ellis bought a house on Brady Street, far up-town, where she could have all the grass that she wanted. Mrs. Ellis was a widow and rich.

She was the best-natured woman in the world, and never guessed how hard her neighbors found it to forgive her for always calling their town of thirty thousand souls "the country." She said that she had pined for years to live in the country, and have horses and a Jersey cow and chickens, and "a neat pig." All of which modest cravings she gratified on her little estate; and the gardener was often seen with a scowl and the garden hose, keeping the pig neat.

KEEPING THE PIG NEAT.

An Enthusiastic Hat Collector.

From Jules Verne's "Mistress Branican." (Cassell.)

Now what hat was this? And why did Jos Merritt spend his life in searching for a hat?

This eccentric Liverpoolian was one of those inoffensive maniacs who do not belong exclusively to the United Kingdom. They are to be found on the banks of the Loire, the Elbe, the Danube, or the Escaut, as well as in the countries watered by the Thames, the Clyde and the Tweed. Jos Merritt was very rich and very well known in Lancashire and the surrounding counties as an enthusiastic "collector." It was not pictures, books, objects of art or even knick-knacks that he collected with great trouble and at much expense. No! It was hats—a museum of historical headgears and coiffures of any sort worn by man, woman or child.

On his own statement, he possessed some very precious historical curiosities: the helmet worn by Patrocles when he was slain by Hector at the siege of Troy; the cap used by Themistocles at the battle of Salamis; the insignia of Galen and Hippocrates; Cæsar's galea, which a blast of wind had carried off just as he crossed the Rubicon; Lucretia Borgia's headdress for each of her weddings, with Sforza, Alphonso d'Este and Alphonso d'Aragon respectively; Tamerlin's favorite turban in his march through Sindh; that of Genghis Khan when he destroyed Bokhara and Samarcand; Elizabeth's coiffure at her coronation; that of Mary Stuart when she escaped from the castle of Lochleven; that of Catherine II. when she was crowned at Moscow; the cap worn by Peter the Great when he worked in the shipbuilding yards at Saardam; Marlborough's soft hat, used by him at the battle of Ramilies; the headgear of King Olaus of Denmark, who was killed at Sticklestad; Gessler's hat which William Tell would not salute; the peaked hat that Napoleon I. wore at Wagram; and a hundred others no less curious.

His greatest regret was that he did not possess the particular covering which Noah happened to have on his head when the ark stood still on the top of Mt. Ararat, or that which encircled Abraham's noble brow just as he was on the point of sacrificing Isaac.

However, he was not without hope of finding them some day. As to the headwear adopted by Adam and Eve when they were driven forth from the earthly paradise, he had given up all thought of discovering them, trustworthy historians having laid it down as a fact that the first man and the first woman were in the habit of going bareheaded.

He was a thorough believer; he entertained no doubt regarding the authenticity of his finds; and no one will ever know the labor he went through, travelling the length and breadth of a country, searching towns and villages, ransacking stores and bric-à-brac bazaars, squandering money and time, and finding in the end some worthless rag which was sold to him for its weight in gold. He had begun to search the universe at large for some mysterious, undiscoverable object; and now that he had exhausted the available resources of Europe, Africa, Asia, America and Oceanica, either by himself or his correspondents, agents or travellers, he was preparing to penetrate into the most inaccessible regions of the Australian continent.

And there was a reason for his so doing—a reason which others might have deemed insufficient perhaps, but which he looked upon as of the greatest moment. Having been informed that the Australian natives were fond of adorning themselves with the hats of civilized nations—and the state of those hats may be imagined!—and knowing, on the other hand, that whole cargoes of those rags were regularly sent to the various ports along the coast, he had come to the conclusion that he might perchance "make a good haul" in those parts.

And, as luck would have it, Merritt was just then haunted by an idea, an idea likely to deprive him entirely of the little sense he still had. He should needs find a hat, one particular hat, which, so he said, was to be the gem of his collection.

What was this phoenix of a hat? What manufacturer, ancient or modern, had brought it into existence? On what head, royal, noble or plebeian, had it been displayed, and on what occasion? These were secrets that Jos Merritt would have entrusted to no man in the world.

A Home of Kings.

From E. H. Hoppin's "Story of a Meeting in Touraine." (Dodd, Mead & Co.)

INDEED, this French spirit is the distinguishing characteristic of all Touraine, whether pervaded by the spirit of the ancient or of the modern. Other parts of France wear a local character, often very strongly defined; but Touraine is essentially national. This is as it should be in the old home of its kings, and where the language is at its very purest and best. Here one comes into contact with and learns to recognize the varying phases of the usually genial Gallic temperament; and while basking in the sunshine of the cordiality and perfect politeness of its children, one is inclined to dwell leniently upon their faults; and, like most gifted people, they have their full share. In cosmopolitan Paris this intensely national type is more difficult to find. Until the era of Versailles and kindred palaces began, the old court often sojourned in Touraine. Here royalty came to escape from the cares of government; here the court revelled and hunted and plotted in the châteaux and domains of the Loire and the Cher and the Indre. For a long time it was more home to the kings than the capital itself, usually the seat of actual government. Much history has been enacted within these borders, and there are few pages relating to comparatively modern times that are more thrilling than those that tell of the conjuration and subsequent massacre of the Huguenots at Amboise, or of the assassination of Guise the Balafré at Blois. Dark pages these, but they are interspersed with brighter ones that chronicle the nascent art in France. Though the older monarchs are constantly recalled, it is François I., that master-builder of the French Renaissance, who has left his stamp everywhere in this smiling valley of the Loire, and beauty has thriven as on a natural soil. The powerful yet evil spirit of Catherine de Médicis pervades the very atmosphere, and we meet her three weak sons at every turn; while who can resist the recollections of the gallant Henri IV. and of "la Reine Margot," who, in spite of her sins, was still the pearl of the Valois?

Beauty's Veil Doth Cover Every Blot.

From Maurice Thompson's "King of Honey Island," (Robert Benner's Sons.)

It was thus that Alexander Max Burns once more got a glimpse of the man who had stolen his child. That man's voice had startled him from his morning's sleep under Lapin's roof, and the hurried look through the window had photographed on his brain a picture of terrible significance to him. For the merest point of time his eyes had rested upon Kirk MacCollough.

What is it that makes our consciousness of an enemy's personal beauty something appealing and, in a way, distressing? An old duellist has been heard to say that he would rather less half-smile still lingered and the old stamp of utter unrestraint was as plain as ever. No, not the boyish Kirk MacCollough, but the man, full grown to his prime, masterful, commanding, a leader of men, and yet there was no mistaking his identity.

Max Burns was old, and for fifty years had been a preacher whose sermons had overflowed with sentimental tenderness; but he had a side to his nature which was as hard as Scotch granite. It was with this hard side out that he was pursuing Kirk MacCollough; and yet, even through this, the spell of the man's strong and beautiful face found its way to his heart.

The effect of it was but temporary, so far as stand before an ordinary looking dead shot than before a handsome bungler. The glamour of a fine magnetic presence is strangely confusing; and the effect seems more powerful when the face is an evil one, especially when the evil is not on the outside and shows only elusively and by subtle indirection from within. Max Burns felt the fascination that flashed from the robber chief's face, and for a time it almost unnerved him; the beauty it wore like some shining mask, did not suggest at all times the dark spirit of the desperate and lawless man. Long, curling yellow hair and a fine full beard of the same color; a straight nose; a good forehead; long, narrow, clear-gray eyes and a mouth indescribably haughty and stern in its expression were supplemented by a frame of unusual stature and symmetry. This was Pierre Rameau, formerly Kirk MacCollough, now the King of Honey Island, as old Max Burns saw him in the gray morning light.

Certainly it was not the Kirk MacCollough of twelve years ago—not the slender, fair-faced youth who had stolen the girl—though the reck-checking his determination was concerned; but it never quite left him during the rest of the day as he slowly but steadily followed the trail.

Literally, the preacher had no scrip for his journey, no staff, no means of living; he depended, as the old-time minister of the backwoods was wont to do, upon the hand of Providence. Here and there a trapper's or a hunter's hut, here and yonder a settler's cabin offered him rest, food, shelter. He did not tell his story; but he prayed at the fireside of all, and he managed to leave behind him, wherever he went, a memorable something—sweet, strange and altogether welcome to the simple pioneer hearts. Sometimes he fell among desperate men, robbers themselves, or aiders and abettors of them, and even with these he was at home; for he bore with him the charm of childlike faith, combined with the touching appeal of unprotected old age. What helped him most of all, perhaps, was his singing, for age had scarcely touched the deep, rich music of his voice, and his memory was stored with hymns and tunes that enthralled the hearts of his entertainers.

The People Who Succeed.

From "How She Earned It; or, $25,000 in Eleven Years."
(Anna C. Reifsnider Book Co.)

No person is truly educated and should make no pretension to be, who cannot, by that education, earn a good living in this country. I have heard people referred to as having fine educations and brilliant attainments, who, thrown upon their own resources, were helpless. They are what I call parrots. They have only read and studied to find out what somebody else knew, but they do not know anything themselves, and have not sense enough to apply what another has tried to teach them.

For many years I have observed with deepest interest the people who succeeded, and how they succeeded, and those who failed, and why they failed. I had a determination to succeed, and I adopted my own means of success, which I will faithfully relate to you. But well knowing that every woman is not fitted to do the same kind of work I did, I became interested in all working-women, in boys and in girls. I resolved to write out my own experience, embodying practical suggestions to success. I do not write to any particular class of persons—that is, to the rich or to the poor, the educated or the uneducated—but I shall endeavor to convince every intelligent parent who may read this the wisdom of rendering their children self-supporting, daughters as well as sons, and I shall try to interest the boys and the girls, for upon them depends most now.

Enough is written and said every day to imbue all with the wisdom of this idea, now I propose to tell you a plain story showing you how it may be done.

Criticism, Sacred Criticism.

From Balzac's "A Great Man of the Provinces." (Roberts.)

"COME, let us be off," said Lousteau, picking up Lucien's manuscript and making a stroke of ink just beneath the twine that fastened it.

"Have you anything more?" asked Barbet.

"Nothing, my little Shylock. I'll put you in the way of an excellent bit of business before long (in which you shall lose a thousand crowns to teach you to rob me in this way)," added Étienne in a low voice to Lucien.

"But your articles? how can you write them without the books?" said Lucien as they drove to the Palais-Royal.

"Pooh! you don't understand how easily that sort of thing is done. As for the 'Voyage in Egypt,' I did open the book and read here and there without cutting the leaves; I found eleven mistakes in grammar; I can make a column out of that by saying that though the author may have learned the hieroglyphic language of those Egyptian milestones called obelisks, he doesn't know his own, and I'll give the blunders, for I wrote them down. I shall then tell him that instead of writing about the natural history and antiquity, he had better have concerned himself with the future of Egypt, the progress of civilization, the means of uniting it to France, which, having once conquered Egypt and then lost it, could still obtain a moral ascendancy over it. That gives a chance for a fine patriotic flourish interlarded with tirades about Marseilles and the Levant and our present commercial interests."

"But suppose the author had said all that himself, what would you do?"

"Oh, then I should say that instead of boring us with politics, he had better have written about art and described the country under its picturesque and territorial aspects. There's a chance for a lament. We are overrun with politics—politics here, there and everywhere. I regret those charming books of travel which explained the difficulties of navigation and the delights of crossing the Line, in short, what persons who never travel want to know—all the while laughing, of course, at travellers who make great events of gul's, porpoises, whales, first sight of land and shoals avoided. Subscribers laugh, and that is all that's wanted. As for novels, Florine is the greatest reader of novels there is in the world. She tells me what they are about, and I knock off an article accordingly. When she is bored by what she calls 'author's phrases,' I give the book a respectful notice, and ask the publisher for another copy, which he sends me out of gratitude for the puff."

"Good God! and criticism, sacred criticism?" cried Lucien, still imbued with the principles of the brotherhood.

"My dear fellow," said Lousteau, "criticism is a brush which you can't use on thin material, or it tears it to rags. Well, don't let us talk of the business any more. Do you see that mark?" he went on, pointing to the line he had made on the outside sheet of the "Daisies." "It is exactly under the twine. If Dauriat reads your manuscript he will certainly not be able to tie the string in exactly the same place. Your manuscript is as good as sealed, and you will know whether he opens it—not at all a useless experience for you. Now, take notice of another thing; you are not making your entrance into the trade alone and without a sponsor, like other young fellows who go the round of a dozen publishers none of whom will offer them a chair."

The Poetic Peasant Girl.

From Maxwell Gray's "The Last Sentence." (Tait Sons & Co.)

It was the most poetic peasant girl yet seen; she was poised lightly on the rough submerged stepping-stones, with the proud and graceful carriage that comes of bearing burdens. One hand was raised to steady her fagot of dry heath while springing from stone to stone; in the other she carried a sickle; her dress was the trim garb of the district, the skirts kilted high for the passage, showing well-made limbs gleaming in the dusk; the snow-white Breton cap-wings flapped in the wind upon her wholesome face; a bunch of fresh primroses was fastened in her bodice. The picture was full of charm, especially to Marlowe.

Though poised in the act of flight, the Corregan did not fly, but stood at gaze, her face turned over her shoulder, as if fascinated by terror, until Marlowe reached the edge of the stream, and wished her good-evening, and asked the way to the nearest inn.

There was no inn near, she replied, the red blush gradually dying from her face and the startled fawn gaze from her large deep eyes—no, nor any tavern. Shelter for the night? There was the whole village of St. Brileuc. Being now reassured, she smiled and sprang to the opposite bank, beckoning to him to follow her, which he did, slipping on the mossy stones, to which her bare feet had easily clung under the water. Had he seen the château by the sea? That was St. Brilleuc, she said in her broken French, with a strong country accent.

Followed by Marlowe, she climbed up the little glen, through which the stream babbled down to the sea, talking with the unaffected ease of the French peasant, her feet pressing a mosaic of flower and turf, her face whipped by her broad cap-wings, and thus alternately concealed and revealed. They walked on till they reached a pasture grazed by cows; Marlowe wondering when the fairy would melt into another shape, or resume her magic song, while the storm grew and the roar of the sea deepened.

Presently a man was seen approaching them.

"This is my father, Michel Kéronac," the Corrigan said. Then she explained Marlowe's situation to this strong, square-built Breton, who was leading a small cow which looked on the stranger with wondering eyes.

So the fairy faded into simple, harmless Renée Kéronac, who lived with her father and mother, Michel and Suzanne Kéronac, in the ruins of the feudal castle.

Père Michel readily agreed to take the belated and storm-driven traveller in for the night, now rapidly closing in upon them, taking care to make good and tangible terms first—no easy matter, considering his broken Breton French, and Marlowe's literary book French.

In the midst of all this stammering and gesticulating, misunderstanding and confusion of tongues, the sound of a bell trembled through the thunder of the rough sea and roaring wind; Kéronac stopped short, took off his broad felt hat, and dropped on his knees where he stood, the cow's rope thrown over his arm, his hands busy with a rosary, which suddenly appeared in them. Down went Renée's bundle of heath and sickle at the same signal, and she too knelt, just where she stood, her head bent and her face shrouded by the flapping cap, a rosary appearing with the same mysterious suddenness in her hands.

The storm-wind roared over the two bent heads, shaking the father's long hair and flapping the daughter's cap. heavy raindrops fell, the cow stood patiently chewing the cud, her fur ruffled by the wind and her head bent from it. Marlowe, moved by the picture, and wondering at this combination of piety with so keen a love for gain in the worthy man before him, uncovered his own thick curled head, until the rite was done, and his new friends hurried with him and their four-footed companion to the shelter of the ruined castle, now a peasant's home. "An English painter storm-driven to pass the night," Kéronac announced, as Cecil slipped into the warm fire glow, Mary Loved Him.

From Anna Katharine Green's "Marked Personal."
(Putnam.)

"I MUST stay," Mary persisted, looking, however, on the sudden, very pale and worn. "There is a reason why I dare not leave these rooms. Would it be safe to push the door to a little?" she queried, with her lips close to his ear. "I want to show you something it would be dangerous for any one else to know about."

Stanhope glanced at her and then across the hall. All was silent in that direction, but the door of the janitor's room was open like their own. Leaning forward, he gave the latter a light push, and it swung to, almost to the point of closing.

"Now, what is it?" he asked.

She seemed to hesitate. "I am not old enough or wise enough for such responsibilities," she objected. "If my father is living, I may be betraying him; but that mysterious man, and the look he gave about the room, may have some connection with my father's disappearance, for he has been in the house again, and—Take this!" she cried, with sudden resolution, putting in his hand a key and pointing hastily across the room, but not to where the curtain hung above the machine she had before disclosed, but to the old chest which he had observed in his first survey of the room. "Unlock that trunk, quick; I have no confidence in the Bownes. See what is in it and come back to me. I will keep guard while you are about it." And she took up her station at the crack made by the nearly closed door.

Startled, and totally unable to guess what he was about to discover, he crossed the room and hastily inserted the key in the large and old-fashioned lock of the huge chest before him. It turned without an effort, and upon lifting the lid, he saw—to his astonishment, no doubt, for he had expected something sinister—a collection of old clothes neatly spread out till they covered the entire surface of the space before him. But before he could utter a word she had sent him a loud whisper over her shoulder.

"Throw those out and look beneath. One glance will do."

He did as he was bid, and this time was not disappointed in what he found. The trunk was full of money, actual hard cash to a large amount. There was gold and silver, and bank-notes and coupons, all laid in with exactness on a square of heavy cloth, and so unprotected that he flung back in haste the clothing he had taken from above them, lest the walls around him should take note of this ready fortune and whisper the secret abroad.

"I see," was his comment, as he handed back to Mary the key. "You dare not leave this chest behind you. Never mind, we will take it with us."

She did not seem to hear; she was intent upon explaining her own attitude in regard to this money.

"I did not know there was money in this chest," said she, "till I opened it two days after my father went away. This was the key he threw me. Does not the fact of his giving it up to me look as if he expected to stay away? He had never let me take so much as a peep into the trunk before."

"And if my father should return?"

"He will be told where to find you. I am going to take you to Mrs. White. She is a good woman and will welcome you kindly."

What was the matter? Was the sweet child going to faint, now that the strain was gone and relief promised? He reached out his arm toward her, but she drew back.

"Mrs. White?" she gasped. "Your wife?"

The room reeled about him. On the instant he understood why Miss Gracia had looked at him that morning with such disturbed eyes. Mary loved him, and she was now a woman with a woman's heart, which he felt he was destined to break.

A Spectre and a Literary Tramp.

From Mary E. Stone's "A Riddle of Luck."
(Lippincott.)

THE spectre was silent. He seemed to meditate deeply. At last he inquired, "What would you do to win success?"

"Anything that mankind can do."

"Supposing I should tell you how to win success,—great, warm, living success, such as men strive for—glory, fame and wealth! I could do it."

"Why don't you? I'm willing."

"There must be conditions"

"Name them."

"Listen to me: if I bestow upon you the essential ingredients to success you must in return allow me to enter your body and to occupy it for at least half of the time—say every alternate six months."

The ragged comforter slipped entirely from the tramp's shoulders—he had shrugged them disdainfully. "You mean," he said, "in plain language, that you would like to rent my mortal tenement? In the mean time, where shall I be? Two spirits in one body might make things uncomfortable. Our tempers might prove incompatible and combats ensue. The scheme isn't practicable."

"You do not suppose," said the ghost, "that I should allow you to remain in the same body with me?"

"Where can I go?"

"I shall pronounce avatar upon our spirits; as I enter your body you will pass out into space."

"Isn't space a little intangible? Where is it?"

"Everywhere; all about you. Departed spirits occupy space."

"The word suggests too much room," said the tramp. "It doesn't sound snug."

"I have no inclination for idle discussions," exclaimed the spectre impatiently. "What you cannot understand you had best not talk about. You know the conditions. If I allow you to become successful, I must share in your triumphs. I must gain what I missed in life. As my mortal body has become disintegrated, I must perforce act through yours. The world will remain ignorant of the metempsychosis. Outwardly, I shall be you; inwardly, myself. Do you understand me?"

"Perfectly. I have gotten around worse problems in my lifetime. But tell me, pray, will my disembodied spirit be capable of beholding you cavorting around in my body? You might make me ashamed of my own make-up."

"Don't worry," said the ghost dryly; I shall not have you around prying into my affairs.

"WELL DONE, SIR!"

From "John Holden, Unionist." (Copyright, 1893, by Price-McGill Co.)

You shall be confined to a certain space, out of the radius of my individuality. Other worlds will be accessible to you. You may visit Jupiter."

"Do you mean the serene old planet that swings up yonder every night? Should I find anything new there?"

"What do you mean by new?"

"Oh, something to spice up life—sauce piquante; I'm pining for a change."

"You look as if a change might benefit you."

"Not complimentary, but candid. Thou art an overwise ghost. I will consider your offer. It is asking a good deal of a man to take a boarder—to let out his own body, as it were; but at the present state of affairs my body isn't worth much. I'd a notion of vacating it myself—drinking a pint of red ink, perhaps."

"Don't do it," pleaded the ghost. "I can make you rich and famous."

"Then it is a bargain."

Throgmorton Haggett's One Ambition.

From Julian Hawthorne's "Six Cent Sam's." (Price-McGill Co.)

As for the theory, or the ambition—for they amounted to the same thing—it possessed many theoretical merits, the chief one lacking being that of novelty. Mr. Haggett would have preferred that it should possess this also; but he consoled himself with the reflection that, if he could only vindicate it, he would enjoy two triumphs: first the vindication; and secondly, that he would have been the first to succeed of many who had tried. His name would be rendered immortal. Only there was the "if"!

The theory was, that Bacon was the author of "Shakespeare." Mr. Haggett had familiarized himself with all the extant controversial literature on the subject, beginning with Miss Delia Bacon's "The Philosophy of Shakespeare's Plays Unfolded," and coming down to the ingenious analysis of a recent American student. He had, besides, copies of the various original editions of the plays, and of every work that bore in any way upon either Shakespeare or Bacon. He had secured photographic copies of Baconian letters and manuscripts of various dates, and of all Shakespeare's alleged signatures. The entire history of the Elizabethan period was at his fingers' ends. He had even gotten so far as to determine exactly what it was he was looking for in the way of conclusive evidence. More than once he had imparted this to one of his very few friends and confidants, a certain vendor of second-hand books, by the name of Philemon Inkpenney & Co.

"It stands to reason, Philemon," he would say, "that negotiations must have been carried on between Lord Verulam and Shakespeare regarding this matter. As a rule, no doubt, these negotiations would be by personal interview. But occasionally they must have been conducted by correspondence; and although, as a measure of precaution, there would have been an understanding that this correspondence should be destroyed, yet the doctrine of chances warrants us in the belief that some fragments of it have survived. And over and above that, Philemon, it is to be remembered that a man of Shakespeare's low and tricky character would have been most apt to preserve some written evidence of Bacon's authorship, to be possibly used against him for purposes of extortion. I am convinced, consequently, that some such documentary evidence exists; and, should life be spared me, I will find it."

"Bless me, Mr. Haggett," Philemon would reply, cheerfully, "you're good for thirty years yet! And you look to me a man to carry out what you undertake, sir."

The Hero: A Product of Culture and Riches.
From Sienkiewicz's "Without Dogma." (Little, Brown & Co.)

I HAVE only four days left before my departure, and will now sum up what I said about myself. I am an individual rather worn out, very sensitive, and of a highly nervous temperament. I have a strongly developed consciousness of self, seconded by comparative culture, and taken altogether, may consider myself an intellectually developed being.

My scepticism debars me from all firm convictions. I look, observe, criticise, sometimes fancy I get hold of some essential truth, but am ready always to doubt even that. I have already said all that was necessary in reference to religion. As to my social creed I am a conservative so far as a man in my position is bound to be, and so far as conservatism suits me. No need to mention that I am far from considering conservatism as a dogma which no one is allowed to touch or to criticise. I am too much civilized to take a party view of either aristocracy or democracy. I leave that as a pastime to those who live in the country, or in remote places where ideas, like fashions, are some ten years late. From the time when privileges were done away with, the question has been closed; but in remoter parts, where the world remains more or less stagnant, it has become not so much a question of principle as rather a question of vanity and nerves. In regard to myself, I like well-bred people—people with brains and nerves, and look for them where they are most readily found. I like them as I like works of art, fine scenery and beautiful women. From an æsthetic point of view, I possess refined nerves—too refined, perhaps, owing to my early training and a naturally impressionable temperament. This æsthetic sensitiveness gives me as many delights as torments, and renders me one great service: it preserves me from cynicism or otherwise extreme corruption, and serves me instead of moral principle. I recoil from many things, not because they are wicked, but because they are ugly. From my æsthetic nerves I derive also a certain delicacy of feeling. Taken all in all, it seems to me that I am a man a little marred by life, decent enough though to say the truth, rather floating in mid-air because not supported by any dogma, either social or religious. I am also without an aim to which I could devote my life.

One word more about my abilities before concluding the synthesis. My father, my aunt, my colleagues, and sometimes strangers, consider them simply prodigious. I allow that my intellect has a certain glitter. But will the improductivité Slave scatter all the hopes invested in me? Considering all I have, or rather have not done up to this day, either for others or myself, I feel inclined to think that such will be the case. This confession costs me more than appears on the surface. My irony when I think of myself tastes bitter on the palate. There was something barren in the clay from which God formed the Ploszowskis, since on that soil everything springs up and grows so luxuriously, yet produces no fruit. Truly, if with this barrenness, this powerlessness to act, I possessed the abilities of a genius, it would be a strange kind of genius—a genius without portfolio, as there are ministers of state without portfolio.

This definition, "a genius without portfolio," seems to fit me to perfection. I shall take out a patent of invention for the word. But the definition does not apply to me alone. Its name is legion. Side by side with the improductivité Slave goes the genius without portfolio; it is a pure product of the Slav soil. Once more I say its name is legion. I do not know another part of the world where so much ability is wasted, in which even those who bring forth something give so little, so incredibly little, in comparison with what God gave them.

The Author of "As It Was in the Beginning."

From Kipling's "Many Inventions." (Appleton.)

ENTERED, unperceived in the smoke, William the Silent. "Gen'elman to see you, sir," said he, and disappeared, leaving in his stead none other than Mr. Eustace Cleever. William would have introduced the Dragon of Wantley with equal disregard of present company.

"I—I beg your pardon. I didn't know that there was anybody—with you. I—"

But it was not seemly to allow Mr. Cleever to depart; he was a great man. The boys remained where they were, for any movement would have choked up the little room. Only when they saw his gray hairs they stood on their feet, and when The Infant caught the name, he said:

"Are you—did you write that book called 'As It Was in the Beginning'?"

Mr. Cleever admitted that he had written the book.

"Then—then I don't know how to thank you, sir," said The Infant, flushing pink. "I was brought up in the country you wrote about—all my people live there; and I read the book in camp on the Hlinedatalone, and I knew every stick and stone, and the dialect, too; and, by Jove! it was just like being at home and hearing the country people talk. Nevin, you know 'As It Was in the Beginning'? So does Ti—Boileau."

Mr. Cleever has tasted as much praise, public and private, as one man may safely swallow; but it seemed to me that the outspoken admiration in The Infant's eyes, and the little stir in the little company came home to him very nearly indeed.

"Won't you take the sofa?" said The Infant. "I'll sit on Boileau's chair, and—" here he looked at me to spur me to my duties as a host; but I was watching the novelist's face. Cleever had not the least intention of going away, but settled himself on the sofa.

Following the first great law of the Army, which says "all property is common except money, and you've only got to ask the next man for that," The Infant offered tobacco and drink. It was the least he could do; but not the most lavish praise in the world held half as much appreciation and reverence as The Infant's simple "Say when, sir," above the long glass.

Cleever said "when," and more thereto, for he was a golden talker, and he sat in the midst of hero-worship devoid of all taint of self-interest. The boys asked him of the birth of his book and whether it was hard to write, and how his notions came to him; and he answered with the same absolute simplicity as he was questioned. His big eyes twinkled, he dug his long thin hands into his gray beard and tugged it as he rew animated. He dropped little by little from the peculiar pinching of the broader vowels—the indefinable "Euh" that runs through the speech of the pundit caste—and the elaborate holce of words, to freely-mouthed "ows" and "ois," and, for him at least, unfettered colloquialisms. He could not altogether understand the boys, who hung upon his words so reverently. The line of the chin-strap, that still showed white and untanned on cheek-bone and jaw, the steadfast young eyes puckered at the corners of the lids with much staring through red-hot sunshine, the slow, untroubled breathing, and the curious, crisp, curt speech seemed to puzzle him equally. He could create men and women, and send them to the uttermost ends of the earth, to help delight and comfort; he knew every mood of the fields, and could interpret them to the cities, and he knew the hearts of many in city and the country, but he had hardly, in forty years, come "into contact with the thing which is called a Subaltern of the Line."

Country Homes vs. Summering Places.

From "Homes in City and Country." (Scribner)

It is needful to exclude from present discussion those architectural retreats of the mountains, or by the shore, which are only known to the holders, and only enjoyed during August and September heats; and so—whatever dances may enliven them, or whatever dinners or guests make them gay—never get the qualities of a country family homestead.

I know very many of these summering places are, in these latter years, specially taking on an importance and a fulness of equipment that may even match the city homes of their owners; but if they get every autumn a double fastening of the cupboards, and a padlocking of the gates, and such dispersion of all servants as forbids any blue pennon drifting from the chimney-tops in winter, and any welcoming bound of the house-dog (if the owner pays a visit), they belong only to that category of half-homes with which we are not now concerned. Among the qualities which mark and differentiate the country house and home, as we understand it, may be counted this ever-ready openness—fires that do not go out, portraits of our grandfathers and mothers (if we have them) upon the wall, and gardens that get their belaboring with the spade as surely as every spring comes. A man may indeed divide his honors, if he have enough, and, like Queen Victoria, equip one home with Tudor ancestors, and sanctify another with the Hanoverian portraits; but barred gates and a summer rioting of weeds on house-paths make a desertion in which a sturdy home sentiment, that ought to lurk in all country houses, cannot grow.

Again, it does not appear to me that the good countryish qualities of house and home are to be measured exactly by distance from cities. Garden sanctities and charms may thrive in the very shadow of town steeples. Many of the most engaging types of our American country houses were planted on roads that became the streets of bustling towns or of cities. I recall in this connection that old Longworth homestead which for so many years held its dignified rural quietudes of trees and garden in the midst of the noisy growth of Cincinnati; again, there is the John Bartram house on the Schuylkill, retaining its country charms of vines and flowers—its birds even—long after city sounds had drowned their songs. I recall also many a quiet old town along the shores of Long Island Sound, or of the Connecticut River, where broad-faced trim houses of a colonial type, with airy halls and balustrades upon their roofs, are still full of a rural invitingness which is made good by their great gardens in the rear, and by their alleys of boxwood in the front. The interjection on the village street of butcher shops and of telegraph offices does not kill the high country qualities of such homes.

RHODE ISLAND AND CONNECTICUT SHORE HOUSE.

From "Homes in City and Country." (Copyright, 1893, by Charles Scribner's Sons.)

IN AMSTERDAM.

From Eugene Field's "Second Book of Verse." (Charles Scribner's Sons.)

MEYNHEER HANS VON DER BLOOM has got A majazin in Kalverstraat,
Where one may buy for sordid gold
Wares quaint and curious, new and old.
Here are antiquities galore—
The jewels which Dutch monarchs wore,
Swords, teacups, helmets, platters, clocks,
Bright Dresden jars, dull Holland crocks,
And all those joys I might rehearse
That please the eye, but wreck the purse.

I most admired an ancient bed,
With ornate carvings at its head—
A massive frame of dingy oak,
Whose curious size and mould bespoke
Prodigious age. "How much?" I cried.
"Ein tousand gildens," Hans replied:
And then the honest Dutchman said
A king once owned that glorious bed—
King Fritz der Foorst, of blessed fame,
Had owned and slept within the same!

Then long I stood and mutely gazed,
By reminiscent splendors dazed,
And I had bought it right away,
Had I the wherewithal to pay.
But lacking of the needful pelf,
I thus discoursed within myself:
"O happy Holland! where's the bliss
That can approximate to this Possession of the rare antique
Which maniacs hanker for and seek?
My native land is full of stuff
That's good, but is not old enough.
Alas! it has no oaken beds
Wherein have slumbered royal heads,
No relics on whose face we see
The proof of grand antiquity."

Thus reasoned I a goodly spell
Until, perchance, my vision fell
Upon a trade-mark at the head
Of Fritz der Foorst's old oaken bed—
A rampant wolverine, and round
This strange device these words I found:
"Patent Antique. Birkey & Gay, Grand Rapids, Michigan, U. S. A."

At present I'm not saying much
About the simple, guileless Dutch;
And as it were a loathsome spot
I keep away from Kalverstraat,
Determined when I want a bed
In which hath slept a royal head
I'll patronize no middleman,
But deal direct with Michigan.

Higher Education.

From Alan St. Aubyn's "The Master of St. Benedict's." (Rand, McNally & Co.)

WHILE she was thinking of the curate, and the tears were dropping in to her lap, there was a knock at the door, and some one came in. Lucy started guiltily, and hurriedly wiped her eyes. It was not the red-headed curate. It was a girl—to be more correct, a woman; everybody is a woman at Newnham—a second-year girl, who had called to see if she could help her to unpack her things, and get her room in order.

It wasn't a formal "call." Calls at Newnham are usually made after 10 P.M., when work is supposed to be over, and one is yearning for bed. The second-year girl was a little bit of a thing—smaller than Lucy. A girl who looked as if she had shrunk—as if she had once been round and p'ump, and bright-eyed, and soft-cheeked, and red-lipped, as a girl ought to be at twenty. She was none of these things now. She was lean and angular; her eyes were dull, her lips were pale, and her cheeks had lost all their youthful roundness and rosiness, if they had ever had any. The roundness had gone into her figure—her back was quite round, her shoulders were bent and stooping, and her chest was narrow and flat like a board.

She had been at Newnham two years, and she was twenty now, and wore glasses, but alas! not "sweet and twenty." She looked exactly like a girl who had used up all her brains.

"I think you have made a mistake," she said, as she knelt upon the ground unpacking Lucy's books, "in taking Classics. You should take the Natural Science Tripos. Classics are a thing of the past. They are quite worn out. They will be superseded altogether, shortly. Soon, very soon, Latin and Greek will not be compulsory in the examinations; we shall have more useful subjects. Life is so short, so very short"—she was just twenty—"that we have no time for learning things that will not help us in the rush. Life is getting more of a rush every day, and Science is the only thing that can help us forward. There is no knowing where Science will lead us!"

She clasped her hands, and gasped at the bare thought of it.

"No," said Lucy in a low-spirited way.

She hadn't the least interest where Science was going to lead the girl on the floor—it wasn't likely to lead her very far—but she did object to see her pet Classics turned out of the box in that scornful way.

"You will learn all this trash," the girl continued opening the pages of Lucy's "Euripides," and letting the leaves drop through her fingers as if they were not of very much account, "and you will pore over these rubbishy stories of a quite barbarous age—stories, and fables, and metamorphoses that, if they were written at the present time, would lay the writer open to a prosecution for perverting the public morals. You will soak your mind with all this nonsense and impurity, and you will think that you have attained culture. Oh, to think how girls waste their lives!"

"I am sure Classics are ever so much nicer than Natural Science," Lucy said, with some spirit. "Look at the dreadful subjects you have to study!—and to sit side by side with men in lecture-rooms, and listen to lectures on things most women would blush to speak of! Oh, I wouldn't be a Natural Science student for the world!"

The atmosphere of Newnham was beginning to tell. A few hours ago Lucy was as weak as a mouse, and if any one had slapped her on one cheek she would have been quite ready to offer them the other. Now she had plucked up sufficient spirit to defend her choice of a Tripos.

If Newnham doesn't do anything else for a girl, it teaches her to take her own part.

Lucy didn't learn the lesson all at once. It takes a long time to learn, when one has been brought up in the old-fashioned way, to consider other people first, and to think of self last. It would never do to practice such a foolish doctrine at a college for women. There is only one person to consider—self, self, self!

Lucy had one thing to unlearn when she came to Newnham, and a great deal to learn: and she did not learn it all at once. She had always had somebody else to consider first, and now it was ever Number One. Oh, that horrid Number One!

The Powdered Footman Smiled.

From Kate Douglas Wiggin's "A Cathedral Courtship."
(Houghton, Mifflin & Co.)

"My dear girls, you are aware that we have ordered fried eggs, scrambled eggs and poached eggs ever since we came to Dovermarle Street, simply because we cannot eat boiled eggs prettily from the shell, English fashion, and cannot break them into a cup or a glass, American fashion, on account of the effect upon Dawson. Now there will certainly be boiled eggs at Marjorimallow Hall, and we cannot refuse them morning after morning; it will be cowardly (which is unpleasant), and it will be remarked (which is worse). Eating them from an egg-cup, in a baronial hall, with the remains of a drawbridge in the grounds, is equally impossible; if we do that, Lady Marjorimallow will be having our luggage examined, to see if we carry wigwags and war-whoops about with us. No, it is clearly necessary that we master the gentle art of eating eggs tidily and daintily from the shell. I have seen Englishwomen—very full ones, too—do it without apparent effort; I have even seen an English infant do it, and that without soiling her apron, or, as Salemina would say, 'messing her pinafore.' I propose, therefore, that we order soft-boiled eggs daily; that we send Dawson from the room directly breakfast is served; and that then and there we have a class for opening eggs, lowest grade, object method. Any person who cuts the shell badly, or permits the egg to leak over the rim, or allows yellow dabs on the plate, or upsets the cup, or stains her fingers, shall be fined 'tuppence' and locked into her bedroom for five minutes."

The first morning we were all in the bedroom together, and, there being no innocent person to collect fines, the wildest civil disorder prevailed.

On the second day Salemina and I improved slightly, but Francesca had passed a sleepless night, and her hand trembled (the love-letter mail had come in from America). We were obliged to tell her, as we collected "tuppence" twice on the same egg, that she must either remain at home, or take an oil-cloth apron to Marjorimallow Hall.

But 'ease is the lovely result of forgotten toil," and it is only a question of time and desire with Americans; we are so clever. Other nations have to be trained from birth; but as we need only an ounce of training where they need a pound, we can afford to procrastinate. Sometimes we procrastinate too long, but that is a trifle. On the third morning success crowned our efforts. Salemina smiled and I told an anecdote, during the operation, although my egg was cracked in the boiling, and I question if the Queen's favorite maid of honor could have managed it prettily. Accordingly, when eggs were brought to the breakfast-table at Marjorimallow Hall, we were only slightly nervous. Francesca was at the far end of the long table, and I do not know how she fared, but from various Anglicisms that Salemina dropped, as she chatted with the Queen's Counsel on her left, I could see that her nerve was steady and circulation free. We exchanged glances (there was the mistake!), and with an excited laugh she struck her egg a hasty blow.

Her egg-cup slipped and lurched; a top fraction of the egg flew in the direction of the Q. C., and the remaining portion oozed, in yellow confusion, rapidly into her plate. Alas for that past mistress of elegant dignity, Salemina! If I had been at her Majesty's table I should have smiled, even if I had gone to the Tower the next moment; but as it was, I became hysterical. My neighbor, a portly member of Parliament, looked amazed, Salemina grew scarlet, the situation was charged with danger; and, rapidly viewing the various exits, I chose the humorous one, and told as picturesquely as possible the whole story of our school of egg-opening in Dovermarle Street, the highly arduous and encouraging rehearsals conducted there, and the stupendous failure incident to our first public appearance. Sir Owen led the good-natured laughter and applause; lords and ladies, Q. C.'s and M. P.'s, joined in with a will; poor Salemina raised her drooping head, opened and ate a second egg with the repose of a Vere de Vere—and the footman smiled!

NOT A BOSTON GIRL.

I SEAL the letter, write her name—
It's very dear to me—
And then I add, beneath the same,
Two letters—M and D.

I see you smile in quick disdain.
You think of glasses, too,
And little curls. It's very plain
What "M.D." means to you.

But she is neither stern nor cold,
As you perhaps may think.
She's young and fair, not grim and o'd,
Nor does she scatter ink

On notes of lessons that are said
Before a learned class;
And from her dainty lips of red
No long orations pass.

The only studies that she reads
Are letters that I write;
The only lectures that she heeds
Are those that I indite.

You wonder how it all may be,
And do not understand?
She lives in Baltimore. "Md."
Means, simply—"Maryland."

—James G. Burnett, in The Century.

Latter-Day Americans.

From Sarah Barnwell Elliott's "John Paget." (Holt.)

HER nephew John Paget was studying for the ministry. That would have annoyed her in the old days, but now, if one could reach the point of being absorbed and fanatical about anything, she deemed it a blessing.

The people she lived among were absorbed in many ways. One man had a fancy farm, and could talk of nothing but weeds. Some women were daft about church embroidery, some about art, some about dress reform, prison reform, hammered brass, wood carving, refuges for women, cruelty to animals, etching, orphan asylums, gymnastics, Christian science, Russian cruelty, anything to quiet the conscience and the craving for reality. No doubt good was done as well as time killed, but reality seemed to be missing.

They were all in earnest, these people; the man who talked of weeds spent hundreds, that his acres should be guiltless of one dandelion. All the rest were in earnest too, only the work did not seem to have come to them as the duty of life. They seemed to have created a great deal of it in order to satisfy a restless energy by which they were possessed. She had no restless energy, and any of these things would have seemed playing at work. She gave money, but she could not give herself. For generations her people had lived in a hot climate, owned slaves, and been filled with repose. Work was a serious thing to such people, and had to be a solemn duty before they would do it. These Northern people had lived in a cold climate, where life was a battle, and so had been energetic for generations. As long as they had nature to conquer, and fortunes to carve out, this energy was a necessity, a boon; but now it had become the gadfly that goaded them into rest-cures and lunatic asylums. For herself, she spent her time on books and the study of her kind. The world called her icy; Claude said she was thoroughly civilized. To analyze thoroughly, one must put one's heart out of count; thus, to her, analysis of her kind was an easy thing. It had become a second nature; but she could remember the time when she hated herself for this power of moral dissection. Once when she analyzed her brother John because he was unjust to her, once when she had analyzed Carter, it had seemed to harden her heart. In her analysis of Carter, she had left weakness out but weakness had come and he had sent for her. When she should come to die, there would be no one to send for. A trained nurse, for it was not civilized to trouble one's friends with illness and pain and death throes. All the eyes that would look into hers at the end would be calm and resigned; no hardly restrained agony, no passionate pain, but Christian resignation changing into resigned cheerfulness as she passed the point where she could change her will.

The Secret of the Great Masters.

From Marie Corelli's "A Romance of Two Worlds."
(E. A. Weeks & Co.)

"Do you not find it difficult to make your audiences understand your aims?"

"Yes," I said half laughing. "In England, at least, people do not know what is meant by improvising. They think it is to take a little theme and compose variations on it—the mere A B C of the art. But to sit down to the piano and plan a whole sonata or symphony in your head, and play it while planning it, is a thing they do not and will not understand. They come to hear, and they wonder and go away, and the critics declare it to be clap-trap."

"Exactly!" replied Heliobas. "But you are to be congratulated on having attained this verdict. Everything that people cannot quite understand is called clap-trap in England; as for instance the matchless violin-playing of Sarasate; the tempestuous splendor of Rubinstein; the wailing throb of passion in Hollman's violoncello—this is, according to the London press, clap-trap; while the coldly correct performances of Joachim and the 'icily-null' renderings of Charles Hallé are voted 'magnificent' and 'full of color.' But to return to yourself. Will you play to me?"

"I have not touched the instrument for two months," I said; "I am afraid I am out of practice."

"Then you shall not exert yourself to-day," returned Heliobas kindly. "But I believe I can help you with your improvisations. You compose the music as you play, you tell me. Well, have you any idea how the melodies or the harmonies form themselves in your brain?"

"Not the least in the world," I replied.

"Is the act of thinking them out an effort to you?" he asked.

"Not at all. They come as though some one else were planning them for me."

"Well, well! I think I can certainly be of use to you in this matter as in others. I understand your temperament thoroughly. And now let me give you my first prescription."

He went to a corner of the room and lifted from the floor an ebony casket, curiously carved and ornamented with silver. This he unlocked. It contained twelve flasks of cut glass, stoppered with gold and numbered in order. He next pulled out a side drawer in this casket, and in it I saw several little thin empty glass tubes, about the size of a cigarette-holder. Taking two of these he filled them from two of the larger flasks, corked them tightly, and then turning to me, said:

"To night, on going to bed, have a warm bath, empty the contents of the tube marked No. 1 into it, and then immerse yourself thoroughly for about five minutes. After the bath, put the fluid in this other tube marked 2, into a tumbler of fresh spring water, and drink it off. Then go straight to bed."

"Shall I have any dreams?" I inquired with a little anxiety.

"Certainly not," replied Heliobas, smiling. "I wish you to sleep as soundly as a year old child. Dreams are not for you to night. I can cure you thoroughly, and I will. I forget your nationality—you are not English?"

"No, not entirely. I am half Italian."

"Ah, yes! I remember now. But you have been educated in England?"

"Partly."

"I am glad it is only partly," remarked Heliobas. "If it had been entirely, your improvisations would have had no chance. In fact you never would have improvised. You would have played the piano like poor mechanical Arabella Goddard. As it is there is some hope of originality in you—you need not be one of the rank and file unless you choose."

"I do not choose," I said.

EAST TO WEST.

SUNSET smiles on sunrise; east and west are one,
Face to face in heaven before the sovereign sun.
From the springs of the dawn everlasting a glory renews and transfigures the west,
From the depths of the sunset a light as of morning
kindles the broad sea's breast,
And the lands and the skies and the waters are glad of the day's and the night's work done.

Child of dawn, and regent on the world-wide sea,
England smiles on Europe, fair as dawn and free.
Not the waters that gird her are purer, nor mightier the winds that her waters know.
But America, daughter and sister of England, is praised of them, far as they flow:
Atlantic responds to Pacific the praise of her days that have been and shall be.

So from England westward let the watchword fly,
So for England eastward let the seas reply;
Praise, honor, and love everlasting be sent on the wind's wings, westward and east,
That the pride of the past and the pride of the future may mingle as friends at feast,
And the sons of the lords of the world-wide seas be one till the world's life die.

WAGNER AND HIS WORKS.

The Story of His Life, with Critical Comments. With portraits, 2 vols., $4.00.

"It is certainly the best biography of Wagner that has appeared in English, if not really the best that has appeared in any language. Wagner's life and work are honestly and admiringly set forth, and the volumes are a monument of earnest and careful devotion that command attention and respect."—Philadelphia Times.

STORIES OF NEW YORK.

STORIES OF THE RAILWAY.

Illustrated. Each 16mo, paper, 50 cents; clo., 75 cents; half calf, $1.50.

The series of "Stories from Scribner," of which the foregoing are the first two volumes, is to include six volumes containing many of the best stories that have appeared in Scribner's Magazine in recent years, grouped under attractive subjects, charmingly illustrated and daintily and tastefully made. In the matter of the binding, typography, paper and illustration, the attempt has been successfully made to rival the best of similar French productions. The above volumes are now ready. The succeeding volumes in preparation will be entitled: "Stories of the South" (ready in June), "Stories of the Sea," "Stories of Italy," and "Stories of the Army."

AN ADVENTURE IN PHOTOGRAPHY.

Illustrated from photographs by the Adventurers. 12mo, $1.50, net.

Octave Thanet's new book, the scope of which is indicated by the foregoing, has an attractive literary quality which will commend it to the general reader. The style is bright and colloquial, with many amusing touches in the narrative. The illustrations are both attractive and instructive.

HOW TO KNOW THE WILD FLOWERS.

With 104 illustrations by Marion Satterlee. Sixth Thousand. Square 12mo, $1.50, net.

From a letter by Olive Thorne Miller. "It is exactly what has long been wanted by one who loves nature and longs to be formally introduced—so to speak—that is, to know her treasures by name, but who has not time to study botany. Your arrangement by colors is a great help to ready reference, and the illustrations are invaluable."

ART OUT OF DOORS.

Hints on Good Taste in Gardening. 12mo, $1.50.

"It is a charming volume and one whose value will be permanent. Those who own country places and those who some day may own them will highly value it. The author is an enthusiast and well versed in her subject."—Boston Times.

HOMES IN CITY AND COUNTRY.

With 100 illustrations. 8vo, $2.00.

"A beautiful book. It abounds in suggestions of great value to every lover of a beautiful home, and is made so practical as to be not only entertaining, but most useful."—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

TROPICAL AMERICA. With 16 illustrations. Cr. 8vo, $2.00.

"Not in recent years has any English visitor produced a work in which so much of vital interest has been so well recorded. Nowhere is there a chapter in which the reader may not find something to make him wiser."—New York Times.

STORIES OF A WESTERN TOWN.

Illustrated by A. B. Frost. 12mo, $1.25.

"The Western character, so full of humanity, homely and plain often, but genuine and wholesome, has never been better presented than in this volume. Octave Thanet has made an addition to American literature which is of positive and permanent value."—Boston Courier.

A SECOND BOOK OF VERSE. 16mo, $1.25.

"It must be a gloomy man or woman who is not moved to hearty laughter by its bubbling fun, or touched by its tender pathos."—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE WOMEN OF THE VALOIS COURT.

With 6 portraits. Famous Women of the French Court. 12mo, $1.25.

Several new volumes are to be added to this popular series, differing from their predecessors in that they each describe the lives of several women and contain numerous portraits. The women whose careers are pictured in this first volume are Marguerite d'Angoulême, Catherine de Medicis, Diane de Poitiers, Marie Stuart, Elizabeth de France, Jeanne d'Albret, Marguerite de Valois, Elizabeth d'Autriche and Louise de Vaudemont.

Three volumes on Louis XIV. and Louis XV. will be published later.

ART FOR ART'S SAKE.

With 24 reproductions of paintings. 12mo, $1.50.

"We consider it the best treatise on the technic of painting, for general readers, that is at present obtainable, and the book most likely to aid the layman to some comprehension of the painter's view of painting—the view which is necessarily the right one, and which yet is the view that the literary critics of art have constantly obscured rather than elucidated."—The Nation.

IN BLUE UNIFORM: An Army Novel. 12mo, $1.00.

Mr. Putnam's new novel contains, as the background for a delicately and skilfully constructed love-story a series of quiet, realistic, entertaining pictures of garrison life on the Western frontier, in which officers, privates and all the other typical characters which go to make up a garrison community are portrayed with rare fidelity.

SOCIAL STRUGGLERS. 12mo, $1.25.

"Prof. Boyesen understands American life, and he has delineated it in this novel with a vigor and grace that show him to be a philosopher as well as an accomplished literary artist."—Boston Beacon.

DAY AND NIGHT STORIES, Second Series.

12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

CONTENTS: The Clerk of the Weather—A Toledo Blade—"To Her"—The Anatomist of the Heart—The Man in Red—Jack-in-the-Box—Under Cover of the Darkness.

Day and Night Stories, First Series. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

ISLAND NIGHTS' ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Beach of Falésa, The Bottle Imp, and The Isle of Volces. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

"Three stories of a kind that no other British author could conceive or execute, making their wildest fantasies as veritable for the time being as events of every-day life. He is a man of genius and a noble writer."—New York Mail and Express.

RECOLLECTIONS OF MIDDLE LIFE.

With portrait. 12mo, $1.50.

"Sarcey's comment on himself as well as on his friends is frank throughout, and the volume is an interesting revelation to one who has any interest in the intellectual side of Parisian life."—Providence Journal.

THE LIFE OF MICHEL ANGELO.

With portrait and 50 reproductions of Michel Angelo's Works. Second edition, 2 vols., crown 8vo, $7.50.

"As a labor of love, as the tribute of a lover of beautiful things to a maker of them, it merits all praise; as a dictionary, a solid contribution to history, it has the unique advantage of being based upon hitherto unexplored sources of evidence; as a work of art it stands out as the best and sincerest work its author can give us."—The Academy, London.

SCRIBNER'S YELLOW PAPER COVER SERIES. The latest issues in this popular series are Dr. J. G. HOLLAND's Arthur Bonnicastle and T. R. SULLIVAN's Day and Night Stories, Second Series. Recent volumes include Reflections of a Married Man, by ROBERT GRANT; Silhouettes of American Life, by REBECCA HARDING DAVIS; The Governor, and Other Stories, by GEORGE A. HIBBARD, and Sevenoaks, by Dr. J. G. HOLLAND. The price of each of these is 50 cents. Send for a full list of the series, containing stories by FRANK R. STOCKTON, ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON, GEORGE W. CABLE, OCTAVE THANET, JOEL CHANDLER HARRIS, Mrs. FRANCES HODGSON BURNETT and other popular authors.

SUMMER ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Toppleton's Client; or, A Spirit in Exile.

By JOHN KENDRICK BANGS, author of "Coffee and Repartee," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. (Ready June 1.)

A semi-humorous story of the supernatural in the best vein of this popular writer. An utterly commonplace English barrister is persuaded to vacate his body at intervals in favor of an accomplished but wicked disembodied soul. The latter achieves brilliant successes under its false guise, and finally makes off with the body altogether. The barrister's exiled spirit retains Toppleton to recover the lost body, and their efforts to do this are described in an entertaining manner.

The £1,000,000 Bank-Note, and Other New Sketches.

By MARK TWAIN. With frontispiece Small 8vo, cloth, $1.00; stamped leather, $1.50.

This volume contains Mark Twain's new story of the "£1,000,000 Bank-Note," together with several other stories, by the same author, which have never before appeared in book form. They include: "Mental Telegraphy," "Playing Courier," "A Letter to Queen Victoria," "About Ships," "The German Chicago," and "A Majestic Literary Fossil."

A Catastrophe in Bohemia, and Other Stories.

By HENRY S. BROOKS. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. (Ready June 1)

Most of these stories have appeared first in the Overland Monthly and other Western periodicals and have been widely copied all over the United States. The best known among them are perhaps: "A Catastrophe in Bohemia," "The Crazy Professor," "Dona Paula's Treasure," "The Don of Pauper Alley" and "La Tiboruna." Mr. Brooks lived for many years in the far western part of the United States, in Lower California and in Mexico. These stories depict various phases of life in these strange and out-of-the-way places.

Tenting on the Plains.

By ELIZABETH B. CUSTER, author of "Boots and Saddles." New cheap edition. Illustrated by Frederic Remington. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This edition is printed from new plates, with the original illustrations, and bound in a handsome and appropriate cover. It is one of Mrs. Custer's best books, and can be very favorably compared with her "Boots and Saddles."

MEN, WOMEN AND EMOTIONS

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

12mo, Paper, 50 Cents. 12mo, Cloth, $1.25.

While the name of Ella Wheeler Wilcox is known mainly through her popular poetical works, there is a constantly increasing interest manifested in her prose essays which cover a field entirely her own.

Mrs. Wilcox possesses a talent for safely handling dangerous and hitherto tabooed subjects. Her pen is like a skilled surgeon's knife, with which she lays bare human emotions and passions, and in epigrams of warning, sympathy and counsel she crystallizes her discoveries for the benefit of humanity.

However daring and unusual the topics she discusses, no one can read any chapter in this book without feeling stronger to resist temptation and braver to cope with life's battles. Every phase of emotion is analyzed, every relation of man to woman treated, every folly and frailty probed; the lancet is often sharp, but there is balm and healing on its point.

The Simple Adventures of a Memsahib.

A NEW BOOK

By SARA JEANNETTE DUNCAN,

Author of "A Social Departure" and "An American Girl in London."

The Brilliant Story of Mr. and Mrs. Browne's Quaint and Delightfully Humorous Experiences in India.

With Many Illustrations by F. H. Townsend. 12mo, Cloth, $1.50.

GOD'S FOOL.

By MAARTEN MAARTENS, author of "The Sin of Joost Avelingh." 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"Throughout there is an epigrammatic force which would make palatable a less interesting story of human lives or one less deftly told."—London Saturday Review.

"Perfectly easy, graceful, humorous. . . . The author's skill in character-drawing is undeniable."—London Chronicle.

"A remarkable work."—New York Times.

"The story is wonderfully brilliant. . . . The interest never lags; the style is realistic and intense; and there is a constantly underlying current of subtle humor. . . . It is, in short, a book which no student of modern literature should fail to read."—Boston Times.

FROM DUSK TO DAWN.

By KATHARINE P. WOODS, author of "Metzerott, Shoemaker." 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Rarely, indeed, does an author attain to such wide prominence in so short a time as did Katharine Pearson Woods on the appearance of her somewhat socialistic novel called 'Metzerott, Shoemaker.' That story, however, with all its absorbing power, gave only the faintest evidence of the real strength that has hitherto remained latent, but which is now so wonderfully developed in her latest story, 'From Dusk to Dawn.'"—Baltimore American.

New and Powerful Fiction.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Reproach of Annesley," "In the Heart of the Storm," etc. Illustrated by A. G. Reinhart. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"A story strong in plot and character-drawing, rich in the accessions of an abundant imagination, and its central movement has a psychological potency that it would be difficult to match in the writings of any novelist since Hawthorne. 'The Last Sentence' may be, without reservation, accepted as one of the really significant novels of the year. It will bear more than a single reading, and its merits are more likely to be appreciated at a third than a first perusal."—Boston Beacon.

Dearest.

By Mrs. FORRESTER, author of "I Have Lived and Loved," "My Hero," "Diana Carew," "Fair Women," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Written with the good taste and the good breeding which are characteristic of all Mrs. Forrester's works. It gives us two types which reveal at once the author's knowledge of the world and her self-restraint—for either the one or the other might easily have run into caricature in less skilful hands."—London World.

The Doomswoman.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," "A Question of Time," etc. 16mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00.

"Full of incident, passion, color and character."—The Critic.

Kitty's Father.

"Mr. Barrett has the true gift of the story-teller. He seldom fails to interest his readers."—Speaker.

"A thoroughly absorbing plot, well worked out, and interesting right up to the last page."—Punch.

Oriole's Daughter.

By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, author of "The First Violin," "A March in the Ranks," "Healey," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Unquestionably an artistic piece of fiction."—Boston Beacon.

"In fine, 'Oriole's Daughter' is a book which will maintain the author's reputation for refined portraiture and sound workmanship."—Athenaeum.

Cosmopolis.

By PAUL BOURGET. Authorized edition. Large 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.50; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

"'Cosmopolis' is emphatically a purposeful novel."—Chautauquan.

"A work of extraordinary power and deep interest."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Bourget has given us a series of portraits which are elaborated and refined. . . . 'Cosmopolis' is an admirable piece of portraiture in all ways."—New York Tribune.

Christine.

By ADELINE SERGEANT, author of "Beyond Recall," "A Life Sentence," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

"A healthful, kindly story."—Christian Union.

"'Christine' has a finished quality that in the artistic sense is exceedingly agreeable. The narrative has plenty of effective contrasts, and the descriptive passages are admirable in suggestiveness."—Boston Beacon.

For Summer Reading.

Two New Books by J. M. BARRIE.

Two of Them.

By JAMES MATTHEW BARRIE, author of "The Little Minister," "A Window in Thrums," etc. etc. With ten full-page illustrations. 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.25. Illustrated Series. Paper, 50 cents.

In "Two of Them, and Other Stories" Mr. Barrie has given us a book after the manner of "When a Man's Single." It is in the lighter vein of the humorous English journalist, rather than in that of the strong and quaint depicter of Scottish character. The stories are bright and entertaining, worthy of the pen of a Dickens. Half a dozen of the sketches are literary and semi-critical, and most remind the reader of the author of "An Edinburgh Eleven." All of them are delightful reading, and will add pleasantly to the reader's knowledge of the striking literary and intellectual qualities of one of the strongest and most picturesque of modern writers.

A Tillyloss Scandal.

By J. M. BARRIE, author of "The Little Minister," "A Window in Thrums," "When a Man's Single," etc., etc. THE ONLY COMPLETE EDITION. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.00. Belmore Series. Paper, 50 cents.

"The tale is a delightful one, and one which is worthy to be placed with the idyls of Thrums."—Boston Courier.

"'A Tillyloss Scandal' is a most attractive tale, and is characterized by many of the charming qualities that distinguish 'The Little Minister.'"—New York World.

The Other House.

By KATE JORDAN. 8vo, cloth, illustrated, $1.25. Illustrated Series. Paper, 50 cents.

"A story of exceptional interest."—Philadelphia Press.

"The book is delightfully written; the hero and heroine are strong, human characters."—Detroit Free Press.

"The story is strong and unconventional. Miss Jordan has drawn the characters of both hero and heroine skilfully."—New York Press.

The Marriage of Elinor.

By Mrs. OLIPHANT, author of "The Railway Man and His Children," "The Heir Presumptive, and the Heir Apparent," etc., etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. Belmore Series. Paper, 50 cents.

"Looking back at the long series of fiction from Mrs. Oliphant's pen, it is wonderful to note how strong and accurate and fresh her touch still is. In many respects this work has even a better quality than most of its predecessors."—Boston Literary World.

The Wrong That Was Done.

By F. W. ROBINSON, author of "The Keeper of the Keys," "Our Erring Brother," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. Belmore Series. Paper, 50 cents.

"This story of an elderly man's love which turns out happily in the end is related with the skill of a practised writer of fiction, and the interest is well sustained throughout. The characters are naturally presented and the incidents are exciting without being over-sensational."—Boston Gazette.

The Penance of Portia James.

By TASMA, author of "Uncle Piper of Piper's Hill," "A Sydney Sovereign," etc. Belmore Series. Paper, 50 cents; also, 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

"This new novel by 'Tasma' is thoroughly readable; it has the freedom and breadth of touch that prove the author has seen and known the world beyond the sound of the bells of her native town. The theme of this novel is serious, but quite within the scope of the material of fiction; it is treated with a light and skilful hand, and it fully attains effectiveness and interest."—Boston Literary World.

After Many Days.

By THEODORA B. WILSON and JAMES CLARENCE HARVEY. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

"After Many Days" is a thoroughly American novel, and not only in its local color but in its dialogue and character-drawing as well is a correct portrayal of country life in a provincial town. There is no attempt to set the stage elaborately for the drama which unfolds in its pages—the authors have been content to faithfully depict the probable thoughts and deeds of certain characters under given surroundings.

Ruby Gladstone;

Or,

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgiven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

"THE NIAGARA BOOK."

By WILLIAM DEAN HOWELLS, MARK TWAIN,
N. S. SHALER, and Others.

FULLY ILLUSTRATED BY HARRY FENN.

The Most Complete Souvenir of Niagara Falls.

The publishers of this book give in the following brief announcement as specific an idea as possible of its purpose and scope. All travellers know that no suitable souvenir of Niagara Falls has ever been published. All literary men and women are aware that there has never been any literature of the Falls—any classic bits which might occupy the same relation to this eighth wonder of the world as Hawthorne's "Great Stone Face" does to the Franconia Notch in the White Mountains. All that the sight-seer might buy at the Falls, all that the book-lover interested in this great natural wonder—all that any one might purchase which might help him to appreciate the beauties of Niagara or which might aid him when far away to bring to his mind's eyes the pictures of its charms, were a few insignificant guide-books where mere facts were stated in a cheap and common manner, or inconvenient books of views, some of them good and some of them decidedly bad.

It was and is the idea of the publishers of the "Niagara Book" to give to the public a volume which would not only combine the best of illustrations with the best accounts and guide of the Falls—but which would go far beyond this and make it an ideal book in its way, make it the most complete souvenir of Niagara Falls which it is possible for any man ever to get out—make it a collection of the best thoughts of the most prominent literary and scientific men of this country and England—a collection of stories, sketches, essays, poems and general articles (descriptive, humorous, historical and scientific)—dealing directly or indirectly with Niagara Falls—from the best writers of America in their special line, all this to be supplemented by an entirely new and interesting guide-book and fifteen illustrations specially prepared by one of the best illustrators of the country.

A Quartette of Books

MRS. RORER'S COOK-BOOK

One to attract, because of the many new things it contains—nearly 600 pages of choice recipes.

One to depend on, because everything in it is sure to come out right.

One to live by, because it shows how to buy and cook economically and well.

Bound in oil-cloth covers, $1.75.

MRS. RORER'S Canning and Preserving

Canning time again. Here is the book for the time. It gives all the information about putting up fruits and vegetables, and tells how to jelly, can, preserve, jam and pickle. Also treats of flavored vinegars. Don't experiment. That's been done and here is the result.

Paper covers, 40 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

MRS. RORER'S Hot Weather Dishes

Just the book needed in hot weather. A great boon to have some one to plan for the table. This book does the business, and saves worry. It contains lots of enjoyable things—some, perhaps, never known before.

Paper covers, 40 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

MRS. RORER'S Home Candy Making

A handy book to have about the house. Candy-making is a pleasant recreation. It affords enjoyment to the children, and even the elder folks do not despise the day of good things. And this book is full of 'em.

Paper covers, 40 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

ARNOLD & COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA

Take These Nine Books on Your Summer Vacation.

THEY ARE SPECIAL AND TIMELY.

IN THE WAKE OF COLUMBUS. By FREDERICK A. OBER, Special Commissioner of the Columbian Exposition. Illustrated by nearly 250 photographs, etchings and pen-sketches by Henry R. Blaney. Made expressly for this volume. Crown 8vo, uncut edges, gilt top, cover with Spanish and American decorations, $2.50.

A most valuable and interesting contribution to American history, written in delightful style. Mr. Ober had access to information not otherwise obtainable, and his descriptions of the voyages, discoveries and adventures of the great Admiral are not only vivid with life, but accurate pictures of scenes and incidents that have a national interest and importance.

THE DOWN-EAST MASTER'S FIRST SCHOOL. By EDWARD A. RAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

A capital story both for teachers and pupils. The old-fashioned "spelling-school" and other institutions of "Yankee-land" come in for realistic description, and the book is alive with humor, romance and spirit.

SEAWARD. An Elegy on the Death of Thomas William Parsons. With notes and biography. By RICHARD HOVEY. Royal 8vo, gilt top, in box, $1.50.

The poem is illustrated with full-page photogravure portrait and exquisite illuminated initials.

"One of the most memorable poems which has been published for many a day. It will be numbered among the great elegies of the language."—Independent, N. Y.

ONLY A FLOCK OF WOMEN. By Mrs. A. M. DIAZ. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Mrs. Diaz is identified with matters that bear on educational topics on their broadest bases. The forty-two papers of this bright book include "Should Women Take Part in School Affairs?" "Development of Character in Schools," "Children's Rights," "The Thought Age."

ODD BUSINESS. By L. J. BRIDGMAN. Bridgman's fruitful brain and nimble fingers have fashioned these quaint and bewitching conceits, that are brimful of fun, but also hold a subtle meaning which even a child cannot fail to apply. 4to, cloth, $1.25.

ENDEAVOR DOIN'S DOWN TO THE CORNERS. By Rev. J. F. COWAN. Fully illustrated from original drawings. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A realistic account by "Brother Jonathan Hayseeds" of the Christian Endeavor work in a country village. For homely common sense and dry humor it has not been surpassed, while it is yet all aglow with the spirit of this great working force of the modern church.

OSCAR PETERSON, RANCHMAN AND RANGER. By H. W. FRENCH. With original illustrations. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

Pioneer life in the West with its perils, hardships and adventures is shown in graphic pictures of places and people. The plot is full of spirit, and the incidents give thrilling experiences among cowboys and Indians.

ARCHIE OF ATHABASCA. By J. MACDONALD OXLEY. Illustrated. 12mo, $1.25.

A genuine Canadian story of trapper life in the wild woods of British Columbia, with Indians and hunters. It is stirring, realistic and fascinating, and will just suit "live" boys who enjoy real adventures.

NEW POPULAR NOVELS.

Heimburg's New Novel.

MISS MISCHIEF. (MAMSELL UNNUTZ.)

By W. HEIMBURG. Translated from the German by Mary Stuart Smith. 12mo, 350 pages. Illustrated by Warren B. Davis. Handsomely bound in cloth, $1.50; paper cover, 50 cents.

Heimburg's new novel is one of the most interesting books that have come from her pen. It is the story of a young girl brought from Italy to Germany and reared amid scenes and circumstances uncongenial to her nature. Unappreciated and misunderstood, it is not strange that her acts are misinterpreted and that she gets the reputation of being a good-for-nothing and a mischievous child; but so interesting is her character, and so skilfully are her fine traits developed by the author that the reader is surprised by the vision of beauty and truth and heroism which, as the story proceeds, dawns upon the mind. "Miss Mischief" becomes a noble woman, and by her self-sacrifice, patience and energy repays a hundredfold all the protection and assistance which have been grudgingly given to her during her childhood. The story is a charming one, the characters are interesting and the incidents natural; and the book is laid down with a feeling of entire satisfaction, and admiration for the author.

A New American Novel.

TRANSGRESSING THE LAW.

By Capt. FREDERICK WHITTAKER, author of "The Great Kenton Feud," "Bel Rubio," etc. Illustrated by Warren B. Davis. 12mo, 300 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

This novel has a strong and interesting plot. It turns upon the false imprisonment of an artist who has eloped with the daughter of a millionaire. The story is told in a lively and engaging style which catches hold of the reader's attention and sustains the interest. Captain Whittaker belongs to the same school of novelists as Sir Walter Scott.

A Powerful Story.

THE HONOR OF A HEART.

Translated from the German of Vacano by MARY J. SAFFORD, translator of "Little Heather-Blossom," "The Little Countess," etc. Illustrated by F. A. Carter. 12mo, 260 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

This is a love-story of deep and entrancing interest. It deals with spirited and striking characters, and touches the highest and lowest in the social scale. There are chapters in it of wonderful power. In the working out of the plot curious specimens of humanity are made to play a part. In the skill and brilliancy with which the author has developed her story this novel is remarkable in German fiction.

The Standard American Guide-Book.

Appletons' General Guide to the United States.

With numerous maps and illustrations. New edition, revised to date. With appendix devoted to the Columbian Exposition. 12mo, flexible morocco, with tuck, $2.50.

Part I., separately, NEW ENGLAND AND MIDDLE STATES AND CANADA, cloth, $1.25. Part II., SOUTHERN AND WESTERN STATES, cloth, $1.25.

This well-known work, the standard guide-book for foreign visitors as well as American residents, is prepared with the special knowledge of an American. The editor has, during the past two years, travelled extensively over the entire United States for the express purpose of this revision, and has embodied new features and improved old ones as experience and observation have suggested. Itineraries of the principal cities have been prepared by a local expert in each case. Yet not only as a guide for the traveller is the book valuable. At a time when so much interest is taken in the present extraordinary stage of development of our country, the general reader will find the work a manual of description and information difficult to obtain in any other form so compact, complete and authoritative.

Appletons' Guide-Book to Alaska.

By Miss E. R. SCIDMORE. With maps and illustrations. $1.00. (Nearly ready.)

Miss Scidmore's writings on Alaska and the Northwest coast are already most favorably known, and her "Guide-Book" will be found to be an authority. She first describes the Puget Sound country, and then takes the tourist to Vancouver's Island and the Coast of British Columbia on his way to the wonderful scenery and curious aboriginal life of Alaska.

The volume is uniform with the Canadian Guide-Books by Messrs. Roberts and Ingersoll, and these three books together furnish a complete historical and descriptive account of the vast region extending from Newfoundland to the confines of Alaska. They are books for the general reader as well as for the traveller and sportsman.

NOTES IN SEASON.

THE ANNA C. REIFSNIDER BOOK Co., St. Louis, will publish July 1 "Ruby Gladstone, or, a return to earth," a psychic story discussing the question, "Do human souls return to earth?"

AMBLARD & MEYER BROS., New York, have just ready a one-dollar authorized edition (in French) of Bourget's "Cosmopolis." It contains all the illustrations of the holiday edition and is made exclusively for the American market.

GINN & Co. have just issued "Graduate Courses: a handbook for graduate students," with a list of advanced courses given in the chief universities of the United States, compiled by a committee of the Graduate Club of Harvard in co-operation with the Graduate Clubs of Cornell, Johns Hopkins and Yale.

CHARLES L. WEBSTER & Co. will issue immediately in their new series of paper-covered fiction for summer reading "Mr. Billy Downs and His Likes," by Richard Malcolm Johnston; "Don Finimondone, Calabrian Sketches," by Elizabeth Cavazza; and "The Master of Silence: a romance," by Irving Bacheller.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY have just ready in John R. Musick's Columbian Historical Novels "The Witch of Salem; or, credulity run mad." This story is designed to cover twenty years in the history of this country from 1680 to 1700, including all the principal features and events of the gruesome yet romantic period which witnessed the last spasmodic throes of dying superstition.

ANSON D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have just ready a dainty souvenir for ocean voyagers entitled "Outward and Homeward Bound." It combines a journal and note-book giving sundry information as to how time is kept on shipboard, log, clouds, etc., and has blank pages for notes and autographs, a colored plate of the smokestacks and flags of the principal transatlantic passenger steamers, charts, etc. The volume is neatly and substantially bound in white canvas.

HARPER & BROTHERS announce the following works as ready for immediate publication: "Picture and Text," by Henry James, a new volume in the series of Harper's American Essayists; "Phillips Brooks," by his brother, the Rev. Arthur Brooks, D.D. (Black and White Series); "The Love-Affairs of an Old Maid," by Lillian Bell; "Practical Lawn Tennis," by James Dwight, M.D., illustrated from instantaneous photographs; and a new revised edition of "Yolande," by William Black.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just ready "An Adventure in Photography," a bright narrative of the adventures, successes and failures of two amateur photographers, by Octave Thanet; a new and cheaper edition of Dr. Robert Flint's "Theism;" Dr. Holland's "Arthur Bonnicastle," in their Yellow Paper Cover Series; in their University Manuals, a work on "Logic," by Prof. William Minto; the second series of "Day and Night Stories," by T. R. Sullivan; and "In Blue Uniform," an army novel, by George I. Putnam.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have just ready "Thomas Chalmers," by Mrs. M. O. W. Oliphant, in the series of English Leaders of Religion, in which is given a delightful narrative of the important part taken by this great Scotch preacher in great social questions, and his remarkable power and influence as apostle of church extension and work in the slums; "Riverside Song-Book," containing classic American poems set to standard music, edited by W. M. Lawrence and O. Blackman; a revised "History of the United States Flag," by George Henry Preble, reduced in price and specially timely this year, as are also an entirely new edition of "Boston Illustrated," rewritten by E. M. Bacon, with 150 entirely new illustrations, and a map; and Sweetser's standard guide-books for "New England," the "White Mountains and Maritime Provinces." There will also be a new series of "Latin Lessons," by Henry Preble, designed to prepare for the intelligent reading of classical Latin prose.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Agee, G. W. Rube Burrow, king of outlaws, and his band of train robbers: an accurate and faithful history of their exploits and adventures. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1893.] 9+194 p. por. D. (Melbourne ser., no. 10.) pap., 25 c.

Ambauen, Rev. Andrew, comp. Catechist's manual: chiefly while preparing children for first communion and confirmation; with the approbation of the archbishop of Milwaukee. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '90. 270 p. sq. T. pap., 75 c.

Atherton, Mrs. Gertrude Franklin. The doomsdwoman. N. Y., Tait, Sons & Co., [1893.] 2-263 p. D. cl., $1.

The scene is California. The time the early part of the nineteenth century previous to the admission of California into the Union. At a christening at Governor Alvarado's house in Monterey the characters are introduced, notably Chonita Iturbi y Moncada, called the "Doomswoman" by her friend Eustaquia, because of a supposed dual power to curse or heal humanity. An episode of love between Chonita and Don Diego Estanego has a historical background which pictures the struggle between Mexico and the United States for possession of California. First published in Lippincott's Magazine.

Balsac, Honoré de. Le curé de Tours; ed. with notes by C. R. Carter. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893. 8+95 p. S. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 25 c.

Best, Rev. K. D. The victories of Rome and the temporal power. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 16°, cl., net, 20 c.

Bethune, J. G. The third man. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 4+308 p. D. (Cassell's sunshine ser., no. 143.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Three old friends, a doctor, a judge and a detective, all about fifty years old, are chatting in the judge's home, when a peculiar sound is heard from the room above. The judge goes to find out the cause and soon returns. Again the sound is heard and he sends his friend, the doctor, to attend his wife, who is indisposed. After a long interval the doctor calls and the judge and detective find him with the body of Mrs. Hollingwood, who has been murdered. The detective work in getting at the mystery makes the story.

Braeme, Charlotte M., ["Bertha M. Clay," pseud.] Foiled by love. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1893.] 6-325 p. 1 il. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 7.) pap., 25 c.

Braeme, Charlotte M., ["Bertha M. Clay," pseud.] Her girlhood's lover. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1893.] 6-291 p. 1 il. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 6.) pap., 25 c.

Buckley, Rob. Burton. Irrigation works in India and Egypt. N. Y., Spon & Chamberlain, 1893. 348 p. folding pl. 8°, cl., $25.

Clarke, Marcus. For the term of his natural life: a novel; il. by Moppel. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., [1893.] 6-326 p. 1 il. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 8.) pap., 25 c. Published in the Seaside Library in 1881. See "Weekly Record," P. W., Dec. 3, '81, [516.]

Columbia's emblem, Indian corn: a garland of tributes in prose and verse. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 3-62 p. il. S. cl., 40 c.; pap., 25 c.

The selections in this little book cover a wide range, and show something of the history and poetry and value of Indian corn. A poem on Columbia's emblem, by Edna Dean Proctor, opens the volume, while Captain John Smith's early account "Of their planted fruits in Virginia, and how they use them," and Governor Bradford's account of "How the Pilgrims found corn at Cape Cod," taken from his "History of Plymouth plantation," are among the interesting extracts bearing directly on the subject.

Consuelo, (pseud.) Saved by a dream. [New issue.] St. Louis, Mo., Anna C. Reifsnider Book Co., [1893.] 6-211 p. il. D. (Happy hour lib.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Formerly published by Laird & Lee, Chicago, in the Library of choice fiction.

Cordy, W. F., and Twitchell, W. I. A pathfinder in American history. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. '92. 18+102+35+255 p. D. cl., $1.20.

The principals of the North School and of the Arsenal School, of Hartford, Conn., have prepared this book specially for teachers. Part 1 points out the best children's books on American history and shows how they can be used to best advantage. The lists give titles, publishers and prices of books. In part 2, the bibliography of the subject, including fiction and periodical literature, receives special attention, and the relation of the history of America to its physical geography and to the contemporaneous history of transatlantic States is prominently brought out.

Crepaz, Adele. The emancipation of women and its probable consequences. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.

Cummings, G: D. The history of Geronimo's summer campaign in 1885: a drama. [San Francisco, Cal., W: Doxey, 1893.] 73 p. D. pap., $1.

A dramatic poem, giving an account of the exploits of the Apache chief Geronimo, in the summer of 1885. Wherever the Indians and the United States army figure in the work it is true to history.

Cushing, Paul. The great Chin episode. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. 4+256 p. D. (Macmillan's dollar novel ser.) cl., $1.

The "Chin episode" is a murder and the amateur and expert work which in the end traces the criminal and the motive. An army officer masquerading as butler in the household of an English aristocratic woman is the chief character.

Dale, Darley. Lottie's wooing. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 5+371 p. D. cl., $1.

Lottie is the leading spirit in her fatherless family. Having taken a house in the beautiful Derbyshire country of England, Lottie makes up her mind to marry the landlord for the good of her incompetent family. The tricks and manoeuvres she resorts to in her scheme to win this middle-aged, well-balanced man are the substance of a well-planned story. Needless to say she is successful and the confessions of the lovers at the end are quite amusing.

Daniel, Lizzie Cary, comp. Confederate scrap book: copied from a scrap-book kept by a young girl during and immediately after the war, with additions from war copies of the Southern Literary Messenger and Illustrated News, loaned by friends, and other selections as accredited; published for the benefit of the Memorial Bazar held in Richmond, April 11, 1893. Richmond, Va., J. L. Hill Printing Co., 1893. 7+256 p. il. O. cl., $1.50.

Contains the farewell addresses of Generals Lee, Mosby, Magruder, Kirby Smith, Commander Maury at sea, the last words written by Stonewall Jackson, etc., etc. Also, "The form of parole," "Reward for Mr. Davis," "The amnesty proclamation," the "Order forbidding wearing the gray," the "Jeff Davis bond," "The Richmond Examiner's famous convention of beasts," "The constitution of the Confederate States and that of the United States compared," and a number of Confederate war poems and songs.

Dement, Richmond Sheffield. Napoleon: a drama. Reading ed. with appendix. Chic., Knight, Leonard & Co., 105-107 Madison St., 1893. c. 6-188 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.50; leath., $2.50.

Written in blank verse. In the preface the author explains that he has perhaps not represented the popular Napoleon, but has endeavored to portray him as he is convinced he will appear at a not far-distant period. To this end he sometimes sacrifices historical accuracy, as his chief aim is to elucidate Napoleon's character and bring all within the compass of an hour's reading.

Dibble, F. L., M.D. Vagaries of sanitary science. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 2-462 p. O. cl., $2.

The author claims that the whole sanitary movement thus far has no resemblance to scientific investigation. Much sanitary nonsense has been foisted on the people. He submits carefully investigated facts on air, water, soil, sewer gas, cemeteries, public funerals, meat, milk, filth and fecal diseases, typhoid fever, yellow fever, cholera, diphtheria, epidemics, boards of health and vital statistics. His purpose is to do away with the vague terrors people have about disease by teaching them their true nature and the means to avoid them scientifically.

Du Bose, J: Witherspoon. The life and times of William Lowndes Yancey: a history of political parties in the United States from 1834 to 1864, especially as to the origin of the Confederate States. Birmingham, Ala., Roberts & Son, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 15+752 p. por. O. cl., $3.50.

Mr. Yancey was born in Georgia, Aug. 10, 1814; was educated in the North and admitted to the bar in Abbeville, S. C.; he moved to Alabama in 1836, where he served in both branches of the legislature; he was also a member of Congress twice between 1844 and 1847; he was noted as an orator through the South, taking for nearly twenty years sides against Henry Washington Hilliard on leading Southern questions. He opposed the compromise measures of 1850 and was the leader of the secession movement of 1861; he died in 1863. This work reveals a strong and picturesque personality, and offers an interesting history of Southern thought, and the growth of parties and ideas, as seen from a Southern standpoint.

Dunscomb, S. Whitney, jr. Bankruptcy: a study in comparative legislation. N. Y., [Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Columbia College,] 1893. 4-167 p. O. (Columbia College studies, v. 2, no. 2.) pap., $1.

Edwards, Tryon B., D.D. A dictionary of thoughts: a cyclopedia of laconic quotations, from the best authors, both ancient and modern; alphabetically arranged by subjects. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. '91. 15+644 p. O. cl., $2.50.

See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., October 10, 1891, [1028.]

Elterlein, Ernst v. Beethoven's symphonies in their ideal significance; explained by Ernst von Elterlein; from the German, with the author's approval, by Francis Weber. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Figuer, L: Joys beyond the threshold: a sequel to "The to-morrow of death;" tr. by Abby Langdon Alger. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 4+321 p. D. cl., $1.25.

A further development of and comment on the consoling pictures of a future life, presented some twenty years ago in the author's "The to-morrow of death; or, the future life according to science." Mr. Figuer believes in "the principle of the permanence of the human soul after death, and its re-incarnation in a chain of new beings, whose successive links are unrolled in the bosom of ethereal space."

Finley, Martha F., ["Martha Farquharson," pseud.] The tragedy of Wild River Valley. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1893.] 2+231 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Wild River Valley is supposed to be in the north-western farming country of the United States. A story of robbery and murder and cruelty of various kinds; not intended for young readers.

Fletcher, W: I., and Bowker, R: R. The annual literary index, 1892; including periodicals, American and English, essays, book-chapters, etc.; with author-index, bibliographies and necrology; ed. with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association, and of the Library Journal staff. N. Y., Office of The Publishers' Weekly, 1893. c. 8+224 p. O. cl., $3.50.

"The annual literary index" succeeds to and includes what has hitherto been known as the "Co-operative index to periodicals," the list of periodicals indexed being largely increased, and contains several new features, the most important of which is the first annual index to those portions of the books of the year which are practically monographs on special subjects. It is the first volume of a series which will include the annual Fletcher index as well as the annual "Poole," known as the "A. L. A. index." In the "Index to general literature" many books are covered issued previous to 1892, but not prepared for record in time to be included in the "A. L. A. index" volume. The lists of special bibliographies published during the year, and the necrology of authors deceased during the year, both new features, will be found very useful.

Florentine, Agnolo Firenzuola. Of the beauty of women: dialogue; from the Italian, by Clara Bell; with an introd. by Theo. Child. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $2.25.

Franklin, B: The select works of Benjamin Franklin; incl. his autobiography; with notes and a memoir by Epes Sargent. [New issue.] Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. '53. 502 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Froebel, F: Froebel's letters; ed. with explanatory notes and additional matter by Arnold H. Heinemann. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 5+182 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

The universal spread of the kindergarten has given a new and vivid interest to all that relates to Froebel. In the selections from his letters never before published, just made by Mr. Heinemann, we are taken into the silent brain-chambers of the friend of children; and we see how he toiled painfully along the road pointed out by reasoning and experience before (in his simple phrase) he "found" the kindergarten. This book with its explanatory notes becomes at once a memoir and a history of the system.

Giles, F: R. The mysterious Mr. Jarvis. N. Y., W. D. Rowland, 1892 [1893.] c. '92. 223 p. D. (Leisure-time ser., no. 16.) pap., 25 c.

The scene is Chicago. Mr. Jarvis evidently stands for Christian K. Ross, of Philadelphia. He is seen following up a clue for the recovery of his lost son given him by Mrs. Mosher, whose son was one of the abductors of Charley Ross. The interest is in Ross senior's methods and the final developments in an extended search.

Gilman, S. C. The story of a western claim: a tale of how two boys solved the Indian question. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 201 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The scene is on the frontier of Nebraska. The first chapter introduces an incident of Western life which illustrates the methods of claim-taking and the force of the pre-emption act. The successive chapters give in detail the experiences of two Eastern lads who took up a claim and interested themselves in the Indians of the locality.

Gmeiner, Rev. J. A popular defence of Christian doctrines. In 3 v. V. 1, Modern scientific views and Christian doctrines compared; v. 2, The spirits of darkness and their manifestations on earth; or, ancient and modern spiritualism. 3d ed.; v. 3, Emanuel, the saviour of the world. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '84, '85, '88. 7+212; 7+267; 3+119 p. D. V. 1, 2, ea., cl., 60 c.; pap., 35 c.; v. 3, cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

Goesbriand, L. de, (Bp.) The labors of the Apostles: their teaching of the nations. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1893. 12°, cl., net, $1.

Green, Anna Katharine, [now Mrs. Rohlf.] Marked "personal." N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 5+415 p. D. pap., 50 c.; cl., $1.

Twenty-five years back of the story lies the cause of the package marked "personal." Twelve years back lies a connecting link during the time of the New York draft riots of 1863. On his wedding-day, Samuel White, with everything to live for, is found dead in his room two hours after the ceremony. His son and young second wife employ friends and foes to get at the mystery of his death. The ingenious plot is built up with all the skill of the writer of "The Leavenworth case" to the very last chapter, which contains the surprising solutions of several mysteries.

Haven, Gilbert. Christus consolator; or, comfortable words for burdened hearts. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. c. 6-264 p. por. D. cl., $1.25.

Hazell's annual for 1893: a cyclopedic record of men and topics of the day: the year's history of all parts of the globe revised to Nov. 30, 1892. 8th year of issue. N. Y., imported by C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 8°, cl., $1.50.

Hector, Mrs. Annie F., ["Mrs. Alexander," pseud.] Was she to blame? a novel. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., 1893. 6-235 p. il. D. (The Marguerite ser., no. 9.) pap., 25 c.

Published in Holt's Leisure hour series under the title "Look before you leap." See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., September 2, 1892, [555.]

Helena's cloud with the silver lining. [Also] What the angels saw on Christmas eve; by the author of "How Marjorie watched." [New issue.] N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1893.] 4-316 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

"In this story of Jason's quest no attempt is made to harmonize or even mention all the varying accounts, though some of the most striking differences are recorded in the notes. The chief object has been to produce a story that shall be both attractive and helpful to children and youth, and possibly to some of larger growth who have not quite outgrown their youthfulness, or love of folk-lore and fairy tales."—Preface.

Macaulay, T. Babington, (Lord.) Macaulay's essays on Milton and Addison; ed. by J. A. Chalmers. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] 18+190 p. (Student's ser. of English classics.) cl., 42 c.

McKendrick, J. Gray, and Snodgrass, W. The physiology of the senses. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1893. 16+318 p. il. D. (University extension manuals.) cl., net, $1.50.

The aim is to give an account of the functions of the organs of sense as found in man and the higher animals. While neither minuteness of detail in comparative physiology nor extended discussions of a psychological character can be expected in a single manual, the physiology of the senses is discussed as fully as space will allow. Simple experiments are suggested by which any one may test the statements for himself, and the book has been so written as to be readily understood by those who have not made physiology a special study. It will be found a suitable preparation for entering upon the questions that underlie physiological psychology. In the last chapter an attempt is made to throw light upon the physiological basis of sensation, in the hope of contributing to speculative thought on this problem.

Murray, D: Christie. A wasted crime: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 2+191 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new series, no. 734.) pap., 50 c.

Robert, the eldest son of Sir William Audley, Baronet of the Grange at Quarrymoor, incurs the displeasure of his father by marrying the national school teacher of Rook's End. Immediately after their marriage the baronet has a fatal accident, upon which Robert's wife makes some apparent overtures towards a reconciliation which only mask an attempt upon the old man's life. Her crime is defeated, however, by the clever action of the physician, Sir John Leppel, and she learns she has imperilled herself in this world and in the hereafter for naught.

Olmis, Eliz. Jack's hymn. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., 1893. 4-53 p. il. D. cl., 50 c.

A children's hospital is the scene. Four or five little convalescents are discussing the Easter story which had just been told them by a sweet-voiced "Sister." Jack had been picked up after a railroad accident and put under the care of Dr. John in St. Innocent's Hospital. The finding of his mother and the fate of dear, blue-eyed Donald, the hospital pet, are worked into a touching story. First appeared in the New York Ledger.

A story of garrison life at a post on the west Texas prairie, just after the close of the late war; with a simple love-affair are interwoven the details of a ruined life, in which a private soldier is the chief actor, his identity, revealed only at the close, being a great surprise.

Renton, W: Outlines of English literature. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 10+248 p. D. (University extension manuals.) cl., net, $1.

English national literature is divided into two main periods, the first covering from 600-1600, the second from 1600-1900. Each of these periods is subdivided into four ages. The specialties of the writers of every age are brought before the reader by an ingenious system of diagrams and their rank in literature indicated by large and small type. American literature is considered as an integral part of English literature; but an appendix gives a summary of its history and general characteristics with a conspectus of Scotch and American poetry in relation to English.

"The material for this work has been derived from the copious biographical papers left by Mr. Alcott, or furnished by his daughter, Mrs. Pratt, from sources in her possession. An important addition has been made, through the kindness of Mr. Edward Waldo Emerson, from his father's papers not hitherto published; and something also has been drawn from the papers left behind by Mr. Thoreau, and those in possession of William Ellery Channing, of Concord, and Mr. B. M. Watson, of Plymouth. The pages of this book portray our friend as he lived—in youth, in middle life, and in serene old age."—From the Introduction.

Seabury, W: Jones, D.D. Lectures on apostolical succession in the Church of England: being an exposition and application of the teaching of the late Rev. Arthur West Haddan, D.D., in his treatise on that subject. (Rivingtons, 1869.) N. Y., Crothers & Korth, 246 Fourth Ave., 1893. c. 115 p. S. cl., net, 75 c.

Arthur West Haddan was born in 1816 and died in 1873. He was deeply affected by the Oxford movement and did much work for the Anglo-Catholic Library. A second edition of his treatise was published in 1879 and one in 1883. It has for many years been a text-book in the General Theological Seminary in New York, in the department of ecclesiastical polity and law, in which Dr. Seabury is professor. It is hard now to procure the book, and to make its contents known to students these lectures were delivered. Dr. Seabury has not aimed to improve it, but for practical purposes teaches in an affirmative way, while the author's style is to a great extent negative and defensive. Haddan was a firm believer in the Apostolic Church.

In the series of little books, issued under the general title, "Stories from Scribner," the purpose has been to gather together some of the best and most entertaining short stories written for Scribner's Magazine, during the past few years, and to preserve them in dainty volumes grouped under attractive subjects, and decorated by a few illustrations to brighten the pages. The set as arranged consists of six volumes, the first, "Stories of New York," containing four to six: a comedieta, by Annie Elliot; The commonest possible story, by Elias Perry; The end of the beginning, by G: A. Hibbard; A Puritan ingénue, by J: S. Wood; Mrs. Manstey's view, by Edith Wharton.

Stories of the railway. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 7-195 p. il. Tt. (Stories from Scribner ser., no. 2.) hf. cf., $1.50; cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Contents: As the sparks fly upward, by G: A. Hibbard; How I sent my aunt to Baltimore, by C. S. Davison; Run to seed, by T: Nelson Page; Flandroe's Mogul, by A. C. Gordon.

Sullivan, T. R. Day and night stories: second series. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. c. 5+249 p. D. cl., $1.

Contents: The clerk of the weather; A Toledo blade; "To her;" The anatomist of the heart; The man in red; Jack-in-the-box; Under cover of the darkness.

Taube, G. v. A medicus in love: a novel of student life. N. Y., W. D. Rowland, 85 Warren St., [1893.] c. 260 p. D. (The ideal ser., no. 4.) pap., 50 c.

This story is one of Bohemian life in the Austrian capital of Vienna.

Tirebuck, W. Sweetheart Gwen: a Welsh idyll. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. c. 5+277 p. D. cl., $1.

Sweetheart Gwen was a charming Welsh girl whose naïve simplicity and winning personality made her the idol of her young cousin Mark. It is he who gives his first impressions of Wales and Ty Creamed, Gwen's home, introduces a sad episode in her life, traces the cause of her ardent love for a childish lover, tells the happenings of rare visits to the Welsh country in the inimitable dialect of the country folk, and his inability to forget or replace an ideal heroine whose final fate is a mystery.

Tucker, Mrs. Charlotte, ["A. L. O. E.," pseud.] The young pilgrim: a story illustrative of the "Pilgrim's progress." [New issue.] N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1893. 6-854 p. il. S. cl., 50 c.

Vahey, Rev. J. W. Father Vahey's controversial letters. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., 1888 [1893.] 2-155 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Wells, Webster. An academic arithmetic for academies, high and commercial schools. Bost., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1893.] c. 7+339 p. D. (Wells' mathematical ser.) cl., $1.

Intended to furnish a thorough course in all those portions of arithmetic which are required for admission to any college or scientific school. The pupil is assumed to have already studied the more elementary parts of the subject in a text-book of lower grade; and only enough examples are given in the earlier chapters to afford material for a review.

Wheeler, Mrs. W. Lamont. A Washington symphony: a story of society. N. Y., G. P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Whishaw, F. J. Out of doors in Tsarland: a record of the seeings and doings of a wanderer in Russia. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 4+380 p. il. D. cl., $2.

A book about Russia in which nothing is said about the Eastern question or nihilism or the horrors of Siberia. Gives realistic pictures of a typical Russian village and takes us sight-seeing in the streets of St. Petersburg. The greater part of the book describes hunting adventures, from the shooting of woodcock and snipe to the pursuit of elk and bear and a wolf battue. Angling in Russian waters forms the subject of a long chapter.

White, Caroline Earle. A modern Agrippa. [Also] Patience Barker: a tale of old Nantucket. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1893. c. 3-285 p. D. cl., $1.

The time of the first story is 1878. Edith Merton becomes possessed in a very remarkable way of a small-mirror, which instead of reflecting the evil thoughts and desires of those who approached it, as did Agrippa's, reflects only her own shortcomings. This wonderful glass plays a most important part in the romance of a New York belle. The second story tells of the seven years' wooing of Captain Barker's daughter.

Yonge, Charlotte M., and Coleridge, Christabel R. Strolling players: a harmony of contrasts. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 3+349 p. D. cl., $1.

The story opens with a business failure by which Sir Lewis Willingham, his young wife and brothers and sisters are reduced to comparative poverty. The Willinghams have always been ardent in amateur theatricals, all are young and enthusiastic, and they form themselves into a company of strolling players to give entertainments at the homes of their wealthy acquaintances. Their experiences are varied, and they learn that acting in play and acting in earnest are very different things. English country life is pleasantly pictured.

Zardetti, Rev. Otto. Special devotion to the Holy Ghost: a manual for the use of seminarians, priests, religious and the Christian people; with a letter of introd. by Bp. J. Keane. [New ed.] Milwaukee, Wis., Hoffmann Bros., [1893.] c. '88. 480 p. T. cl., net, $1.

PICK-UPS.

A BREADWINNER.—Aspiring Young Author: I have here a few pastels in prose, which I venture to think will create a sensation in the literary world. I have tried to throw into them the divine afflatus of poetry, tinged with the tragic pathos of human life. Editor of "The Literary Vortex" (glancing over the pages): Hm! Afraid that sort of stuff won't go any more. Nothin' in it in the first place, and done to death. Sorry, but—tell you what, though! suppose you let us print it in our funny column as a burlesque on the prose pastel business! It'll be the scream-in'est thing we've had in a long time. "What'll you pay?" "Three dollars." "Cash down?" "Yes." "Gimme the money."—New York Tribune.

"GAVE IT AWAY."—In March, directly after Tait, Sons & Co. had published Edgar Fawcett's latest book, a Boston drummer called upon the proprietor of a large New York book and stationery store, and, as they were parting, facetiously inquired: "By the way, Mr. Blank, have you any 'Loaded Dice'?" Mr. Blank, whose sense of humor is strongly developed, answered: "Yes, certainly;" and turning to one of the clerks of the stationery department, said to him in mock seriousness: "Mr. Cohen, please put up 'Loaded Dice' for Mr. Boston." Mr. Cohen at once made a diligent search in every drawer, shelf, show-case and bin in his department, and after about ten minutes' fruitless search approached his employer, and with some embarrassment whispered into his ear: "Mr. Blank, where do we keep the loaded dice now?"

LIST-BOY.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 3, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE FUTURE OF ENGLISH LETTERS.

UNDER the above caption W. Morris Colles contributes to the May issue of the New Review an article that will be read with as great interest by the book trade as by the literary workers, especially such as have yet their reputations to make. Mr. Colles is emphatically optimistic, contending that there are fabulous prizes in store for the successful writer and at no distant day. "We are face to face," he thinks, "with a new cosmopolitanism which will work numberless revolutions," every one of them tending to benefit authors, and, presumably, the book trade as well.

"The current of thought is being directed into new and broader channels," which are to lead to results not merely beyond the dreams of avarice, but beyond the imaginations of professed romancers. In the literary world everything is to be changed; there will be a new heaven and a new earth, and in the bliss of incalculable sales the miseries of Grub Street will be remembered no more. "In the coming time, when the pitiful circulations of the past will belong to ancient history, when the world's favorites will be read by millions of eager readers, we may rest assured that we shall have little reason to regret the old vogue."

To the American it must be exceedingly gratifying to learn that much, if not most of the good predicted by Mr. Colles is to be the direct outcome of the American Copyright act,

Literary property being now protected on both sides of the Atlantic, the popular writer of the near future will find himself with an audience more than double that he had before international copyright became a fact—indeed, there is absolutely no limit to the numbers the coming author may address. Meantime, however, Mr. Colles gently warns writers not to expect fortune to immediately flow in upon the British author from America. The total sale of British books in the United States, instead of increasing during, say, the next five years, is likely to diminish; for even favorite authors will not sell so freely at a dollar or dollar and a half as at ten or twenty cents. There has been some misunderstanding on this point, and Mr. Colles does well to give a caution. Moreover, now that the price has gone up, "American readers are beginning to be nice about their fiction." Formerly they seem to have been content with quantity; now they are looking for quality. Yet here again the fates are working in the best interests of the author. The Copyright act having shown that "there is no room in the United States for the mild domestic novel" so much in favor in the past, British novelists will brace themselves for higher achievements. They will thus not only reap a greater pecuniary reward, but have that nobler intellectual satisfaction which is the crowning glory of the literary worker. Again, "the Americans will have nothing to do with the three-volume novel. This may seem hard, but it only means that the British novelist, often to his own immense advantage, must condense. The writers who wilfully insist on having their own way in regard to length are likely to have their books returned by American publishers with monotonous uniformity marked 'no offers.'" This sort of treatment will bring the most headstrong to their senses and redound to the profit of all concerned.

Mr. Colles, of course, dwells almost exclusively upon the advantages the British authors may derive from the reform in our copyright laws, but naturally what may be true of the English author must also be so of the American. Much of what Mr. Colles sees in the future state of the condition of the author may be exaggerated through his optimistic glasses, but we feel that he is not unprophectic in outlining the good times ahead for all concerned in bookmaking. Authors and publishers have at last solid ground under them, and in their prosperity the whole book trade is bound to participate. If the bookseller will but educate himself to know his position and rights and grievances, and formulate the latter, and struggle to obtain the one and abolish the other, as a unit and collectively, these good times will be found closer at hand than many may now think.

SPEAKING OF DRUMMERS.

BY ONE OF THEM.

THE first requisite in a "drummer" or "travelling agent," in modern times, is a stock of good-nature. Whatever the storm within, outwardly he must be as placid and calm as a sunbeam. A friend of ours recently related his experience. In one of our large Western cities he lost a train, and rather than lie idle for half a day determined to call on a large firm, the chief of which had the reputation of being a raging hyena in his relation to drummers. Hence all gave the man a wide berth. Our young friend, however, with not the slightest expectation of making a sale, and to pass away the hours of waiting, ventured to call upon the buying partner. He found him in his office, his feet in a chair, quietly smoking his after-dinner cigar. Showing his card, the drummer said: "I have the honor, sir, to represent the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown." With an ugly and supercilious glare, and in a sarcastic manner, the lordly man replied, the smoke curling over his head, "Well, young man, I have no objection to your representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown, and you may represent them till doomsday for all I care. I don't want you." Quicker than a flash, in the most pleasant manner and with inimitable grace, the young man touched his hat to his majesty, and answered: "I am quite delighted, sir, to hear that you have no objection to my representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown, for, sir, had I the remotest idea that you did object to my representing the firm of Hopkinson, Jones & Brown I should not sleep a wink to-night. Good afternoon." As he quietly turned to walk out of the office the chief called out, "Come back, here, young man! Come back! Show me your samples!" The result was a sale of nearly a thousand dollars and a good customer secured.

CATCHING A BOOKWORM'S HEART.

AN amusing story of how a confirmed old bachelor, who combined with his bachelorhood the qualities of the bibliomaniac, came finally to marry, is told by an English newspaper. It appears that the lonely old bookworm employed an old servant to take care of his rooms. Upon her fell the task of arranging and dusting the library, and she soon came to be smitten with a taste for reading. She began to spend all her earnings in buying books, and, strange to say, they were old books that she bought and read. One afternoon she came in with a parcel of volumes picked up from the book-stalls. Out of curiosity the master turned over the leaves of her treasures, and we can well imagine the more or less supercilious smile that played upon his countenance as he thought of the humorous phase of this old woman turned bibliophile. Suddenly his face lighted up.

"How much did you give for this?" said he, picking up a volume with great eagerness.

"Fifteen pence," was the answer.

"Fifteen pence? Why, this work is worth £1000!" cried the collector. He reflected, when too late, how stupid he had been to speak, and in vain tried to recall his words. "I will give you 50s. for it," said he.

"Sir, you have just told me it was worth £1000."

The old creature was not to be cheated, and the bookworm at last offered £100. It was a first edition, extremely rare, of Montaigne. He was a good buyer, but his servant would not take a fraction less than £1000, which sum was more than he could afford. That night the connoisseur dreamed of Montaigne. At last he could resist no longer. At any price he must have the old book. "This woman takes good care of me; she appears to be smitten with the same passion for old books," said he to himself next. "Why should I not marry her? I should then have my Montaigne."

So he went to her the following day and "popped the question." She accepted him, and they were married.

The clever old dame brought him the book as a dowry.

AN ECCENTRIC BOOKSELLER. — GEN. JOHN M. CORSE.

GEN. JOHN M. CORSE, who died recently in Boston, according to the Muscatine Journal, was an interesting character to Iowa soldiers and incidentally to all who hear the familiar gospel hymn, "Hold the Fort." Corse went out as colonel of the Sixth Iowa, but later he was promoted to a generalship. General Sherman had placed him once in charge of Altoona Pass, in Georgia, and one day he noticed that the Confederates had set in to capture the post and bag Corse's little army. From Kenesaw, in the remote distance, "Uncle Billy" signalled to "hold the fort; reinforcements coming." From height to height the signal was repeated till it was received by the Iowa general. Telling his men to fight as long as they could, and then ten minutes longer, he inspired them with the spirit of demons. He was wounded several times in the battle, but he had been victorious. Next morning he signalled back to General Sherman: "I have lost an ear and a cheek, but can lick all h— yet." He was a man of marked eccentricities. When he returned from school before the war, and was about to enter partnership in a book-store with his father in Burlington, he objected to having the firm "J. L. Corse & Son," and insisted on it being "J. M. Corse & Father."

OBITUARY NOTES.

JAMES A. SADLIER, of the firm of Sadlier & Co., Catholic book publishers, of New York City, died of pneumonia at the Hotel Metropole, May 24, aged 49 years. Mr. Sadlier was a nephew of Dennis and James Sadlier, who in 1836 founded the old publishing house of D. & J. Sadlier at 33 Barclay Street. He conducted, for a number of years, a branch of this house in Montreal, finally succeeding his uncle James as proprietor of the main house. When his brother, William H. Sadlier, died in 1887 he joined his brother's widow in managing the concern at 11 Barclay Street, which is devoted exclusively to the publication of Catholic school-books. Mr. Sadlier got his early education at the School of the Christian Brothers in this city, and was graduated later from the Jesuit College, in Montreal. He became intimately acquainted with many of the higher prelates of the Catholic Church in Canada. He was unmarried.

The limit of membership in this association is 1500, and if the number of members increase as rapidly as this, the limit will soon be reached.

The trade is again reminded that the annual meeting of the association will take place on the evening of the 9th inst. at the trade salesrooms of Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York. As business of special importance is to come before that meeting a full attendance is desirable.

NORTHWESTERN BOOKSELLERS' AND NEWS-DEALERS' ASSOCIATION.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., May 16, 1893.

To the Book and News Trade of the Northwest :

As the secretary of above-named association I am desirous of obtaining the names and addresses of all booksellers and newsdealers in the Northwest, especially Wisconsin and Minnesota, for the purpose of completing a directory of the trade of the Northwest.

By giving the above immediate attention they will not only lessen my labor and confer a favor on the association but obtain a lasting benefit for themselves.

CHAS. D. RAYMER.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

HENRY C. LEA has nearly completed a "History of Auricular Confession and Absolution."

EDMUND GOSSE has collected another volume of his recent contributions to periodicals, which will have the title, "Questions at Issue." It will be issued in style about uniform with his "Gossip in a Library."

SHELDEN L. WHITCOMB, Fellow in Literature at Columbia College, is preparing a "Chronology of American Literature" on the model of Mr. Ryland's most useful chronological tables of English literature.

W. B. YEATS is preparing an anthology of Irish ballads for the forthcoming series of the Library of Ireland. The first book of the series to be issued will be Thomas Davis' unpublished work, "The Patriot Parliament of 1691."

PROF. MCMASTER, we learn, has made such progress with the fourth volume of his "History of the People of the United States" that he expects to see it in the printer's hands in the fall. It relates to the period between 1812 and 1830.

LANGDON MITCHELL, the clever son of Dr. S. Weir Mitchell, a young man whose poems evoked some admiration several years ago, is about to bring out a new book. This will contain many new poems and the best of those already published.

MR. HENRY JONES, better known as "Cavendish," the authority on whist, is at present in this country. Mr. Jones was born in London, England, November 2, 1831. He studied medicine and was a practising physician for about twenty years. He devoted much of his time to the study of his favorite game at cards, and about the year 1854 he founded a "Little School" for whist-players. The notes and records of the long succession of play at this place were all preserved and formed the basis of his book, "Cavendish on Whist," published in 1862. This publication was called out by Dr. Pole's suggestion, in 1861, that the world of whist-players would be glad to get some printed standard of the proper play of possible hands.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

MARGARET DELAND has finished a new novel, which is to be published serially in The Atlantic under the title of "Philip and His Wife."

RICHARD HARDING DAVIS' description of "Three English Race Meetings," illustrated by William Small, one of the cleverest of the British artists in his line, will appear in the July Harper.

UNDER the title "The Opinions of a Philosopher" Robert Grant has begun in the June Scribner a sequel to his "Reflections of a Married Man." The papers will be issued with illustrations.

THE opening chapters of R. D. Blackmore's new story, "Perlycross," appear in the June number of Macmillan's Magazine. "Perlycross" is a romance of the west of England just before the Reform bill of 1832.

WE regret to learn that the publication of that exceedingly useful index, The Weekly Review, has been suspended. It seems to have been one of those aids that every one wanted and but few were willing to support financially.

THE Critic of May 17 gives the result of the voting by its subscribers on the question, Which are the best ten American books? Emerson's "Essays" head the list, with 512 votes, and then follow Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter," with 493; Longfellow's "Poems," with 444; Mrs. Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with 434; Dr. Holmes' "Autocrat," with 388; Irving's "Sketch-Book," with 307; Lowell's "Poems," with 269, and then Whittier, Wallace's "Ben Hur," and Motley's "Dutch Republic."

THE first number of Household News, the new monthly magazine edited by Mrs. S. T. Rorer, is announced for July 1. It will treat of cookery, health, diet, the nursery, kindergarten, architecture, decoration, book reviews and matters in general. Mrs. Rorer is a popular teacher and lecturer on cooking, and she has associated with her as collaborators a corps of distinguished people in their special departments. The magazine will be published in Philadelphia by the Household News Company, Limited.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. C. GLUCKSMANN, of the Berlin Photographic Company, sailed for Europe for a brief stay, on June 3.

A VOLUME on "Authors Identified with Newark" [N. J.] will be published by Mrs. Julia Keese Colles, of that city.

F. T. NEELY, Chicago, announces that he is about concluding the purchase of all plates and copyrights of Ople Read's books.

THE Seaside Library is neither returnable nor exchangeable. The failure of the United States Book Co. left millions of copies of this library in the hands of the dealers.

ALBERT SCOTT & Co., of Chicago, will publish at once Madison's "Journal of the Constitutional Convention." It will be given in one volume with a full index.

FUNK & WAGNALLS have just issued another volume of Dr. Joseph Parker's "The People's Bible." The volume contains more than fifty chapters expository of the text according to Mark and Luke.

MR. S. E. BRIGGS, manager of the New York office of the Fleming H. Revell Company, sailed for England on May 18 by the Augusta Victoria. He expects to return early in July, after brief visits to the principal publishing centres of Great Britain.

WILLIAM L. STONE, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., announces "Ballads of the Burgoyne Campaign," annotated by himself. The volume will include a new poem (not a ballad) by the Rev. O. C. Auringer, entitled "The Episode of Jane McCrea."

A VOLUME of "Williams Verse" has been compiled from the pages of various periodicals conducted in past years by Williams students. It contains 159 poems, and is coming almost immediately from the Knickerbocker press (George P. Putnam's Sons).

WORTHINGTON CO. (J. J. Little, receiver) have issued in the Rose Library "A Southern Heritage," a story of American Southern society, by Wm. Horace Brown; also, in the Fair Library, Ohnet's "The Ironmaster."

GEORGE GOTTSBERGER PECK, New York, has just issued a one-volume edition of "Aspasia," by Robert Hamerling, a natural and well-written story, reproducing the social life of Greece in the days of Pericles and Sophocles.

CHARLES G. CHASE, of Boston, has written and published "That Old Man and His Dream," a small quarto of illustrations in bluish-green tint, pertaining to the face on the mountain at Franconia, N. H. A slight, fanciful text, printed in dark red, accompanies the pictures.

TAIT, SONS & Co. contributed to the New York Press Club Fair copies of the works of twenty celebrated authors, each book bearing the author's signature. An opportunity of enriching their libraries by autograph volumes has never been afforded in this city, or indeed elsewhere, to a like extent.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM announces "Revelation by Character: illustrated from Old Testament lives," by Robert Tuck; "The Epistles of Paul the Apostle: a sketch of their origin and contents," by George G. Findlay; and a new (one volume) edition of Rev. Dr. Fraser's "Synoptical Lectures on the Books of Holy Scripture."

ESTES & LAURIAT, we understand, were the first publishers to be in readiness with their exhibit at the Columbian Exposition. Their latest and best publications are shown off in ebony-black cases and form a noticeable and attractive feature in the department in which they are displayed. The exhibit is in charge of Mr. C. E. Lauriat.

THE CLEVELAND PUBLISHING Co., 19 Union Square, New York City, have just issued a book by Irene Osgood, entitled "The Shadow of Desire." It is a story of a beautiful young American girl who fortunately marries a very good Englishman whose influence educates her and finally teaches her to control her very unruly and spasmodic affections.

JOHN A. TAYLOR, of the firm of John A. Taylor & Co., of Toronto and New York, left his office at 10 Vandewater Street, New York, May 16, and has not been heard from since. Mr. Taylor is about thirty-six years old and lives in Toronto, where he has a wife and five children. He was a man of temperate habits and no reason for his mysterious disappearance is known.

HOWARD LOCKWOOD & Co., New York, have just issued the ninth part of their valuable "American Dictionary of Printing and Book-making," covering the alphabet from Mus to Persian. This excellent book is issued in quarterly parts and is presented without cost to subscribers to the American Bookmaker, a journal which has been steadily growing in value and importance.

"TALES FROM TOWN TOPICS," No. 8, including a $1000 prize story, entitled "Six Months in Hades," has just been published by the Town Topics Publishing Co., 21 W. 23d Street, New York, and proves to be rich with the humor and spice characteristic of the society journal from which it takes its name. The special novel is bright, and the selected matter is most agreeable summer reading.

THE trade will bear in mind that there are two books entitled "Japan as We Saw It." The one is by Robert S. Gardiner, and was published last November by the Rand-Avery Supply Co., of Boston. The other is by M. Bickersteth, with a preface by the Bishop of Exeter, and has just been issued by Sampson Low, Marston & Co. It is unfortunate that the same title should have been chosen for two different books on the same subject.

MISS LARCOM intended to write a sequel to her "New England Girlhood," giving such facts and experiences as would interest those who read her books. She gave much thought to it, but never wrote it. We learn from Houghton, Mifflin & Co. that the book will be written by a near relative of Miss Larcom, who is peculiarly qualified for the task, and who will be aided by friends to whom Miss Larcom talked very fully concerning the proposed book.

GINN & Co. have made arrangements with Alphonse Daudet for a volume of selections from his works and he has written a piece specially for this volume. The book is designed for use in high school and college classes, and will be specially annotated for this use by Professor Frank

W. Freeborn, of the Boston Latin School. They will publish in September Tacitus' "Dialogus de Oratoribus," edited with prolegomena, critical and exegetical commentary, indexes and a bibliography, by Alfred Gudeman, of Johns Hopkins University.

A SERIES of six volumes from Harper & Brothers, to be sold at the Columbian Exposition as souvenirs, will be known as the Distaff Series. They have not only been written and edited but have been printed and bound by women, and the designs of the covers were made by women. Two of the six will soon be ready. They are "The Higher Education of Women," edited by Anna C. Brackett, and the "Literature of Philanthropy," edited by Frances A. Goodale. The entire set has been compiled under the supervision of Mrs. Frederick P. Bellamy.

AN interesting addition has just been made to the Baedeker Guide-Books, in a new volume devoted to the United States, including, also, an excursion into Mexico. It has been prepared by Mr. J. F. Muirhead, the compiler of Baedeker's "Guide to Great Britain," and the general manager of the English editions of the Baedeker Guides, and is issued by Charles Scribner's Sons, the American agents of the Baedeker Guides. Mr. Muirhead has spent three years in this country, traversing every section of it and gathering his material with the utmost care. The volume contains numerous maps and is fully up to date. As a feature of special interest the volume contains introductory chapters on "A Short History of American Politics," by J. B. McMaster; "Constitution and Government of the United States," by James Bryce; "Physiography of America," by Prof. N. S. Shaler, and other subjects by equally eminent authorities. American readers will be much interested in seeing our own country treated with the same fulness and exactness of detail that they have found in the Baedeker foreign guide-books.

THE American Protective Society of Authors held morning and evening sessions on May 18 in Chicago to discuss the wrongs of authors, the copyright laws and the measures needed to put author and publisher on an equal footing. Mrs. M. D. Lincoln, who writes under the pseudonym of "Bessie Beech," presided, and in a short address described the aims of the organization and the methods by which it proposes to protect writers. Addresses were delivered by Mrs. Katherine Hodges, secretary of the society, on "Protection of Brain Work;" by Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, who in a novelette entitled "Between Two Fires" described the author as beset on one side by the fraudulent publisher, and on the other side by the plagiarist; and by Emily Thornton Charles ("Emily Hawthorne"), who spoke of "Copyright Laws and Their Effect on American Literature." Other papers were read by Mrs. Lelia P. Roby, Mrs. Kate Brownlee Sherwood, Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher, "Grace Greenwood" and other women writers. Both morning and evening sessions were well attended.

THE CENTURY Co. have just issued the bound half yearly volume of the The Century, containing the numbers from November, 1892, to April, 1893. Like its predecessors, the volume is a veritable treasure-house of literature. Fiction holds an important place in the table of contents, being represented by such writers as T. B. Aldrich, Octave Thanet, Brander Matthews, Edward Eggleston, F. Hopkinson Smith, Grace King, Thomas Nelson Page and Mark Twain. Among the serials are Mrs. Burton Harrison's "Sweet Bells Out of Tune," illustrated by C. D. Gibson; Wolcott Balestier's "Benefits Forgot" and Dr. Washington Gladden's "Cosmopolis City Club." Biographical papers are numerous and interesting. Tennyson, Browning, Whittier, Curtis, Liszt, Massenet and Millet are among the subjects, and excellent portraits accompany every article. There are finely illustrated papers on the World's Fair, the trial of the Chicago anarchists and topics of general interest; a vivid account of the Paris Commune, by Archibald Forbes; descriptive papers by T. A. Janvier and the Pennells; and poems by Kipling, Aldrich, James Whitcomb Riley and others. The departments are full of interest.

FOREIGN NOTES.

ZOLA's new novel, "Doctor Pascal," is just coming out in book form.

THE tercentenary of the birth of old Izaak Walton is to be celebrated in England on the 9th of August next. The spot is Stafford. Representatives from all the English angling clubs are to attend this merry-making.

MR. STEVENSON's book on the recent Samoan troubles—"A Footnote to History"—has been burned in Germany, and Tauchnitz, who published it, has been heavily fined. The author's narrative was severely critical of German conduct in Samoa.

T. FISHER UNWIN will publish immediately two new volumes of the Children's Library. One is an edition of Taylor's translation of "The Pentamerone, or, the story of stories," revised and edited by Miss Helen Zimmern, with reproductions of the original designs by George Cruikshank. The other is an English adaptation for children, executed by R. Eivind, of thirty-eight stories from the Kalevala, the illustrations being derived from Finnish sources.

THE Japanese have learned another "trick" of civilization. As Japan has not yet made arrangements with other nations for the protection of their authors' rights the Japanese publishers and booksellers promptly reprint any work for which there may be a demand. So conscientious are they in reprinting that they add even the name and address of the printer of the original. As the reprints sell for considerably less than half of the price of the original, and as the Japs believe in patronizing the home market, English and American publishers will find them poor customers until they have an "awakening of the moral sense."

THE collection of book-plates is now a recognized pastime, and there are half a dozen books devoted to the sport and as many dealers making a specialty of ex libris. The latest development in this taste is highly comic. A Parisian dealer, M. L. Joly, noting with regret that many celebrated people of the past had no book-plates, has kindly determined to supply them. He announces a series of "Ex-libris imaginaires et supposés de personnages célèbres anciens et modernes," and he begins with the book-plates of Poe and of Brillat-Savarin—a strange conjunction. Probably we shall have in time the plate which identified the owner of the nine books of the Sibyl.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CONCORD, N. H.—W. S. Siegel, of Louisville, Conn., formerly manager of the book department of the Baptist Book Co. of that place, has taken charge of book and stationery department in the store of Woodbury E. Hunt.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Wayside Publishing Company, 142 and 144 Worth Street, is another offshoot of the new Lovell combination.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Commercial Advertiser says: "J. Willson Wilson, the noted stationer of Harlem, was once Brentano's head clerk. He began in a modest way on his own account, and has now one of the finest establishments in the upper part of the city. Personally, he is most entertaining and popular. He can imitate to perfection the famous tragedians, and his mimetic powers are great. A Scotchman by birth, he came here many years ago and concluded to remain. His fund of humor is inexhaustible, and no one ever finds him unruffled or unable to indulge in badinage."

NEW YORK CITY.—Owing to the mysterious disappearance of John A. Taylor, several of his creditors have obtained attachments against his estate.

NEW YORK CITY.—Macmillan & Co. will remove to their new headquarters in No. 66 Fifth Avenue, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Streets, some time this month.

PORTLAND, ME.—George Gladstone Craven is now with the well-known Stevens & Jones Co., wholesale and retail stationers.

PORTLAND, ORE.—Stuart & Thompson, booksellers and stationers, have incorporated under the name of Stuart & Thompson Company—E. C. Stuart, president; J. L. Thompson, vice-president; and E. H. Kilham (for the past ten years with J. K. Gill & Co.) secretary. The new corporation will continue as heretofore to handle a complete line of books and stationery for the wholesale and retail trade. Mr. E. C. Stuart is now east for a few weeks stay in Chicago and New York. Mr. Thompson expects to be in Chicago during July, and hopes to meet many old friends in the book line.

STOCKTON, CAL.—Herbert Baldwin, bookseller and stationer, has sold out.

WILLIAMSPORT, PA.—John M. Dean, the well-known bookseller, we are glad to hear, is recovering from a serious fall through which he sustained a fracture of several ribs.

WINNIPEG, CANADA.—Winnipeg, according to Books and Notions, is to have an important addition to its book and stationery establishments. The new firm will be known as Hart & McPherson, the principals of which will be Mr. J. A. Hart, late of Ferguson & Co., of that city, and Mr. McPherson, who has been for some years the Canadian representative of Wm. Collins, Sons & Co., of Glasgow. The premises formerly occupied by Furner's millinery establishment on Main Street, south of Portage Avenue, have been secured by Messrs. Hart & McPherson. A new front has been put in the store and it is now being fitted up in first-class style, to be ready for opening about the middle of May. Mr. Hart, who is a nephew of Rev. Prof. Hart, is well known to the people of Winnipeg, having for years been connected with the book and stationery business here. His father is widely known as one of the leading stationers in Eastern Canada. Mr. McPherson is also well and favorably known to many Winnipeg business houses.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

Ruby Gladstone;

Or,

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgiven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

For sale by all booksellers, or will be sent on receipt of price. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

ST. LOUIS.

An Adventure in Photography.

By OCTAVE THANET. Illustrated from Photographs by the Adventurers. 12mo, $1.50 net.

A bright, vivacious narrative, with a spice of humor and a dash of high spirits, of the adventures, successes and failures of two amateur photographers who are forced to depend largely upon their own ingenuity. Their entertaining experiences show what may be done by any amateur without a very large expenditure of time or money. The illustrations from their own portfolios are an unusually interesting feature of the book.

Arthur Bonnicastle.

By Dr. J. G. HOLLAND. Scribner's Yellow Paper Cover Series. 12mo, 50 cents.

So great popularity attended the release recently in paper covers of Dr. Holland's novel, "Sevenoaks," that his equally successful story, "Arthur Bonnicastle," is now brought out in similar cheap and convenient form.

Theism.

By ROBERT FLINT, DD., LL.D., Professor of Divinity in the University of Edinburgh. 12mo, $1.50 net.

A new edition at a greatly reduced price of a standard theological work, the high value of which has long been tested by clergymen, educators and students.

The Profession of Bookselling,

A Handbook of Practical Hints for the Apprentice and Bookseller.

By A. GROWOLL,

Managing Editor of "The Publishers' Weekly."

"The author has collected a stupendous mass of information on his subject, and manages to impart his knowledge with admirable brevity and clearness. . . . It treats of everything that he ought to know, and of most things in which he can be even remotely interested. . . . If accuracy and fulness of information avail, the young man who masters Mr. Growoll's book can scarcely help making his mark in the world."—London Publishers' Circular.

"A volume, attractively printed, that deserves a place among reference-books by reason of its bibliography. Here are lists of works fitted to impart to the bookseller (and to the general reader) a general knowledge of the field of English and American literature, of Continental literature, of the classical and oriental, etc.; lists of trade catalogues, of library catalogues, of trade journals and literary journals; and a broad reference library. . . . For its main purpose this is an excellent manual."—The Nation.

"Booksellers in this country [England] will find this work both useful and entertaining."—London Bookman.

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 28 Elm St., New York.

NOW READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

Including Periodicals, American and English, Essays, Book-Chapters, Etc., Special Bibliographies and Necrology of Authors. Edited by W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

Bound uniform with Poole's Index and the "A. L. A. Index," in one vol., cloth, $3.50.

New and Powerful Fiction.

The Last Sentence.

By MAXWELL GRAY, author of "The Silence of Dean Maitland," "The Reproach of Annesley," "In the Heart of the Storm," etc. Illustrated by A. G. Reinhart. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"A story strong in plot and character-drawing, rich in the accessions of an abundant imagination, and its central movement has a psychological potency that it would be difficult to match in the writings of any novelist since Hawthorne. 'The Last Sentence' may be, without reservation, accepted as one of the really significant novels of the year. It will bear more than a single reading, and its merits are more likely to be appreciated at a third than a first perusal."—Boston Beacon.

Dearest.

By Mrs. FORRESTER, author of "I Have Lived and Loved," "My Hero," "Diana Carew," "Fair Women," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Written with the good taste and the good breeding which are characteristic of all Mrs. Forrester's works. It gives us two types which reveal at once the author's knowledge of the world and her self-restraint—for either the one or the other might easily have run into caricature in less skilful hands."—London World.

The Doomswoman.

By GERTRUDE ATHERTON, author of "Hermia Suydam," "Los Cerritos," "A Question of Time," etc. 16mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00.

"Full of incident, passion, color and character."—The Critic.

"A powerful dramatic representation of old California life."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Kitty's Father.

By FRANK BARRETT, author of "The Admirable Lady Biddy Fane," "A Smuggler's Secret," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. Holyrood Series, paper, 50 cents.

"Mr. Barrett has the true gift of the story-teller. He seldom fails to interest his readers."—Speaker.

"A thoroughly absorbing plot, well worked out, and interesting right up to the last page."—Punch.

Oriole's Daughter.

By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, author of "The First Violin," "A March in the Ranks," "Healey," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

"Unquestionably an artistic piece of fiction."—Boston Beacon.

"In fine, 'Oriole's Daughter' is a book which will maintain the author's reputation for refined portraiture and sound workmanship."—Athenaeum.

Cosmopolis.

By PAUL BOURGET. Authorized edition. Large 12mo, cloth gilt, $1.50; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

"'Cosmopolis' is emphatically a purposeful novel."—Chautauquan.

"A work of extraordinary power and deep interest."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Bourget has given us a series of portraits which are elaborated and refined. . . . 'Cosmopolis' is an admirable piece of portraiture in all ways."—New York Tribune.

Christine.

By ADELINE SERGEANT, author of "Beyond Recall," "A Life Sentence," etc. 12mo, cloth ornamental, $1.00; paper, 50 cents. Holyrood Series.

• "A healthful, kindly story."—Christian Union.

"'Christine' has a finished quality that in the artistic sense is exceedingly agreeable. The narrative has plenty of effective contrasts, and the descriptive passages are admirable in suggestiveness."—Boston Beacon.

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. S. OGILVIE, New York, has just issued "Articles, Speeches and Poems of Carlyle W. Harris," edited by "Carl's mother" (Hope Ledyard). The volume contains a portrait of Harris, a full history of his life and trial, his speech before the Recorder, comments of the press, and a statement by his mother.

HARPER & BROTHERS will issue shortly in their Black and White Series "The Decision of the Court," a one-act play by Brander Matthews, which was produced last winter by the Theatre of Arts and Letters in New York. They also announce as nearly ready in book form the series of articles printed in Harper's Bazar, by Caroline A. Greevey, under the title of "Recreations in Botany."

GEORGE WRIGHT, 121 Fulton Street, New York City, has issued the fourth and World's Fair edition of "Wright's Australia, India, China and Japan Trade Directory and Gazetteer." The book includes also directories of Canada, Mexico, South and Central America, the West Indies and South Africa. It has been revised by the postmasters throughout the British colonies, and is said to be the most complete book of the sort ever published. It is intended chiefly as a guide for exporters and manufacturers who wish to open trade with the countries named.

GINN & Co. announce "Educational Sewing Squares for Primary Work," designed and copyrighted by Olive C. Hapgood. These squares are intended for use in the primary schools, connecting the card-sewing of the kindergarten with the free-hand sewing of the grammar school. They consist of sheets of white cotton cloth, eighteen inches square, each being stamped with sixteen designs representing geometric forms and objects to be sewed in connection with the form study, drawing and observation lessons of the class. Eight kinds of stitches are plainly marked on the cloth, serving as a guide for the child.

T. Y. CROWELL & Co. have just ready "Repudiation of State Debts in the United States," by Prof. William A. Scott, of the University of Wisconsin. The volume, which is the second in the excellent Library of Economics and Politics, deals with an important phase of American finance in a manner which should make it of practical importance not only to scholars interested in financial history but to those concerned with business investments as well. They also announce "Theology of the Old Testament," by Rev. Ch. Piepenbring, of Strassburg, translated by Prof. Mitchell, of the Boston University. It is a brief and lucid exposition of Old Testament teaching, valuable to all students of theological science.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

BARTHELEMY SAINT HILAIRE, now in his eighty-eighth year, is writing a three-volume biography of Victor Cousin.

"BROWN, THE LAWYER," a dramatic story, by Albert P. Southwick, will be issued shortly. Mr. Southwick has also a complete novel, entitled "A Fact in Fiction," in the July number of Godey's Magazine.

WILLIAM WINTER, with the late Mr. Booth's knowledge and approval, has been for some time past engaged in the preparation of a biography of Edwin Booth. In addition to a sketch of his life there will be descriptions of the various characters in which he has appeared, including, among others, Hamlet, Macbeth, King Lear, Richard III., Brutus, Wolsey, Richelieu, Don Caesar and Claude Melnotte. The work will be published by Macmillan & Co. under the title of "The Life and Art of Edwin Booth," in two editions, one uniform with the two volumes of "Shadows of the Stage," already published, the other a large-paper limited edition with illustrations taken from portraits of Mr. Booth in his principal characters.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles. D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl., nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

*Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts of the state of New York; with notes; with an analytical index to all points of law and practice and all code citations contained in the standard reports of N. Y. issued during the period covered by this v. V. 29. N. Y., The Diossy Law-Book Co., 1893. c. 7+43+552 p. O. shp., $5.

Allen, Grant. The scallywag. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] 5+437 p. D. cl., $1.

Continental society at Mentone is humorously delineated, and English society at Oxford is described with some sarcasm. The chief characters are a clever English adventuress, born in the purlieus of White-chapel, speaking sundry European languages, who passes as an Austrian countess, and the Hebraic money-lender Solomons, who carefully educates the "Scallywag" in order that he may marry an heiress and become a baronet.

Permanent ed., Nov. 2, 1892-Mar. 15, 1893; with tables of Atlantic cases published in v. 84, Me. reports; 147, 151 and 152, Pa. state reports. A table of statutes cited and construed is given in the index. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1893. c. 14+1243 p. O. (National reporter system, state ser.) shp., $4.

Ayres, M. C., comp. Phillips Brooks in Boston: five years' editorial estimates; with an introd. by W. J. Tucker, D.D. Bost., G. H. Ellis, 1893. 2+119 p. T. cl., 50 c.

Editorial estimates of certain characteristics of Dr. Brooks published in the columns of the Boston Daily Advertiser during a space of five years.

Balzac, Honoré de. The Brotherhood of Consolation; tr. by Katharine Prescott Wormeley. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 4+329 p. D. hf. rus., $1.50.

The scene is laid in the old part of Paris, 1836. The hero, who is only known as Godefroid, is a careless young fellow who has wasted his life and fortune. Dreaming of a newer and better life, and seeking to reduce his expenses by moving into cheaper lodgings, he drifts into the house of Madame De la Chanterie, a beautiful aristocratic woman, past middle age, who is the central figure of "The Brotherhood of Consolation." The little band thus known have all had bitter experiences in life, several of them being noble persons who have suffered through the Revolution. They live as if in a monastery, meditating upon the "Imitation of Christ" and performing wide-spread acts of secret charity among the poor and vicious. Godefroid only learns this and their individual histories after a term of probation. He is given a case to investigate as his initiation into the "Brotherhood." Its details are rich in romance and have a dramatic bearing upon the sad and cruel experience of Madame De la Chanterie.

Barrie, J. M. Two of them. N. Y., Lovell, Coryell & Co., [1893.] c. 2-282 p. il. D. (Lovell's illustrated ser., no. 16.) pap., 50 c.

The stories embraced in this collection are in the lighter vein of the humorous English journalist rather than in that of the strong and quaint delineator of Scottish character. There are a half dozen sketches of a literary and semi-critical nature, such as "Woman and the press," "A plea for smaller books," "The lost works of George Meredith," "The humor of Dickens," "What is Scott's best novel?" etc.

Beach, D. Nelson. The newer religious thinking. Bost., Little, Brown & Co., 1893. c. 230 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The sermons collected under the above title were preached late in 1892 by a Trinitarian Congregational pastor of Cambridge, Mass., and attracted much attention. The "Newer religious thinking" considered in the sermons is not one or two doctrines, or the position of a particular school of thought, but is, rather, the trend and movement of the time in religion.

*Beale, Jos. H. A selection of cases and other authorities upon criminal law. Pt. 1. Cambridge, Mass., [Harvard Co-operative Assoc.,] 1893. c. 94 p. O. pap., 75 c.

Beecher, Rev. H. Ward. The original Plymouth pulpit sermons of H. Ward Beecher in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn; from stenographic notes by T. J. Ellinwood. New ed. [2 v. in 1 v.] In 5 v. V. 3, incl. v. 5 of old ser., Sept. 1870, to March, 1871, and v. 6, March to September, 1871. N. Y., Fords, Howard & Hulbert, 1893. c. '70. 451+3-514 p. O. cl., net, (for set of five volumes.) $12.50.

* In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received. Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.

Bell, Lilian. The love-affairs of an old maid. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 8+188 p. S. cl., $1.25.

"To-morrow I shall be an old maid," writes the author on the eve of her thirtieth birthday. The love-affairs of an old maid are those of other people delightfully told, and full of noble thoughts for the married and unmarried. The chapter headings show the ground covered: Matrimony in harness; Women as lovers; The heart of a coquette; The lonely childhood of a clever child; A study in human geese; A game of hearts; The madonna of the quiet mind; The pathos of faith; The hazard of a human die; In which I willingly turn my face westward.

Benson, Rev. R. M. Divine Exodus. V. 3, Pt. 2, The final Passover: a series of meditations upon the Passover of our Lord Jesus Christ. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 12+454 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Black, W: Yolande: the story of a daughter. New [uniform] and rev. ed. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 5+483 p. D. cl., 80 c.

Bloomington, J. S. Annual digest of insurance decisions, being an abridgment of all the opinions handed down by the supreme, circuit and district courts of the United States, and the courts of last resort in all the states of the Union, embracing the essential points of both law and fact of fire, marine, life, accident, fidelity, and other branches of insurance, [etc.,] together with a table of abbreviations; table of cases reported, [etc.,] 1891-92. V. 4. Chic., The Investigator Co., 1893. c. 22+5-489 p. O. shp., $4.

Brooks, Arthur, D.D. Phillips Brooks. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 50 p. por. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The sermon preached by the brother of Phillips Brooks in the Church of the Incarnation, New York City, shortly after the death of the great preacher.

Brown, W: Horace. A southern heritage. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1893. c. '92. 4-268 p. il. D. (International lib.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Just before the War of the Rebellion the father of Howard Estill, a Southern cotton factor, foreseeing the impending financial crisis, converted his real estate into money. He afterward died in the rebel service. Mr. Estill's lawyer plays upon the inexperience of his client's son, and as a result the whereabouts of Howard's inheritance is a mystery. There is a romance interwoven.

Business-man's handbook, 1st ed., 1892; cont. business laws, condensed, such as formation of corporations, according to the laws of different states; patent laws; laws of copyright; contracts and agreements, [etc.,] ed. by R. Chadwick, J: White. George William Curtis: an address. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 3+76 p. por. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The annual address on the evening of February 22, before the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, provided for by its founder, Augustus Graham. One year before George William Curtis delivered the address on James Russell Lowell, which has already been published in this series.

Chandler, Bessie. A woman who failed and others. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1893. c. 4-343 p. D. cl., $1.

Contains beside the title-story: A silent soul; Esther Godwin's geese; Margaret's romance; A victim of prejudice; The middle Miss Tallman; A Thanksgiving wedding; Miss Polly Atherton's bell; Uncle Nathan's ear-trumpet; The turning of the worm. Almost all have their scenes in the Middle and Western States, and several of them are Thanksgiving stories.

Columbus, Christopher. The letter of Columbus on the discovery of America: a fac-simile reprint of the pictorial edition of 1493; with a literal translation and an introd. 2d ed. N. Y., printed by order of the Trustees of the Lenox Library, 1893. 48 p. D. pap., 25 c. See notice of first edition, "Weekly Record," P. W., Jan. 21, '93, [1005]

This is a souvenir of the monastery of La Rabida, an exhibit of the World's Columbian Exposition, in which is shown the portraits of Columbus and pictures of the various monuments erected to his memory. It is a catalogue with pictures and descriptions prepared by the chief of the Latin-American Bureau and Historical Section.

Day, Oscar F. G. A crown of shame. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., [1893.] c. 4+309 p. por. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 2, no. 41.) pap., 50 c.

A story of Minneapolis, Minn., illustrating the hardships and injustice which the law often visits upon a man placed upon trial for a criminal offence who has neither friends nor money. The hero of the story is the victim of a conspiracy which makes him appear guilty of assault and robbery.

De Leon, T. C. Juny; or, only one octoroon's story: a romance of the society crust—upper and under. St. Paul, Minn., The Price-McGill Co., [1893.] c. '89. 4-273 p. il. D. (Idle moments ser., no. 22.) pap., 50 c. See notice, "Weekly Record," P. W., March 8, 1890, [945.]

Dick's (W. B.) yachting and sailing: cont. practical instructions in all that pertains to the construction, rigging and management of sloop, schooner, yawl, etc. N. Y., Dick & Fitzgerald, 1893. il. 16°, cl., 75 c.

Douglas, Amanda M. Larry. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. 6+242 p. por. D. (Good company ser., no. 27) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

This story won the $2000 prize offered by the Youth's Companion. Larry was a waif picked up in the streets of New York and sent West by the agents of the Children's Aid Society. A coarse and brutal farmer was expected to take him into his service, but when the practised eye of the employer saw the thin, wan and delicate boy, he refused to receive him. A single woman, who was a most successful farmer and manager, and had a heart as well as a head, was moved by pity for the friendless boy, and took him home with her.

Doyle, A. Conan. Micah Clarke: his statement as made to his three grandchildren, Joseph, Gervas and Reuben, during the hard winter of 1734. Illustrated 13th ed. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1893. 8+423 p. 8°, cl., $1.25.

Duncan, Sara Jeannette, [now Mrs. E. C. Cotes.] The simple adventures of a memsahib; il. by F. H. Townsend. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. 4+311 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

An entertaining story of a young English girl who goes out to India, where she is married and makes her home. "Memsahib" is the Indian term for a married lady, and the "simple adventures" of young Mrs. Browne, her perplexities with native servants, native fashions of housekeeping and all the queer customs of her adopted home, are told with the freshness and spontaneous humor which marked Mrs. Cotes' two previous books, "An American girl in London" and "A social departure."

Dwight, Ja., M.D. Practical lawn tennis. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 13+168 p. il. S. cl., $1.25.

In 1886 the author wrote a little book on lawn tennis, which was published by Wright & Ditson, Boston. Since then the game has changed so much that he "feels justified in attempting another book." He does not dwell upon the growth of the game nor the changes, but writes an exhaustive account of all its intricacies.

Easton, Arago. Mortal man. Chic., The Easton Co., P. O. Box 1044, 1893. c. '92. 47 p. sq. S. pap., 25 c.

A rhymed essay on the birth, life and death of man. The author does not believe in any immortality except to live "on history's page."

Guthrie, F. Anstey, ["F. Anstey."] Mr. Punch's pocket Ibsen: a collection of some of the master's best-known dramas condensed, revised and slightly rearranged for the benefit of the earnest student. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. c. 5-228 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Burlesques of four of Ibsen's well-known plays: "Rosmersholm," "Nora," "Hedda Gabler" and "The wild duck." Added to these is a concluding piece, entitled "Pill-Doctor Herdal," which the author says, "is, as the observant reader will instantly perceive, rather a reverent attempt to tread in the footsteps of the Norwegian dramatist than a version of any actually existing masterpiece." Originally appeared in Punch.

Hale, E: Everett. A New England boyhood. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] 24+267 p. D. cl., $1.

Miss Lucy Larcom's "A New England girlhood" suggested to the editor of the Atlantic Monthly that a story covering the same ground for boys would be attractive. About half of this book appeared in that magazine in 1892. The reminiscences begin in Boston in 1828, when the author was four years old, and end with his graduation from Harvard University. Full of comments on schools, churches, lectures, college life, and the city of Boston, which was then inhabited by people who meant to make this "the purest, noblest and best city in the world."

school: an essay; with illustrative class exercises, and an outline of the work for the last three years of the grammar school. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1893. c. 4-52 p. D. pap., 25 c.

Author is assistant professor of the history and art of teaching at the Harvard University. This book has grown out of his lectures to the teachers of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades; it comprises a discussion of the subject-matter to be selected for grammar school work in geometry, the method of teaching, illustrative class exercises, etc.

Contents: The Arctic problem; Polar expeditions; The Spitzbergen route to the Pole; The Peary relief expedition; A lost companion; The Greenland ice-cap and its glaciers. These papers are mainly records of personal experiences in the north and reflections upon the best method of attaining the object which has so long baffled the energies of the hardy explorer. A portion of the work has already appeared in narrative form in Scribner's, and another portion is an amplification of an address delivered before the Geographical Club of Phila.

Lean, Mrs. Francis, [formerly Florence Marryat.] Parson Jones. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 2+357 p. D. cl., $1.

A quiet Welsh village is the scene of Parson Jones' struggle with conscience. Bred up from childhood to the ministry his content in his vocation is at last disturbed by the arguments of a member of a Christian brotherhood known as "Literalists." Later he is beset by another and stronger temptation, which he sets himself to conquer, and at last he finds peace again by casting in his lot with the brotherhood and making, with his family, a new home out of England. The story deals chiefly with English middle-class life.

The scene is Virginia about eighteen years ago. "Broadoaks," the home of an old Virginia family, shelters the heroine, who wins the love of two men; one is a mining engineer of New England birth, who had been sent South by a New York syndicate to take charge of a mining venture in the mineral belt of Piedmont, Va.; the other is a gallant young Southerner. The two men are well contrasted in their aims, opinions and characters. The love-story, scenes illustrating negro superstition, and the supposed finding of a rich gold vein, make up a very readable volume.

His preface says: "In this little treatise two things are attempted that at first might appear incompatible. One of them is to put the study of logical formulæ on a historical basis. . . . The other aim is to increase the power of logic as a practical discipline."

Morgan, Emily Malbone. Madonnas of the smoke; or, our "Mary's meadow." N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1893.] c. 4-38 p. D. pap., 25 c.

A number of girls in a large manufacturing city banded themselves into a working-girls' club. After they were organized a young girl who addressed them one evening presented them with a photograph of one of Raphael's madonna. This incident led to the girls' calling themselves the Madonnas. Later, one of the girls proposes a project to rent a meadow. The story tells of the cause to which the Madonnas devoted their meadow.

Y., Funk & Wagnalls Co., 1893. c. 8+389 p. il. D. (Columbian historical novels, no. 7.) cl., $1.50.

The narrative covers twenty years in the history of the United States, 1680 to 1700, including all the principal features and events of the gruesome yet romantic period which witnessed the last spasmodic throes of dying superstition. Charles Stevens, of Salem, with Cora Waters, an indented slave, whose father was captured at the time of the overthrow of the Duke of Monmouth, are the principal characters. Samuel Parris, the chief actor in the Salem tragedy, is a serious study. Cotton Mather and other advocates of witchcraft appear.

My wickedness: a psychological study. N. Y., The Cleveland Pub. Co., 19 Union Sq., 1893. 2-88 p. D. pap., 35 c.

The story is told in the first person by a criminal lunatic confined in Charenton for murdering a young girl. He gives in detail the events of a life which chiefly consisted of a series of cruelties, and traces his wickedness, for which he has no remorse, to the forces of heredity and an unknown parentage.

A Russian sub-deacon, aged twenty-eight, is the husband of a nervous, dying wife and the father of six ragged, healthy, noisy children. His efforts to increase his salary by becoming a priest are narrated. The Russian church decrees that a widower cannot be made a priest before the age of forty. The dying wife sends the deacon from her death-bed to be made priest before it is too late. "An occasional holiday" also tells a harrowing story of poverty and human misery in Russia.

Preble, H., and Hull, Lawrence C. Latin lessons, designed to prepare for the intelligent reading of classical Latin prose. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1893. c. 10+417 p. maps, D. hf. mor., net, $1.12.

This book contains a clear, concise and accurate treatment of those matters essential to the foundation of a thorough knowledge of Latin; it will train the pupil to read Latin rather than to label ablatives; and it will introduce the pupil early both to an appreciation of the spirit of the Latin language and to an enjoyment of Latin literature. It will be found especially strong in its treatment of the order of the words in Latin sentences, and in the method adopted for inducing the pupil to attack courageously new difficulties as he meets them.

Miss Scidmore's work should be an authority on the subject, as she has already written a work on Alaska, and spent much time there. She first describes the Puget Sound country, and then takes the tourist to Vancouver's Island and the coast of British Columbia on his way to the wonderful scenery and curious aboriginal life of Alaska. The many summer excursions made to Alaska make this volume timely. There is a four-page list of books of reference at the end, embracing the most easily accessible books concerning Alaska and the northwest coast.

Swan, Annie S., [Mrs. Burnett Smith.] Twice tried. Cin., O., Cranston & Curts, 1893. 4-256 p. il. D. cl., 75 c.

Robert Angus, a young Scotch banker, marries a shallow but beautiful woman, who elopes soon after their marriage. This shock causes Robert much suffering. But finally time and fate conspire to make him forget his troubles, and he marries a second time. At this juncture, when Angus has prophetic visions of a happy future, he learns that his first wife is still living. These latter developments bring about strange situations and a romantic conclusion.

"The house on the beach" was a small dilapidated dwelling which was the home of Ralph Kent, an educated and refined man, who had degenerated through the vice of intemperance into a social, moral and physical wreck. In the results that attend his crippled daughter's efforts to rescue her father from his besetting sin, and in the final fate of Ralph, is seen the hopelessness of the drunkard's condition and the dire control which this sin holds over individual life.

Yonge, Charlotte M. Grisly Grisell; or, the laidly lady of Whitburn: a tale of the wars of the roses. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1898. c. 4+300 p. D. cl., $1.

When the story opens Grisell Dacre is a fair, rosy child of Yorkist family in the household of the Countess of Salisbury, betrothed to Leonard Copeland, of the Lancastrian faction. She is nearly killed by a powder explosion, which disfigures her for life. The betrothal is broken off, and Grisell is nursed to health in a convent, where she learns gentleness and patience. At sixteen she returns to her rude northern home, where her recreant lover is captured and allowed to choose whether he will "wed or hang." They are married, and young Copeland leaves his detested bride. Through all the dangers arising from the fall of Lancaster, Grisell devotes herself to him unknown, and her affection and self-sacrifice finally win his love. The scene changes from England to the court of the Duke of Burgundy at Bruges.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 10, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications. All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help therunto."—LORD BACON.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

THE fourteenth annual meeting of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association was held on the evening of the 7th inst., at the salesroom of Messrs. Bangs & Co., 739 Broadway, New York. Owing to the important business to be brought before the meeting a larger number of members than usually attend were present. The president, Mr. C. T. Dillingham, called the meeting to order promptly at eight o'clock, and in a brief address surveyed the work of the Association during the past, and urged those present to renew their efforts to swell the membership to the maximum number—1500.

The first business in order was the consideration of the amendments printed in our issue of May 13.

The amendments, it may be stated here, were drawn up to meet certain verbal requirements of the new life insurance laws of the State of New York, and do not materially affect the spirit of the Constitution of the Association. The amendments were unanimously adopted, with the following exceptions :

SEC. 4 of Article III. is to remain unchanged. Mr. Wing demurring to the age limit at which a former member of the Association may be re-instated, who may be willing to pay such sums as may have been imposed during his non-connection with it, and who may be in good health. In this Mr. Wing was heartily supported by all present.

SEC. 6 of Article XV. was modified by omitting the first sentence, viz.: "The Reserve Fund so constituted shall remain intact and undiminished, and be increased from time to time during the existence of the Association."

Next came the election of trustees to serve for the next three years. Charles A. Burckhardt, John T. Ryan, Robert Morris, C. J. Kane and Andrew Geyer were the fortunate candidates.

The secretary, Mr. Wilbur B. Ketcham, then read the following report :

To the members of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association.

GENTLEMEN: We submit this, our Fourteenth Annual Report with peculiar pride and pleasure. To all of us who have been associated together from the beginning in this Association and have watched with interest the steady and gradual growth, it is an hour fraught with much satisfaction to know that we are on a solid and enduring basis. We have outgrown our most sanguine expectations, and the bright outlook for the future is encouraging. The history of the Association for the past year is as follows:

As you will notice, we have not made a large increase in membership, but it is a remarkable fact that every year we can report to you an increase, when we take into consideration that we have no paid agents, nearly all applications coming to us are voluntary. The possibility of extending our organization is great—of our total membership in the United States, over nine hundred live within twenty miles of New York, and if our friends in the large cities throughout the country would use their efforts, as some of our New York members have done, we would soon reach the limit of membership—fifteen hundred.

The percentage of deaths in all insurance companies during the year has been larger than for many years in the past. Our death-rate has not increased, which we think is due to the careful medical examination, and to the care which the board exercises in the examination of each applicant's papers.

The average age of our members has not increased, it being a fraction lower than last year.

The work connected with this Association is great. Your board have met during the past year eighteen times, besides many of them have been obliged to attend committee meetings and other affairs connected with the Association. We endeavor to give you our best thoughts and your interests are most carefully considered.

All praise is due to Messrs. Burkhardt, Holden, Vogellus and Kelly, who were appointed a committee by members of the Association to take in charge an "Authors' Reading," which was given last January, the proceeds of which were handed to our treasurer for the Reserve Fund of this Association, which made a substantial increase to that fund.

The law committee have presented several amendments to our Constitution which your board have passed upon and present for your approval to-night. No material changes have been made, and the amendments, if approved, will greatly aid your board in their work.

In closing this report we can do no better than to repeat the following which was taken from a recent article by the president of one of our largest assessment companies:

"The superiority of the assessment system lies in the fact that, while it furnishes insurance at about one-half the rates which old-system companies are compelled to charge, it also provides absolute security for the payment of its death losses. Every policy-holder, so long as he continues to profit by the protection furnished, must contribute his proportion of the amount required for the death losses and expenses. Consequently, the greater the amount of insurance in force, the greater the security. If the assessment is not paid when due the policy lapses and the liability ceases. The reserve of companies conducted upon this system is therefore practically unlimited. It entails no expenses for management and can never be squandered in the payment of high salaries or lost in unprofitable investments.

"In many respects the reserve of the assessment system is like the reserve force of a nation—much as the United States—where there is practically no standing army, but where the State has power, in case it is required, to call out every man who is over eighteen and under forty-five years of age. That such a reserve is amply sufficient for the protection of the American people, history has most satisfactorily demonstrated. An assessment company has this reserve, and furnishes security for the payment of its death losses unsurpassed by any other system of insurance in existence.

"The reports of the various insurance companies show that for old-line companies the expenses were forty-six per cent. of the amount paid for death-claims and dividends, and of the mutual companies only nineteen per cent. Statistics covering the aggregate of income and expenses of all the mutual associations in the United States bear out very nearly the ratio shown in the city of New York."

Our expenses are less than the average for the reason that no one connected with our Association receives any compensation for the work, and only the actual expenses are paid by the Association.

Our past record justifies us in saying that for prompt payment of death-claims, careful management, a judicial selection of its risks, our Association stands second to none. It gives you life insurance of the best quality and furnishes it at actual cost.

Respectfully submitted for the board of trustees.
WILBUR B. KETCHAM, Secretary.

The report was heartily applauded and adopted.

Mr. Geyer then called attention to the able and satisfactory manner in which the committee in charge of the Authors' Reading given last January had directed the affair, reflecting not only honor upon the Association but adding materially to its financial standing, and suggested that the Association take cognizance of these services by a vote of thanks to the gentlemen named. A resolution to this effect was presented and adopted with acclamation.

Mr. Burkhardt, on behalf of the committee, thanked the Association for the compliment tendered.

Resolutions were also presented and adopted thanking the trade papers for courtesies extended, and Messrs. Bangs & Co. and Mr. W. B. Ketcham for the use of their rooms for the annual and committee meetings.

Immediately before adjourning Mr. P. N. Johnston offered the following resolution:

WHEREAS, The excessive hours, sedentary and exacting work we are engaged in is the cause of much mortality, and as the general public and employers require that those engaged in handling books and stationery shall be well informed, and

WHEREAS, The time needful to acquire the necessary information is limited unless resorting to late hours of the night, therefore be it

Resolved, That this Association recommend the extension of the Saturday half-holiday throughout the year except for the month of December for all book and stationery employees in the United States, and that we exercise all influence to establish the same.

The president pointed out that as the definite object of the Association was to collect and disburse funds according to the provisions of the Constitution and by-laws, he could not lay before the meeting any resolution or motion foreign to this object. He suggested, however, that a meeting of the employees of the book and publishing houses in New York and the vicinity be called to consider and agitate the matter.

The meeting was then adjourned.

THE unsecured creditors of the United States Book Company are still waiting for a plain statement of the affairs of that corporation, including a list of the holders of bonds, of the preferred creditors, of the holders of guaranteed liabilities and of the stockholders, backed by facts to prove to what extent the claims of the preferred creditors are justified, and by answers to other equally pertinent questions. It has been estimated that the payment of interest on bonds, fees of the receiver and salaries of proposed committee will result in an expenditure of nearly $200,000 per year. If this estimate be but remotely correct the committee in charge of the affairs of the company will sooner or later be obliged to recognize the necessity of making such a statement as outlined above, or prepare themselves to meet with a refusal on the part of the holders of the necessary seventy-five per cent. of claims to sign the agreement—or worse.

THE AITKEN BIBLE.

JOHN JOSEPH McVEY, the well-known Philadelphia bookseller, is the proud and envied possessor of a copy of the Aitken Bible, which he discovered in a Lancaster farm-house. The copy is absolutely perfect and retains its original binding. In fact, this copy is claimed to be the only one known to be without an imperfection that has been sold in this country for over half a century. The copy sold by auction in Philadelphia in the winter of 1891 in two volumes at $650 (now in the Library of Congress) had three substitute pages and a number of minor imperfections. Mr. McVey's copy also contains the Resolutions of Congress, which is missing in most of the nineteen copies known to exist in this country.

The Aitken Bible having mistakenly been regarded by many as the first American Bible a brief sketch of some of the early American Bibles may not be out of place in connection with the foregoing.

In 1664 the Rev. John Eliot had printed at Cambridge, Mass., the Bible in the language of the Natick Indians. In 1743 Christopher Sauer, or Sower, at Germantown, Pa., published a German edition of the Bible, "after having been three years in the press." About 1752, according to Isaiah Thomas, the first edition of the Bible in English published in America was printed with great privacy by Kneeland and Green, in Boston. It was printed for Daniel Henschman, and had the London imprint in the title-page, to avoid detection from the officers of the Crown. It was an unlawful enterprise, as Great Britain did not allow the Bible to be printed either at home or in the colonies, except by royal license. Mr. Thomas, when he was an apprentice, often heard those who had assisted at the case and press, in printing this Bible, make mention of this fact. John Hancock was related to Mr. Henschman, knew the particulars of the transaction, and had a copy of this impression. The edition was not large, and did not exceed seven or eight hundred copies.

It was not until thirty years after—about one hundred and seventy years after the first English colony had been planted in America, at Jamestown, Va., 1607—in 1782, that the Aitken Bible was published. Up to this time the colonists were dependent upon the press of the old country for their supply of the sacred volume. When Independence was declared, however, such was the scarcity of Bibles that Dr. Allison, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, and others memorialized Congress on the subject; whereupon that body, in 1777, appointed a committee of three to confer with printers, with the view of having published thirty thousand copies at the expense of Congress, "to be reimbursed by the sale of the books." (Journal, Sept. 11, 1777.) The difficulty of obtaining type and paper induced the committee to recommend to Congress to direct the committee on commerce to import, at the national expense, twenty thousand English Bibles from Holland, Scotland or elsewhere, and Congress ordered the importation. But afterwards, when the unsettled state of the country and its commerce prevented the execution of this order, Congress resumed the subject of printing, which was referred to a committee of three, in which the Rev. William White, of the Episcopal Church, and the Rev. George Duffield, of the Presbyterian Church, chaplains of Congress, assisted. This movement gave birth to the Aitken Bible, which was printed in 1782, in small duodecimo form and brevier type. The title-page bears the usual imprint, but is ornamented with the Pennsylvania coat of arms, under which is:

PHILADELPHIA:

Printed and sold by R. Aitken, at Pope's Head, Three doors above the Coffee House, in Market street.

M.DCC.LXXXII.

Immediately after the title-page is printed the action of Congress, as follows:

By the UNITED STATES in Congress assembled:
September 12th, 1782.

The Committee to whom was referred a Memorial of Robert Aitken, Printer, dated 21st January, 1781, respecting an edition of the Holy Scriptures, report: That Mr. Aitken has, at a great expense, now finished an American edition of the Holy Scriptures in English; that the Committee have from time to time attended to his progress in the work; that they also recommended it to the two chaplains of Congress to examine and give their opinion of the execution, who have accordingly reported thereon, the recommendation and report being as follows:

Philadelphia, 1st September, 1782.

REVEREND GENTLEMEN,—Our knowledge of your piety and public spirit leads us without apology to recommend to your particular attention the edition of the Holy Scriptures publishing by Mr. Aitken. He undertook this expensive work at a time when from the circumstances of the war, an English edition of the Bible could not be imported, nor any opinion formed how long the obstruction might continue. On this account particularly he deserves applause and encouragement. We therefore wish you, Reverend Gentlemen, to examine the execution of the work, and if approved, to give it the sanction of your judgment, and the weight of your recommendation. We are, with very great respect,

Reverend Doctor WHITE and Rev. Mr. DUFFIELD,
Chaplains of the United States in Congress assembled.

REPORT.

GENTLEMEN,—Agreeably to your desire we have paid attention to Mr. Aitken's impression of the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments. Having selected and examined a variety of passages throughout the work, we are of opinion that it is executed with great accuracy as to the sense, and with as few grammatical and typographical errors as could have been expected in an undertaking of such magnitude. Being ourselves witnesses of the demand for this invaluable work, we rejoice in the present prospect of a supply; hoping that it will prove as advantageous as it is honorable to the gentleman who has exerted himself to furnish it, at the evident risk of private fortune. We are, gentlemen, your very respectful and humble servants,

(Signed)

WILLIAM WHITE,
GEORGE DUFFIELD,

Philadelphia, September 10th, 1782.

Honorable JAMES DUANE, Esq., Chairman, and the other Honorable Gentlemen of the Committee of Congress on Mr. Aitken's Memorial.

Whereupon,

RESOLVED,

That the United States in Congress assembled, highly approve the pious and laudable undertaking of Mr. Aitken, as subservient to the interest of religion, as well as an instance of the progress of arts in this country, and being satisfied from the above report, of his care and accuracy in the execution of the work, they recommend this edition of the Bible, to the inhabitants of the United States, and hereby authorize him to publish this recommendation in the manner he shall think proper.

CHA. THOMSON, Secretary.

It was printed and published during the Revolution, and such were the difficulties attending the undertaking—apart from the disadvantages of the art of printing at that early period, compared with the great improvements and facilities of the present day—that “Mr. Aitken, in the midst of his work, was obliged, upon one occasion, to remove his type and materials hastily out of the city, and bury them under a barn, in order to save them from destruction by the British soldiers.” And yet—to quote from a communication which originally appeared in the Philadelphia Freeman's Journal of 1781—“Under all these disadvantages, a complete, an accurate and elegant edition of the Bible was published in this very city, in four years from the time of the evacuation by the British. The very paper that has received the impression of these sacred books was manufactured in Pennsylvania; the whole work is, therefore, purely American, and has risen, like the fabled Phoenix, from the ashes of that pile in which our enemies supposed they had consumed the liberties of America.”

As peace was soon after established, and commerce was no longer in danger, Bibles were imported in such quantities as made it necessary for Mr. Aitken to sell his under cost, and he lost by the operation “more than three thousand pounds in specie.”* See his memorial to Congress in 1789, in which he mentions this fact, and asks Congress to grant him “a Patent, authorizing him, his heirs and assigns, exclusively, to print the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments, for the term of fourteen years, within the United States,” under proper restrictions—which memorial, however, was laid upon the table!

NEW ASPECT OF AUTHORS' RIGHTS.

A CASE involving a new aspect of the rights of authors and publishers respectively was recently decided in England. A Canadian writer, Mr. W. A. MacDonald, sued the proprietors of the National Review for the price of an article which, he claimed, they had accepted of him. He submitted the ms. of an article and in due course received a “proof” of the article with request to correct the same. After correcting and returning this he waited some time for his article to appear in print, and finally wrote complaining of the delay, whereupon his article was returned to him. He brought suit, contending that setting up his article was tantamount to accepting it. The defence was that there was no express stipulation to use the article, and that it had been set up simply to give the author “an opportunity of seeing his work in print” and to facilitate “the task of the editor in reading and judging of the article.” Editors were summoned to testify that the practice was not uncommon, and one publisher took the stand to maintain that the editor had acted within his legal and professional rights. But the presiding judge brushed all this aside and held that to put a manuscript in print was to “exercise the right of ownership over it.” He therefore found for the plaintiff for £11 and costs. The decision has caused great excitement among English editors and publishers, and they are urging the defendants to appeal.

AN ORIGINAL CAXTON.

ROBERT M. LINDSAY, of Philadelphia, has come into possession of a choice volume from the press of England's first printer—William Caxton—entitled “The Fayt of Armes and Chyualrye,” by Christine of Pisa. The volume is a folio of 143 printed leaves, 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 6 $\frac{1}{2}$ inches, a full page of type measuring 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ x 4 $\frac{5}{8}$ inches. The colophon sets forth that “Thus end th this boke whiche xpyne of pyse made & drewe out of the boke named vegecius de re militari & out of thar bre of bataylles wyth many other thynges sett in to the same requisite to werre & batdilles whiche boke beyng in freshe was delyned to me WILLIAM CAXTON by the most crysten kyng & redoubled prynce my natural & souerayn lord kyng henry the vii kyng of england and of france in his palais of Westmestre the xxiii day of Janyuere the iiii yere of his reyne [1489] & desired & wylled me to translate this said boke & reduce it into our english & natural tonge & to put it into enprynt.”

This copy from the library of Lord Lindsay, whose bookplate it bears, belonged to the Rev. Thos. Corser, and is described by Blades in his “Life of William Caxton,” v. ii., p. 209. It is in splendid condition, so far as the printed leaves are concerned, and well preserved as to binding, which is in olive morocco, blind tooled sides, gilt edges, by Charles Lewis. The price set upon the copy is $2100.

OBITUARY NOTES.

GEORGE MORRISON COATES, of the firm of Porter & Coates, father of Mr. Henry T. Coates, died May 24, aged seventy-six years. He was born in Philadelphia, August 20, 1817, in an old colonial residence on Market Street, below Second, adjoining Franklin's printing office. When twenty-one years of age he entered the dry-goods business, which he carried on successfully for twenty years. In 1859 he founded with his brother the present firm of Coates Brothers, well known in the book trade. In 1869, two years after the firm of Porter & Coates succeeded to the firm of Davis, Porter & Coates, Mr. George M. Coates became financially interested in the publishing house with which he was connected until a few years ago. Mr. Coates was often honored by his fellow-citizens with positions of trust. He was for seven years a member of the Board of Health, and for a long time a member of the Executive Council of the Board of Trade, and a member of the Apprentices' Library Association. For eleven years he was a city director of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and in 1864, 1868 and 1872 he was a Presidential elector on the Republican ticket.

MRS. H. R. GOODWIN, author of the Wingwood Series and of “Dorothy Gray,” died at her home in Boston on the 2d inst., sixty-six years of age.

* Probably equivalent, then, to $16,000 in the depreciated Continental paper currency of the country.

ADOLPHE GOUPIL has just died at the age of eighty-seven. About 1840 he became associated with the firm of Vibert Brothers, dealers in prints on the Boulevard des Italiens, in the same store which has just been given up by Boussod, Valadon & Co., successors to M. Goupil. Combining with a true love of art the qualities of a successful merchant, M. Goupil enlarged the scope of his business upon the retirement of the Vibert Brothers by attracting the most eminent painters of his day. He made copperplate reproductions of their various works, entrusting the work to the most renowned engravers, among whom were even Calametta and Henriquel-Dupont. The progress made in photography led him to reproduce by this art all the paintings and sculptures that made a reputation in the annual Salon exhibitions. After a time he not only bought the right of reproduction, but the paintings themselves, and made the artists of the day known in London, Vienna, Berlin, New York, Chicago, etc. M. Goupil lost his wife about ten years ago, and five of his seven children also died in rapid succession. Of his two remaining daughters, one is married to the eminent lawyer M. Cléry and the other to the painter Gérôme.

DR. GEORGE LOWELL AUSTIN died at his home in Melrose, Mass., on the 5th inst., of pneumonia. He was born in Lawrence Sept. 11, 1849, and his early youth was spent in Chicago. He entered Harvard College in 1868 and was graduated with the class of '72. Since the latter date he had lived in Cambridge and Melrose and devoted himself to literary pursuits. He published, among other books, a life of Longfellow and a life of George Phillips.

COMMUNICATIONS.

IS IT A UNIQUE PUBLICATION?

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 1, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR: There has recently come into my possession a copy of the first American edition of Shakespeare's poems, which seems to be unique.

It is possibly a part of the first American edition of Shakespeare's works, issued by Bioren & Madan in Philadelphia, in 1795-96. The poems were included in the 8th volume of that publication, but I have not been able to find mention anywhere of the issue of these poems as a distinct publication.

The copy that I have is a small twelvemo (size of page $3\frac{1}{8} \times 6\frac{1}{8}$), has a pagination of its own (1 to 128), and a separate title-page as follows:

It is bound in full sheep, with title on back in gilt letters, "Poems."

A careful search among all available catalogues and inquiries at authoritative sources have failed to reveal any knowledge as to the existence of another such volume.

I therefore ask those interested in Americana to assist me in establishing the status of this copy, and if any one knows of the existence of another I should very much appreciate their kindness in informing me. Respectfully, etc.,

JAMES O'NEIL.

521 7th Street, N. W.

[So far as we have been able to discover this is the only copy of a separate issue of the poems of Bioren & Madan's edition of Shakespeare in actual possession of a known party. Mr. Hildburn and others familiar with early American imprints and Shakespeare editions have heard of such a separate issue, but have never seen a copy of it. If, therefore, the volume in the possession of Mr. O'Neil is a bona fide issue from the presses of Bioren & Madan, the publishers of the very scarce first American edition of Shakespeare's works (1795-96), it may be considered a bibliographical curiosity of great value. The first separate American edition of Shakespeare's "Poems" was published, we believe, by Oliver & Munroe, of Boston, in 1807. Can any of our readers throw more light on this subject?—ED. P. W.]

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE first issue of McClure's Magazine contains ninety-five pictures and fourteen different articles. Perhaps the greatest novelty in the magazine is a real dialogue between William Dean Howells and Professor H. H. Boyesen. This is really the interview carried to perfection, and is, besides, an extraordinarily interesting article, in which Mr. Howells in a frank manner tells of his early struggles and literary career. Professor Henry Drummond contributes a paper on "Where Man Got His Ears" that is a perfect study in evolution. The veteran journalist De Blowitz has written an article which will provoke thought and discussion on Europe at the present moment, in which he characterizes the men and measures of the great nations of Europe. The personal interest in the magazine is marked, and the entire number is exceptional for completeness, timeliness and interest.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ATHENS, GA.—The Jackson & Burke Co., booksellers, is in the hands of a receiver.

BALTIMORE, MD.—A petition has been filed by Harry E. Van Dyke, trading as Van Dyke, Lillie & Co., in the Court of Common Pleas at Baltimore, praying to be adjudged insolvent. He has assets consisting of a stock of books, stationery, fancy goods and toys, etc., at 309 South Broadway, the value of which is not estimated, and has debts amounting to upwards of $7000. Riley E. Wright was appointed preliminary trustee.

DUBUQUE, IA.—James Kelly & Son, book, stationery and newsdealers, Dubuque, Iowa, are enlarging their store, and are putting in a new front wall. They are also painting and papering throughout, and when completed will have one of the nicest stores in the West. Mr. Kelly has been in the business for the past forty years and is very much liked. Joseph T. Kelly, his son and partner, is a bright and enterprising young man, and very popular with his customers.

KANSAS CITY, MO.—H. H. Shepard has moved his large and complete stock of books and stationery to 1111 Walnut Street, where he has one of the most beautiful stores, from an artistic point of view, in the city. Mr. Shepard has been in business in this city, on Main Street, for the last twenty-five years, but his business has grown to such an extent that he has not had enough room for the immense stock of goods which he is now carrying. In his present location he has a more commodious building, where he can meet the wishes of his patrons to a better advantage. The first floor is occupied by his stock of books, fine stationery and artistic novelties of all kinds, and is 110 feet deep by 25 feet wide, surrounded on both sides by a beautiful balcony, finished in natural wood. On the same floor is his immense wall-paper department, consisting of all grades of especially fine goods.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.—W. C. Holt, bookseller, has associated with him in his business, as a full partner, Thos. S. Boykin. Mr. Boykin has been connected with Mr. Joel White in the book and stationery business for many years, and is therefore thoroughly acquainted with every detail of the business. They will carry a full line of books and stationery for the city trade, and also look largely after the jobbing trade in their section. The firm-name will be Holt & Boykin.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mr. James H. Wood, formerly of 176 Sixth Avenue, wishes to inform the trade that he "has been obliged to discontinue his business, owing to the dulness of the market and the large discount allowed to private buyers by the publishers." He also states that the "few outstanding accounts will be paid in full as soon as he is in a position to do so, as he does not wish to defraud any one, but desires to maintain his reputation and the good-will of the trade in general." His present address is 245 Hooper Street, Brooklyn, New York.

NEW YORK CITY.—The proposition of R. Worthington to pay his creditors fifty per cent.—ten in cash and forty in unsecured notes—is meeting with scant courtesy, it seems, as did the committee (which were selected at the creditors' meeting) to examine the books of his insolvent concern. The receiver refused in both instances to permit access to the accounts.

RICHMOND, VA.—The Everett Waddey Company has purchased at a commissioner's sale the entire plant established for the manufacture of playing cards at Basic City, Va., known as the Paper Fabrique Company, which concern got into trouble some time ago.

SCRANTON, PA.—J. K. Bailey & Son, booksellers, have gone out of business.

TOLEDO, O.—John W. McCormick, bookseller, has sold out.

PICK-UPS.

HOW TO SEE THE WORLD'S FAIR.—Rivers: How are you getting along with that little pamphlet of yours on "How to See the World's Fair in a Week?" Banks (wiping the perspiration from his face): "I've thrown it aside, Rivers, and I am working now on a big book entitled "How to Get a Glimpse of the World's Fair in Six Months."—Chicago Tribune.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WILL the correspondent who favored us with a communication signed "B. E. Germond" please furnish us with his name and address?

JAMES CLEGG, of Rochdale, Eng., has in preparation a new edition of his "International Dictionary of Second-Hand Booksellers and Bibliophile's Manual."

GEORGE PARSONS LATHROP, who went over to Catholicism not long ago, has accepted the editorship of the Visitor, a Catholic weekly, published in Providence, R. I.

"MOTHER'S HANDS" is the title of the forthcoming volume of stories translated from the Norwegian of Bjørnsterne Bjørnson. Mr. Edmund Gosse has written an introduction for the volume.

GINN & Co. have just issued the third book of Thucydides, edited, on the basis of Steup's revised (third) edition of Classen's Commentary, by Prof. Charles Forster Smith, of Vanderbilt University.

MRS. HENRY M. FIELD and Thomas Nelson Page were married in Chicago on the 6th inst. They will spend the summer in New York City and Bar Harbor, and will go to Washington, D. C., their future home, in time for the winter season.

IN a recent suit in the London courts for the infringement of a copyright of a play founded on "East Lynne," the fact was brought out that Mrs. Henry Wood, the author of the novel, never received a penny of royalty for any of the many dramas founded on it. The English copyright law does not protect a novelist from theatrical "adapters."

WILLIAM R. JENKINS has reprinted George Sand's idyllic novel "Nanon," the heroine of which is a little peasant girl to whom the benevolent Revolution brought learning, lands, wealth, and, in marriage, a virtuous marquis, sincerely in love with her and democratic. Prof. B. D. Woodward, of Columbia College, has made for this edition an introduction and notes in English.

TART, SONS & Co. announce that they will shortly issue a new series of handsomely illustrated crown octavos, comprising 200 titles, which "exhaustive inquiry made of the leading librarians throughout the country has shown to be the books most in demand in their libraries, and, therefore, the best 200 books, according to a consensus of opinion of the whole of the United States."

A FRENCH collector recently found in a shop where antiquities are kept the housekeeping book of Pierron, who was Napoleon's butler at St. Helena. It has entries extending from January, 1818, to May 5, 1821—the day of Napoleon's death. The volume contains details concerning food, fuel and drugs used by the household of the exile. It will be published at an early day with explanatory notes.

POPE LEO XIII. has just paid a somewhat unusual honor to a Scotch Protestant professor and author. He has ordered "The Church in the Roman Empire Before 170 A.D.," by Prof. Ramsay, of Aberdeen University (published in this country by George P. Putnam's Sons), to be placed in the reference library of the Vatican, and has awarded a gold medal to the author for his services in this department of literature.

THE Paris Booksellers' Club (Cercle de la Librairie) has published "Origine de l'Imprimerie en France (Avignon, 1444)," by Phil. l'Abbé Requin, correspondent of the Ministry of Fine Arts, a pamphlet containing facsimiles and translations of some early printed books. Another publication of the same club is "Notice sur Christophe Plantin," the Antwerp bookbinder (1514 to 1590), by M. Léon Gruel, the well-known bookbinder and bookseller.

THE Börsenverein has established an official agency in London, at 54 Great Marlborough Street, for the protection of the German book, art and music trades, and has put it under the direction of Max Jesing, the representative in London for the firm of Breitkopf & Härtel. The chief object of this move is the protection of copyrighted works, of which unauthorized reprints are imported into England. These reprints come chiefly from America and Holland.

QUEEN VICTORIA has contributed an account of the Balmoral tartan to D. W. Stewart's "Old and Rare Scottish Tartans," just published by G. P. Johnston, of Edinburgh. The work also contains a correspondence on tartans, hitherto unpublished, between Sir Walter Scott and Sir Thomas Dick Lauder. The author has examined collections of family portraits, and presents all early references to Highland dress in chronological order. As announced some time ago, the reproductions are in silk, woven to scale.

MOST of the material which will be used in the forthcoming volume of Matthew Arnold's letters has been found in his family correspondence. It is stated that Arnold, who was always on "delightful and affectionate" terms with his near relatives, was in the habit of regularly writing home to one or another of the family an account of the events of the week as they interested or concerned him. Mr. George Russell's labor in editing this correspondence is naturally slight. His preface will deal with the man Arnold as revealed in these letters.

HENRY HARRISON BRIDGMAN, of the American Book Company, was married in Norfolk, Conn., June 1, to Miss Alice B. Eldridge, a daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Joseph Eldridge, for many years a preacher in Norfolk. There was a reception after the ceremony at the home of the bride's sisters the Misses Eldridge. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Birdseye Blakeman, Mr. and Mrs. John T. Terry, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Ivison, Mr. and Mrs. James Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dodge, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Barnes, Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Juilliard, and Dr. and Mrs. Edward H. Peaslee. Mr. and Mrs. Bridgman left on the evening of their wedding-day for an extended Western trip and a visit to the World's Fair.

THE KELMSCOTT PRESS (William Morris) has just issued to subscribers Morris' new edition of Caxton's translation of "Godeffroy of Boloyne." Mr. Morris has in preparation an edition of Tennyson's "Maud," commissioned by Messrs. Macmillan, and a reprint of Ralph Robinson's English version of Sir Thomas More's "Utopia." As soon as these have advanced sufficiently they will be followed by other works now in course of preparation. These include Froissart's "Chronicles" in two, and Shakespeare's works in three volumes folio. A translation of "Beowulf," by Mr. Morris and Mr. A. T. Wyatt, will be printed in one volume quarto, and another by Mr. Morris of some tales from the French of the thirteenth century in one volume octavo.

ONE of the most interesting features of the Children's Building, which was opened June 1, on the grounds of the World's Columbian Exposition, is the representative child's library, formed of books contributed by the most notable story-writers of the day for children, and also containing the pictures of the writers and autograph sentiments by them. The library was collected and arranged by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates and Mrs. Alice L. Williams, both Chicago writers of children's stories. Among the authors represented are Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, known to children chiefly by her "Little Foxes," Kate Douglas Wiggin, Palmer Cox, Louisa M. Alcott, A. D. T. Whitney, Bishop Vincent, Mrs. Isabella M. Alden ("Pansy"), Lucretia P. Hale, Mary Mapes Dodge, Miss Wilkins, Thomas Hughes, Richard Harding Davis, Frank Stockton, Charlotte M. Yonge, Jean Ingelow, E. R. Charles and many others. It is intended that after the fair the various exhibits contained in the Children's Building shall be placed in a memorial art building to be erected in Chicago by women.

A CHINESE correspondent of the North China Herald sends the following summary of the general commercial aspect at Peking: "We often hear of stationers and booksellers in Peking failing, so that it becomes a matter of course whenever we see a new shop in that line started to ask 'How long will it keep its doors open?' The reason for this I find is because stationers and booksellers in the capital as a rule are in the habit of giving unlimited credit to their customers, without the least sort of discrimination, so that one is not surprised to hear that if they manage to collect at most three-fifths of their debts at the end of each 'term' or at the end of a year, they congratulate themselves on their luck. Concerns with large capital are able to stand this strain for a longer period, but small capitalists are compelled to shut up shop whenever their debtors fail to pay more than one-half. It is a wonder these people do not learn wisdom, but when asked why they give such credit they reply that competition is so keen they must trust to the honor of their customers to pull them through." Peking, by the way, has a newspaper with the largest circulation in the world, and its book trade is of corresponding importance.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

TWO important handbooks for the Bookseller.

JUST READY:

ANNUAL CATALOGUES, 1892.

The Annual American Catalogue for 1892 contains :

- (1) Directory of American Publishers issuing books in 1892.
- (2) Full-title Record, with descriptive notes, in author-alphabet, of all books recorded in THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, 1892.
- (3) Author-, title-, and subject-index to same in one alphabet.
- (4) Publishers' annual lists for 1892.

The edition is limited, and to secure copies orders should be sent at once. The price is $3.00 sheets, $3.50 half leather.

The Annual Catalogue for 1886 and 1887 is now out of print. But few copies of the Annual Catalogue for 1888, 1889, 1890 and 1891 are on hand.

We also supply the English Catalogue for 1892 as soon as ready, price $1.50, paper ; the Annual American and English Catalogues, 1892, can be had in one volume, half leather, $5.00.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

INCLUDING PERIODICALS, AMERICAN AND ENGLISH, ESSAYS, BOOK-CHAPTERS, ETC.,
SPECIAL BIBLIOGRAPHIES AND NECROLOGY OF AUTHORS.

EDITED BY W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER,

With the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892 ; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892 ; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays ; (4) special bibliographies of 1892 ; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

The new volume includes the features of the "Co-operative Index to Periodicals," originally a monthly supplement to the Library Journal, then extended into a quarterly in an enlarged form, and later issued as an annual volume.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

The new volume will more than fulfil the opinion as to the Co-operative Index expressed in the following extract :

"To the literary worker its value can hardly be over-estimated ; to the specialist in any branch of science or letters it is indispensable, since it places within his immediate reach many of the latest fruits of labor in the same field ; to every one who desires to be well informed it furnishes the means of making the most effective use of his time."—Providence Press.

Bound uniform with Poole's Index and the "A. L. A. Index," in one vol., cloth, $3.50.

☞ Early orders for the above are solicited.

The Best Key to Educational Books.

THE
American Educational Catalogue
 For 1893 [Twenty-fourth Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fourth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements:

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
 per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

.* Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.*

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.

Repudiation of State Debts in the United States.

By WILLIAM A. SCOTT, Ph.D., Assistant Professor of Political Economy in the University of Wisconsin. 12mo, $1.50.

Vol. II. of the Library of Economics and Politics. Edited by Prof. Richard T. Ely.

This is a work which deals with one of the most important phases of American finance. Perhaps there is no field of financial investigation in the United States which has been so neglected. The work will be of practical importance to all those who are concerned with investments as well as to scholars interested in our financial history and institutions.

Theology of the Old Testament.

By CH. PIEPENBRING, Pastor and President of the Reformed Consistory at Strassburg. Translated by Prof. H. G. Mitchell, of the Boston University. 12mo, $1.75.

This book is regarded by competent authorities as the briefest and clearest exposition of the subject as yet produced. It will prove invaluable to students of the Bible and to all who are interested in the latest researches in theological science.

The Independent Treasury System of the United States.

By DAVID KINLEY, of the University of Wisconsin. 12mo, $1.50.

Vol. I. of the Library of Economics and Politics. Edited by Prof. Richard T. Ely.

"A valuable and dispassionate discussion of the influence of the Independent Treasury on business."—Ledger, Philadelphia.

Ruby Gladstone;

Or,

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

For sale by all booksellers, or will be sent on receipt of price. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

While the name of Ella Wheeler Wilcox is known mainly through her popular poetical works, there is a constantly increasing interest manifested in her prose essays which cover a field entirely her own.

Mrs. Wilcox possesses a talent for safely handling dangerous and hitherto tabooed subjects. Her pen is like a skilled surgeon's knife, with which she lays bare human emotions and passions, and in epigrams of warning, sympathy and counsel she crystallizes her discoveries for the benefit of humanity.

However daring and unusual the topics she discusses, no one can read any chapter in this book without feeling stronger to resist temptation and braver to cope with life's battles. Every phase of emotion is analyzed, every relation of man to woman treated, every folly and frailty probed; the lancet is often sharp, but there is balm and healing on its point.

The Best Key to Educational Books.

THE
 For 1893 [Twenty-fourth Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fourth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will issue in cheap pamphlet form the defence offered by Professor Charles A. Briggs to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at their recent meeting in Washington.

LEE & SHEPARD announce a new novel by Edward King, entitled "Joseph Zalmonah." The scene is laid almost entirely among the picturesque Hebrew-Russian population of the East Side of New York.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just ready William Black's "Judith Shakespeare;" "Heather and Snow," a story of Scotch peasant life, by George Macdonald; and "Everybody's Book of Correct Conduct," by Lady Colin and M. French-Sheldon.

GINN & Co. have made arrangements with Alphonse Daudet for a volume of selections from his works, and he has written a piece specially for this volume. The book is designed for use in high-school and college classes, and will be specially annotated for this use by Professor Frank W. Freeborn, of the Boston Latin School.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will begin immediately to issue monthly Whittaker's Library of Church Teaching and Defence, to be made up chiefly of books already known to the public, but not hitherto attainable at less than three times the price to be asked for them in this new shape. The books will be of special interest to members of the Episcopal Church.

TAIT, SONS & Co. have completed arrangements for the publication of the 200 books most in demand in libraries. To do this they have obtained the consent of D. Appleton & Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Harper & Brothers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., J. B. Lippincott Co., Macmillan & Co., Porter & Coates, Roberts Bros., etc., to issue their copyright books included in the list. Every volume will contain a colored photogravure title-page and four new copyright illustrations of original design by American artists, a new feature in the majority of the copyright books. The volumes will be bound in half calf with gilt top and boxed, and will make a suitable holiday gift as well as good library edition of its text.

LAIRD & LEE have just ready an entirely new edition of "Laird & Lee's Vest-Pocket Webster Pronouncing Dictionary," including leading synonyms, a speller, a gazetteer of the world, and toasts and speeches for all occasions. The little book includes 27,500 words more than any other work of its kind and size. The publishers claim that the definitions are clear and complete, that the accentuation of the words renders it a safe pronouncing guide, that it has been brought up to date in accordance with the latest English and American standards, and that it offers much useful grammatical, geographical, historical and biographical information. This house has also just issued "The Algerian Slave," by Giuseppe Caroli, very fully illustrated.

D. APPLETON & Co. have just ready Herbert Spencer's "Negative Beneficence and Positive Beneficence," being the fifth part of his "Principles of Ethics;" a "Handbook of Greek and Latin Palæography," by Edward Maunde Thompson, principal librarian of the British Museum (no. 70 in the International Scientific Series); "Questions at Issue," a volume of essays, by Edmund Gosse, who discusses with wit and acumen a variety of literary topics; "Hypnotism, Mesmerism and the New Witchcraft," by Dr. Ernest Hart; and "General Greene," by Col. F. V. Greene, which is the fourth volume in the Great Commanders Series. "Many Inventions," Rudyard Kipling's new volume of short stories, has just been published, and "Suspected," a novel by Louisa Stratenus, is the latest issue in the Town and Country Library.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederic; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); Q. 4to: under 30 cm.; O. (8vo: 25 cm.); D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tl. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., odd, nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Æschylus. Choephoroi; with an introd., commentary and translation by A. W. Verrall. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. 8°, cl., net, $2.75.

American state reports; cont. the cases of general value and authority subsequent to those contained in the "Am. decisions" and the "Am. reports," decided in the courts of last resort of the several states; rel., rep. and annot. by A. C. Freeman. V. 30. San Francisco, Bancroft-Whitney Co., 1893. c. '93. 6-1009 p. O. shp., $4.

Balmforth, Ramsden, ["Laon Ramsey," pseud.] The new reformation and its relation to moral and social problems. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 5+159 p. D. (Social science ser., no. 61.) cl., $1.

Contents: The decay of orthodox beliefs; The future development of religious life; The sanctions of morality in their relations to religious life; The sanctions of morality; The new reformation and its relation to social problems; The true teachers of the working-classes. The first four articles originally appeared in the pages of the Westminster Review, over the pen-name "Laon Ramsey." The fifth and sixth papers are now printed for the first time.

Bangs, J: Kendrick. Toppleton's client; or, a spirit in exile. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. 4+269 p. D. cl., $1.

Hopkins Toppleton's father was the leading member of an important law firm of New York and London. At his death, in order to retain the name of the late senior member, Hopkins is taken into the firm on condition that he lives permanently in London, and seldom appears at his office. With little knowledge of law, and with a keen relish for fun, the surprising aspect of his first case makes a most ridiculous narrative. He is unexpectedly caught in his chambers in the Temple by a client, who retains his services in a suit to regain possession of his body, from which he claims he is exiled. This client, a commonplace English barrister, had been persuaded to vacate his body at intervals in favor of an accomplished but wicked disembodied soul. The latter having achieved brilliant successes under its false guise, had finally made off with the body altogether.

Barr, Mrs. Amelia E. A singer from the sea. N. Y., Dodd, Mead & Co., [1893.] c. 4+346 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The story opens in Cornwall. The heroine, Denasia Penelles, the daughter of a fisherman of St Penfer, is said to charm the fishes into the nets with her beautiful voice and quaint songs; she likewise attracts the admiration of a man whose social position is above her own. Hence a story of love, unforeseen consequences and a final surprise.

Blake, W: Selections from the writings of William Blake; with an introductory essay by Lawrence Housman. N. Y., imported by C: Scribner's Sons, 1893. 30+259 p. 1 il. S. cl., $1.75.

Specimens of Blake's varied writings grouped under the following headings: Poetical sketches (1783); Songs of innocence (1789); Songs of experience (1774); Later poems; Extracts from the prophetic books; Prose extracts. Blake was born in London in 1757; he was a man of eccentric genius and character, as his work both by pen and pencil illustrate; he won fame as an engraver, painter and poet; he died in 1827. The present selection is made from a life of Blake begun by Alexander Gilchrist and finished by Rossetti.

Bottone, S. R. Electricity and magnetism. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1893. sq. 8°, (Whittaker's lib. of popular science.) cl., 90 c.

Braddon, Miss M. E., [now Mrs. J: Maxwell] All along the river. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1893.] c. 2+363 p. D. cl., $1.

In Cornwall, England, flows the river on whose banks lay the home of Colonel Disney, in which he left his young wife during his absence for a year in the Indian service. "God help all young wives whom their husbands leave alone in their youth and beauty to stand or fall in the hour of temptation" is the key-note of a story which shifts to southern France and Rome and ends sadly.

Bray, Claude. Randall Davenant: a tale of the Mahrattas; with original il. by Alfred Johnson. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1893. 5+389 p. il. D. cl., $2.

The story reproduces the stirring events of a little-known phase of Indian history—the battle of Panipat fought in January, 1761—which the writer believes has been to a great extent overlooked by Englishmen, owing to the fact of its following so closely the decisive fight at Plassey, which has been generally taken as the starting-point in the conquest of India.

Brooks, H: S. A catastrophe in Bohemia, and other stories. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., 1893. c. 3-372 p. il. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Contents: A catastrophe in Bohemia; Donna Paula's treasure; The Don in Pauper Alley; The crazy professor; The arrival of the magpie; A scrap of frontier history; An unprofessional money-lender; La Tiburona; A visit from an Esquimaux; A chapter of accidents; At Don Ignacio's; The virgin of pearls. Most of these stories have appeared first in the Overland Monthly and other Western periodicals. They depict life in the far western part of the United States, in Lower California and in Mexico.

Caroli, Giuseppe. The Algerian slave. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1893. 5-335 p. il. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 60.) pap., 50 c.

Giuseppe Caroli was born in Genoa, in 1789, of an English mother and an Italian father. After giving the incidental history of his childhood, he describes an adventurous voyage which ended in his capture by pirates, and in his being sold in the slave mart of Algiers. His account of this eventful period in his career introduces unusual and sensational incidents supposed to have occurred during the Peninsular war.

Clement, G. A. Digest of fire insurance decisions in the courts of the U. S., Great Britain and Canada, from the earliest period to the present time, with references to statutory provisions and including the N. Y. standard form of fire insurance contract annot. and other standard forms, all classified and arranged as to subject-matter according to existing terms and conditions. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1893. c. 64+690 p. O. shp., net, $6.50.

Cobb, Weldon J. The victim of a crime. Chic., E. A. Weeks & Co., 1893. c. 3-369 p. D. (Melbourne ser., no. 13.) pap., 25 c.

The hero is the victim of a conspiracy and has just escaped from prison when the story opens. His attempted rescue and supposed death throw his persecutors off his track and they resume their unscrupulous schemes of robbing a rich young girl in whom he is interested. There is a long succession of sensational incidents before the mystery is explained. The scene is Chicago and the Exposition grounds.

Two German countesses of dissimilar traits and with different home environments relate their individual experiences—one through a series of letters to a friend, the other through the medium of a memoir of her life. In both cases the heroines have revolted against marriages made for them by their parents regardless of their personal feelings.

Feuillet, Octave. The widow, (La veuve). [Also] The mother of a marchioness, by Edmond About; tr. by Gustave Beauseigneur. Chic., Morrill, Higgins & Co., 1893. c. 3-253 p. il. D. (Idylwild ser., v. 1, no. 87.) pap., 50 c.

A tragical episode is evolved out of a promise made by Major Maurice de Frémuse to his intimate friend, Robert de la Pave, on his death-bed. Robert had married a beautiful woman of whom he was insanely jealous; receiving a mortal wound in the Franco-Prussian war, he forces a promise from Maurice to carry his commands to his widow not to marry again, accompanied by the threat that if she does she will receive his curse and his spirit will appear to her. This is the motive of "The widow." The second story details the efforts of a rich woman of plebeian birth to enter the exclusive circle of the Faubourg St. Germain.

Hoff, F. Wallace. Two hundred miles on the Delaware River: a canoe cruise from its headwaters to the Falls at Trenton; with an historical appendix. Columbian ed. Trenton, N. J., [C. L. Traver,] 1893. c. 7+180 p. il. O. cl., net, $1.50.

The first intention of the author was to give a succinct account only of a canoe cruise down the Delaware to enable future voyageurs to estimate the time required for such a trip, and also to present some of the obstacles and pleasures likely to be encountered. But as the trip was crowded with matters of interest relating to local scenery, towns and characteristic bits, the original plan was departed from, the narrative growing rich with entertaining matter as the cruise advanced. The beautiful scenery of the Delaware valley, the many amusing camp episodes and fishing exploits, receive full justice.

Kipling, Rudyard. Many inventions. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. c. 7+427 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Nearly all of these fifteen stories have appeared in various English or American periodicals. The "three guardsmen," Mulvaney, Ortheris and Learoyd, reappear in most of the tales, which relate chiefly to military life in India; one, "The record of Badalia Herodsfoot," is a picture of the lowest London slum life, so realistic as to be repulsive; several of the other tales are purely imaginative. The stories are: The disturber of traffic; A conference of the powers; My lord the elephant; One view of the question; "The finest story in the world;" His private honor; A matter of fact; The lost legion; In the Rukh; "Brugglesmith;" "Love-o-women;" The record of Badalia Herodsfoot; Judson and the empire; The children of the Zodiac.

This book, published in Paris in 1886, was first brought to the notice of Americans in 1888 by the Presbyterian Quarterly. The author is a clergyman of the Reformed Church at Strassburg; the translator is professor in Boston University; he has prepared complete indexes, which were lacking in the original. The author does not believe in the infallibility of the Bible. He thinks the intelligent study of the Bible will not endanger true faith, but merely be a blow to "Jewish rabbinism and Christian dogmatism."

St. Jerome. The principal works of St. Jerome; tr. by the Hon. W. H. Fremantle, with the assistance of Rev. G. Lewis and Rev. W. G. Martley. N. Y., The Christian Literature Co., 1893. 8°, (Select lib. of Nicene and post Nicene fathers, 2d ser., v. 6.) cl., $3.

The author's introductory note covers the scope of this volume; it is as follows: "For materials to illustrate the present brief sketch, little is available which has not already been presented in the three large volumes of Mr. Randall's faithful biography, and the extensive array of Jefferson's writings long ago officially published. But there still remains opportunity to present the services and character of our illustrious and many-sided statesman in a somewhat new aspect. With this latter object chiefly in view, I have used freely the ampler materials of my 'History of the United States' in sketching his later political career, so long the object of bitter controversy."

Volume 2 of "The principles of ethics" consists of three parts, "Justice," "Negative beneficence" and "Positive beneficence." As "Justice" was published some time ago in a separate volume—two editions of volume 2 have been issued—one with the three parts as above detailed, and one, the present edition, omitting "Justice" for the convenience of those who already possess it. In the complete "Principles of ethics" (2 v.) the reader possesses one of the most able and at the same time lucid interpretations of modern philosophical thought.

Stratenus, Louisa. Suspected: a novel. N. Y., Appleton, 1893. 2+213 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 118.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The motive is the familiar one of an innocent man, suspected of murdering his rival in the affections of a beautiful girl. The scene is laid in Germany, the heroes being a distinguished naval officer and an effeminate, worthless man of fashion. The heroine is a penniless girl, having a most uncomfortable home with a rich, bad-tempered uncle. She of course loves the wrong man, the story being lengthened by her suspicions of the innocent one.

"This handbook does not pretend to give more than an outline of the very large subject of Greek and Latin palæography. It must be regarded as an introduction to the study of the subject, indicating the different branches into which it is divided and suggesting the lines to be followed, rather than attempting full instruction. It in no way supersedes the use of such works as the collections of fac-similes issued by the Palæographical Society and by other societies and scholars at home and abroad; but it is hoped that it will serve as an aid to the more intelligent and profitable study of them."—Preface. The events of this romance occurred in the historical old town of Salem, Mass. The realistic pictures of life among the early settlers, with a vivid and accurate description of the witchcraft delusion which pervaded New England during the latter part of the seventeenth century, are graphically interwoven with romantic scenes of the story. Dorothy, the heroine, is a lovable, womanly character, and her pathetic story, with its background of tragic history, appeals deeply to the heart of the reader. (Johns Hopkins Univ. studies, 11th ser., no. 5, 6.) pap., 50 c.

The purpose of this paper is to continue the line of study begun in "The religious development in the province of North Carolina;" to trace further the relations between church and state in North Carolina: to inquire if there was any persecution in North Carolina—if so, its character, when, where, by whom and who were the sufferers; and to discover whether the colonial or home government was responsible for the persecution.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 17, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

MOVING AND TAKING STOCK.—II.

"Apart from the financial side of the question, the stock-taking properly carried out, is as useful to the trader as the compass is to the navigator; as it indicates what to avoid for the immediate future. The shadows of coming events are often perceptible at this time, and part at least of the future may be gathered from the past."—British and Colonial Printer and Stationer.

WHERE do we stand? This is a question that the retailer must face at one time or another during the year. Although the occupation of stock-taking is mentioned often in terms which do not indicate any relish for the work, as not bringing any profit—that is, any immediate profit—it is admitted by men of business to be an important factor in the prevention of loss, inasmuch as it opens the eyes to the actualities of the situation, and when properly carried out serves to check progress in the wrong direction. Many people can boast of an intimate knowledge of others, and of the ease with which they acquire it, and are ignorant of the fact that the persons whom they know least are their own selves and their own doings (as others see them).

A stock-taking conscientiously carried out is a wonderful aid to self-knowledge. We say "conscientiously" with meaning, because it often happens that the wish to make things look what they might have been, rather than what they actually are, imparts in various ways a deceptive veneer to the balance-sheet, which figurative veneer—like the material of that name—will not stand rough usage. There is a strong temptation to look on what in such cases might be misnamed "the bright side of things," and a good antidote to this is a sharp, cool, cold-blooded and accurate accountant, who considers the situation from an impartial point of view, and can say without feeling of remorse, "My friend, this looks very well on paper, but how about actual or possible depreciation of stock? Are those book debts all worth a hundred cents in the dollar? and have you considered that the deduction of your rent, interest, commissions and sundry expenses would reduce that profit to less than half?" This may be commonplace and trite information to many, but it is no secret that a large number of the smaller dealers either do not take stock at all, or do it in a most superficial and consequently inefficient or almost useless manner.

It is not an unknown proceeding to advance the figures of what is likely to go, and to price what has not gone—and will never go—at cost, for the sake of appearances. Such people are hopeful, perhaps, but hope deferred indefinitely "maketh the heart sick," and not infrequently many others sick also. Others, again, will handle the goods part of the inventory correctly, but live in the belief that all their outstanding accounts are good. Or, again, the expenses, rent, etc., are not sufficiently taken into consideration.

The stoppage of many retail houses in the book and stationery trades may be traced to the absence of stock-taking. When discussing the subject of stock-taking we do not refer to those establishments which grasp the true sense of this operation, namely, to clear out their goods at prices which are in accordance with the state of the market. To do this it is absolutely necessary to take stock and write off and face the loss of difference in price occasioned by fashion or fluctuation of the market. And it may be borne in mind that this is not always on the loss side of the account. Either on a large or a small scale the principle is the same, and the fact of a man's not having an immense establishment is no reason why the minutiae and detail attendant on every business should be neglected. Money is rightly called "the sinews of war," but stock properly taken may be termed "the backbone of war." To take stock properly it is not sufficient to walk round the store, to make a list or inventory of what is there and note down the price that it has cost. This is certainly a step in the right direction, but nothing more. Any one stopping at this is quite as much in the dark as to his real position as if he kept no accounts at all. When making up the profit and loss account on the year's business, supposing the cash-book, ledger and their satellites are checked off, the next thing needful is to ascertain what your stock would approximately realize at present prices. To do this the dealer must place himself in the position of a buyer of his own stock, and reduce it, if needful, to its proper level by writing off the difference. This difference must again be deducted from his gross profit before he knows what he has gained or lost on the year's transactions, and how he stands as regards his engagements. Any other mode of procedure is likely to lead to personal mystification, if nothing worse. Of course discrimination must be used between articles that may be all right for sale at a later period and those that must be got rid of on the principle that even a quarter of a loaf is better than no bread. There is a phrase, "cut losses and run profits," which applies outside the money market. Those that float on the tide of current events must not keep in ballast anything that they hope will turn out right by and by, and upon which they are unable to reckon with any amount of certainty. Once a year is considered sufficient for the recurrence of a general and thorough overhauling of the stock, but many firms have found that a trial-balance half-way between, is a great assistance. The fluctuations of the market can be taken note of, and the course shaped accordingly. This has been found in many instances to have brought about satisfactory results at the day of reckoning.

REGISTRATION OF AGENTS IN NEW YORK.

THE act passed at the last session of the Legislature of the State of New York, known as chapter 708, has been approved by the governor and is now in effect. This law provides for the registration of agents of mercantile or manufacturing firms doing business in this State, and it is therefore essential that houses establishing agencies in New York shall at once comply with the terms of the statute. The text of the act is as follows:

Any person now carrying on or conducting a general mercantile or manufacturing business within this State, or hereafter commencing such business at or in a fixed location, as agent or manager for another or others, shall within thirty days after the passage of this act, or the commencement of such business, file a sworn statement, verified by such agent and principal or principals, in the county clerk's office of the county within which said business is carried on, stating the nature of the business and the full name and residence of such principal or principals.

Any person or persons, principal or principals, may be relieved from all liability for the future act of such agent or manager by filing in the office of the county clerk where the original statement appointing such agent or manager is filed, a statement revoking such agency or managership, to take effect ten days after the filing thereof, such statement to be acknowledged before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds and to be published in at least three consecutive issues of a newspaper published in the county in which the business of said agent or manager is carried on; but if no newspaper is published in said county, then said statement shall be published in an adjoining county.

The county clerk shall keep a register of the names of such agents in alphabetical order, of their principals, for which registering and filing he shall receive a fee of $1; and copies of such certificate and registry certified by him and the affidavit of such publication shall be evidence.

Any person or persons failing to make and file the statement required by the first paragraph of this act, as therein required, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES H. PIERSON, book-keeper for the past eighteen years for George Routledge & Sons, died at his residence in Brooklyn on Friday, June 9. Mr. Pierson was well known throughout the trade and will be truly mourned by many to whom he had endeared himself.

ALFRED DARCEL, director of the Musée de Cluny and an admired art historian, has just died. He was born June 4, 1818, at Rouen. He published in 1861 "Le Trésor de l'Eglise de Congues;" in 1864, "Notice des Faïences Italiennes du Musée du Louvre;" in 1867, "Notice des Emaux et de l'Orfèvrerie du Musée du Louvre;" in 1869, in collaboration with Delange, "Recueil de Faïences Italiennes;" in 1874, the "Collection Basilewsky," in two volumes, with an essay on the industrial arts from the first century to the sixteenth.

NATHANIEL THOMAS LUPTON, who died at Auburn, Ala., June 12, was born in Virginia in 1830. He was graduated at Dickinson College in 1849, after which he studied two years in Heidelberg. He then became professor of chemistry and geology in Randolph Macon college and in the Southern University of Alabama. In 1871 he was made president of the University of Alabama and professor of chemistry. Three years later he became professor of chemistry in Vanderbilt University, which post he occupied for eleven years. In 1885 he was appointed State Chemist of Alabama and professor of chemistry in the Agricultural College of Alabama in Auburn. Professor Lupton published "The Elementary Principles of Scientific Agriculture," and was considered one of the ablest scientific men and teachers in the South.

COMMUNICATION.

A CARD FROM BRENTANO'S.

NEW YORK, June 7, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

BRENTANO'S beg to inform the trade that unauthorized parties are using their name to obtain goods upon spurious orders. A rubber stamp with the word "Brentano" is used to help this swindle.

Brentano's herein give notice that no rubber stamp is used as a signature for any order, and the trade is respectfully notified to deliver no goods to any one for us, or on our account, except to our regular list-boys having our regular list-book, or to those having a regular printed order-blank, which is duly numbered.

Brentano's will sincerely thank any firm or individual who will apprise them at once of any attempt to obtain any goods fraudulently on their account.

Very respectfully,

BRENTANO'S.

SIMON BRENTANO.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

WILLIAM BLACK, true to his beloved Scotland, will make his summer residence at Oban.

MISS MARIE CORELLI has just finished a story entitled "Nehemiah P. Hoskins, Artist: a faithful study of fame."

MR. MEREDITH is still at work on his "Journalist"—the book in which Mr. Stead and Mr. Frederick Greenwood are to figure.

DR. A. CONAN DOYLE's latest work, "The Refugees," is about to be translated into German. The translation will first be used as a serial, and will afterwards be published in book form.

J. M. BARRIE, says the London Literary World, "has just settled down in his native 'Thrums,' where he means to spend the spring and a part of the summer working on his new novel for America."

MR. ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON has written another Polynesian story. It is entitled "The Go-Betweens," and will be published in the Illustrated London News. It is, we believe, about the length of the "Beach of Falésa."

MR. J. CULCLIFFE HYNÉ, author of "Four Red Nightcaps," "The New Eden" and some half dozen other novels, has just finished a new story dealing with Freemasonry, to which he has given the name of "The Recipe of Diamonds."

GEORGE MOORE, says the Bookman (London), "has nearly completed a new novel, in which he deals elaborately with the life of the poor. The story describes the career of a servant girl, and is among the most elaborate the author has written."

DR. JOHN MACKINTOSH, the Scotch historian, to whom has just been granted $750 from the Royal Bounty, was originally a working shoemaker. He devoted thirty years to collecting material for his "History of Civilization in Scotland," and nineteen years to writing it.

REV. DR. J. M. BUCKLEY, editor of the Christian Advocate, who has just started for Alaska by the Canadian Pacific and the steamers, expecting to be absent about two months, will see his "Travels in Three Continents" through the press of the Cassell Publishing Company some time this summer.

MRS. CLIFFORD is giving her whole attention to play-writing. Very large sums have been offered to her by publishers for a new novel; but she turns a deaf ear to their entreaties. One of her stories has been dramatized as a curtain-lifter; and we may expect to hear before long that she has finished a play.

MR. ANDREW LANG'S "Red" and "Blue" poetry and fairy books for children have been so successful that he is to contribute to children's Christmas literature this year a new volume, entitled "The True Story-Book." It will be published, as the others were, by Messrs. Longmans, Green & Co., and is expected in the autumn. The illustrations are again to be a feature.

MR. T. FISHER UNWIN, the London publisher, and his wife in their recent visit to Boston were active in visiting the people and places that would be most interesting to those of literary tastes. Cambridge, Concord, Wellesley and Manchester-by-the-Sea were some of the places on their list. Mrs. Unwin is the daughter of Richard Cobden, the English free-trader. She is an ardent woman suffragist, and visited Chicago to attend the Women's Congress recently held there.

MRS. ARTHUR STANNARD (John Strange Winter) has just been elected a fellow of the Royal Society of Literature, a distinction that has only been conferred on one other woman since the society was founded in 1823. The other lady fellow is Mrs. Napier Higgins, wife of the Q. C. of that name. This lady wrote a standard work on the women of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, which took her ten or twelve years. A curious and not generally known peculiarity of Mrs. Stannard is her fancy for old horseshoes, of which she has a remarkable collection.

WALTER CRANE is now at work upon eight drawings illustrating "The Tempest." These and others are to illustrate the Dallastype reduced fac-simile of the 1623 folio Shakespeare, Mr. Crane having undertaken to make for this edition a generous number of designs in the style of the great masters of the sixteenth century. There will be two editions on Japanese vellum paper, and one on Arnold's unbleached hand-made paper. The large-paper sets will be limited to 500 copies. The printing will be done entirely by hand-press. This artist is also illustrating a new edition of Mrs. Deland's "The Old Garden, and other verses."

"LORIN F. DELAND and his wife, Mrs. Margaret Deland," says the Critic, "are to let the pretty little house where 'John Ward, Preacher' was written, and which, with its century of antiquity and its quaint little interior arrangements devised by the authoress herself, combines the old-time and the modern flavor. In the fall they will take up their residence in a larger house on Beacon Hill. The summer they will spend in small part in Chicago, and in great part at Kennebunkport, Me., where Mrs. Deland will finish her new book. This coming volume is to treat of the marriage relation, and will discuss the question 'whether husband and wife, when not congenial, should remain together or should separate.'"

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE first chapters of Charles Egbert Craddock's new story, "His Vanished Star," will appear in the July number of the Atlantic.

The American Bookmaker for June contains an interesting contribution by Theo. L. De Vinne on type measurement which deserves especial attention, as it keeps in view the separate interests of employing printers, compositors and publishers.

The Capital is a new Washington weekly publication to be edited by Mr. Marshall Cushing and to be published by Mr. Charles T. Grandy. It will devote considerable space to the news of the departments and other political and society news in which residents of the capital are interested.

THE late Theodore Child's companion in Persia, where Mr. Child lost his life, was Edwin Lord Weeks, who has written for Harper's Magazine a series of three articles on the tour he and Mr. Child made. The title will be "From the Black Sea to the Persian Gulf," and they will be published in the autumn with numerous illustrations.

THE first number of the new periodical for young readers, entitled Youth, is full of promise. Its front and back covers and double-page middle picture are daintily printed in colors, attractive to childish eyes and differing in this feature from all other candidates for youthful favor. Many experienced hands have promised their support to make its pages cheerfully instructive. There is a field for Youth, which appeals to a younger element than most of the established favorite magazines, and we hope it will find it and fill it with profit to the children and to itself. It is a weekly, published by the Youth Publishing Co. Its editors are lovers of real children.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CLEVELAND, O.—At the instance of the National Bank of Commerce, W. M. Reynolds on June 13 was appointed receiver of the Williams Publishing Company, a company doing a large printing and publishing business. The bank secured a judgment for $2881, and then filed a motion for the appointment of a receiver. The action is taken in order to continue the business and protect creditors, and is due to the inability of the company to meet outstanding indebtedness. The assets and liabilities are not known.

DENVER, COL.—E. H. Pierce & Co., book-sellers, have been succeeded by Gardner Brothers.

INDEPENDENCE, KAN.—R. W. Elder, book-seller, has sold out to C. A. Schanck.

MARBLE FALLS, TEX.—S. S. Watson, of Burnett, Tex., has sold his stock of books and stationery to Stewart Olive, who has moved it to this place.

NEWARK, OHIO.—Hammond & Son, book-sellers, have been succeeded by Harry Edmiston.

TAMPA, FLA.—H. R. Benjamin, of H. R. Benjamin & Sons, booksellers, is dead.

WASECA, MINN.—D. J. Shaw has succeeded to the business of the Waseca Book and Stationery Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE BANCROFT-WHITNEY CO. have just ready the third edition of "Wood on Nuisances," which has been greatly enlarged and largely rewritten.

WORTHINGTON CO. have just issued "A Fatal Misunderstanding," by W. Heimbürg, translated by Elise L. Lathrop, which is very fully illustrated.

THE Appletons have bought the entire control of Johnson's Cyclopædia, and are putting out a new edition, the first volume of which is now being delivered.

TAIT, SONS & Co. contributed to the New York Press Club Fair copies of the works of twenty celebrated authors, each book bearing the author's signature.

IT is said that 10,000 copies of Anna Katherine Green's new novel, "Marked 'Personal,'" were sold two weeks after it was published. A fourth edition is now on the press, and the Putnams are behind with their orders.

A FREE scholarship in memory of George William Curtis has been established by Mrs. Curtis in the Staten Island Academy, the money having been derived from the sale of the Christmas edition of Curtis' book, "Prue and I."

AN interesting feature of the publishers' exhibit at the Chicago Exposition is the Messrs. Harper & Brothers' booth, containing the original manuscript of General Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur," together with autograph manuscripts by many other distinguished writers whose work has been printed in the periodicals or books of Harper & Brothers.

IT is asserted that a remarkable find was recently made by the proprietors of the Burnham Antique Book-Store in their collection under the Old South Church, Boston. It was a quarto volume bound in old pigskin and published in London in 1621. Its title is "The Passions of the Minde in Generall, in Sixe Bookes, Corrected and Enlarged, with Sundry New Discourses Augmented by Thomas Wright." On the inside of the cover is written, in bold characters: "Myles Standish. His Booke. 1626."

TWO enterprising Connecticut men have secured a copyright for the publication of a historical souvenir of the World's Columbian Exposition. The right protects them in publishing the book in forty-four editions, one for each State in the Union. The copyright provides for a complete history of the fair from the opening until the closing day. Each edition will contain a roster of the names and addresses of the people from that State who visited the fair and took the trouble to register at their State Building.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS COMPANY have an exhibit at the World's Fair which is attracting much attention. It occupies a space 35 feet long by 15 feet wide in the British section of the Liberal Arts Building, and is a fac-simile of the New York office. The gem of the exhibit is a reproduction of Raphael's Madonna from the Dresden Gallery. This is said to be the finest lithography yet produced and took fully eighteen months' work to complete. Progressive proofs of the lithographer's work are finely bound in leather in one volume and form an important part of the display. The Tuck collection contains nearly 5000 specimens of color printing, ranging from the smallest Christmas card to the largest picture for framing.

ACCORDING to the London Bookworm, the most expensive illustrated book yet made is a Bible now in the possession of Theodore Irwin, of Oswego, N. Y. It is valued at $10,000, for Mr. Irwin paid that sum for the work. The original was in seven volumes, 16mo, and by the addition of drawings and engravings it was enlarged to 60 volumes, each 16 by 24 inches, which occupy 17 feet of space on the shelves. This remarkable book contains 3000 pen-and-pencil drawings, etchings, engravings, lithographs, oil and water-color paintings and mezzotints. Among the illustrations are parts of the "Great Bible of Cranmer," printed in 1533; parts of "The Bishop Bible," printed in 1568; of the Nuremberg Bible, the first illustrated Bible published, printed in 1476, and of "Luther's Version" and "The Breeches Bible." Mr. Irwin has brought together the best and rarest efforts at illustrating the text of the Bible and also the art of modern painters and engravers, making it the most complete and valuable Bible in existence.

FOREIGN NOTES.

IT is said that 500 unpublished letters of Voltaire have been discovered near Geneva. They will be issued as soon as possible.

PART VII. of the "New English Dictionary on Historical Principles," edited by James A. H. Murray, LL.D., is just ready. It extends from "consignificant" to "crouching."

"THE LEGENDARY LORE OF THE HOLY WELLS OF ENGLAND," including rivers, fountains, lakes and springs, by Mr. R. C. Hope, is announced by Mr. Elliot Stock for immediate publication.

MR. RUSKIN's publisher, George Allen, says that since 1871 there has never been a loss on any of Ruskin's works, and that between 1886 and 1892 the author received as his share of the profits about $140,000.

THE Bookman "Directory of Booksellers, Publishers and Authors" will be published this month by Messrs. Hodder & Stoughton. It will give the specialties of the booksellers, particulars of the history and publications of the publishers, and (in many cases) the private addresses of the authors.

"LES RELIEURS FRANÇAIS (1500-1800)" deals with a subject interesting to all engaged in the production, sale and purchase of books. It is a critical and anecdotal history of the art of bookbinding in France, and relates the history of the community of Paris binders and gilders of books, and contains a study on bookbinding by M. Ernest Thonain. It is adorned by numerous illustrations and by a plan of Old Paris. The publishers are Em. Paul, L. Huard & Guillemin.

THE contemplated Shelley Memorial Library at Horsham, near the poet's birthplace, will not, after all, be founded. Though the project was received with approbation it has failed to win financial support, the £300 contributed being wholly inadequate. The scheme has therefore been abandoned, and it is now proposed that the money should be devoted to the endowment of an annual prize for English literature at the Horsham Grammar School. The fate of this Shelley fund would seem to show that Shelley is emphatically a poet for the few.

MR. A. T. QUILLER-COUCH had an outcry recently in The Speaker (London) against the London publishers' habit of defacing the editorial copies of their books with a stamp or by some other objectionable means. Mr. David Nutt, whose stamp was mentioned as being particularly objectionable, replies to Mr. Quiller-Couch by saying that publishers "have been reluctantly forced to it as some slight check upon the immediate sale of the review copy, uncut, sometimes in the very wrapper in which it has come from the publishers, to the second-hand bookseller who makes a specialty of dealing in new books."

MR. GLADSTONE has made a present to the new Hawarden Institute of fifty volumes of books, including a complete edition of Sir Walter Scott's works. On the first page of one volume the donor has written: "No local library should be without a set of Scott's novels in full, accordingly I present this set to the Hawarden Institute.—W. E. G. May 26, 1893." In Barnett Smith's life of the Prime Minister, Mr. Gladstone has written: "This work was not written by authority, but I believe it has a fair reputation. I present it to the institute because it may be convenient to the members of that body to have at hand easy means of reference on points of detail concerning an old and attached neighbor.—W. E. G. May 26, 1893."

MESSRS. E. A. PETHERICK & Co., of Sidney, Australia, have issued their review of Australasian literature for 1892. They report that the output of Australasian literature has been the reverse of literary in its character, consisting mainly of catalogues, records, registers and reports. Australian novelists, poets and biographers do not as a rule publish their works in Australia. Still, one or two books are mentioned, among them a monograph on George Meredith, by Professor Macallum, of Sydney University. Professor Macallum says he knows no writer with so many of Shakespeare's characteristic qualities as George Meredith. We note that there is an Australian edition of Scribner's Magazine, differing only from the American edition in having four pages more at the end of every number devoted to Australasian topics.

THE publication of the Rev. H. R. Haweis' "Life of Sir Morel Mackenzie," says the Evening Post, "has caused an unusual commotion in the columns of the newspapers, which are enlivened every day by conflicting letters and interviews with the various parties concerned, but it is difficult to arrive at the truth of the matter. So far it appears that the family made no objection to the book until the Empress Frederick expressed a desire for its suppression. Mr. Haweis and the publishers declare that they would have been willing to suppress it if a reasonable amount for expenses had been paid. The ex-Kaiserin, however, appears to have been unwilling to pay the money herself, and the MacKenzie family is trying to enlist sympathy by condemning Mr. Haweis' treatment of the subject. The consensus of opinion is that it would have been better if Mr. Haweis had refrained from reviving the memories of a bitter controversy."

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Books for Exchange," the charge is 10 cents per line. No deduction for standing matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash].

Write your wants plainly and on one side of the sheet only. Illegible-written "wants" will be considered as "not having been received."

A NEW ENGLISH DICTIONARY

On Historical Principles, founded mainly on the materials collected by the Philological Society.

Edited by JAMES A. H. MURRAY,

B.A., Lond., Hon. M.A., Oxon., LL.D., Edin., D.C.L., Dunelm, etc.; sometime President of the Philological Society; with the assistance of many scholars and men of science.

"Every cultivated person should be interested in the progress of the 'New English Dictionary,' edited by Dr. J. A. H. Murray, Vice President, and Mr. Henry Bradley, President, of the Philological Society. Among subscription-books—that is, books necessarily issued in parts at greater or less intervals—it is surpassed by none in intrinsic worth or in the ease with which the infrequent payments can be borne. Unlike cyclopaedias, it can never become completely antiquated, and time will affect it mainly in the particular of neologisms; for, as its illustrations of usage are marshalled in chronological order, the history of each word or meaning may be added to but cannot be detracted from—and we cannot foresee the day when a supplement will be undertaken."—From Evening Post Editorial, Saturday, March 25, 1893.

Ruby Gladstone;

Or,

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loft'er strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material hand, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

For sale by all booksellers, or will be sent on receipt of price. Paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

NOW READY:

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX.

Including Periodicals, American and English, Essays, Book-Chapters, Etc., Special Bibliographies and Necrology of Authors. Edited by W. I. FLETCHER and R. R. BOWKER, with the co-operation of members of the American Library Association and of the Library Journal staff.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 is a new enterprise, complementing the "Annual American Catalogue" of books published in 1892 by indexing (1) articles in periodicals published in 1892; (2) essays and book-chapters in composite books of 1892; (3) authors of periodical articles and essays; (4) special bibliographies of 1892; (5) authors deceased in 1892. The two volumes together make a complete record of the literary product of the year.

THE ANNUAL LITERARY INDEX for 1892 forms the first supplement both to the new five-yearly volume (1887-1891) of Poole's Index to Periodical Literature and to the new A. L. A. Index to essays and book-chapters of Mr. Fletcher.

Bound uniform with Poole's Index and the "A. L. A. Index," in one vol., cloth, $3.50.

TAIT'S NATIONAL LIBRARY OF BEST 200 BOOKS.

WE beg to inform the Trade that we will shortly issue a new series of handsomely illustrated crown octavos comprising 200 titles, which an exhaustive inquiry made of the leading Librarians throughout the country has shown to be the books most in demand in their Libraries, and, therefore, from the Trade's point of view, the most popular, the most active and best-selling titles.

A careful analysis of the catalogues of the leading domestic and foreign publishing houses clearly demonstrates the fact that there is no line in existence which will at all compare with the one which we have secured as a result of prolonged and painstaking inquiry ; and this was inevitable seeing that all other selections are, for the most part, based on individual judgment, whereas our series is practically the result of a consensus of opinion of the whole of the United States as to which are the most popular books.

Arrangements have been made with the well-known publishers, Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Roberts Bros., Harper & Bros., Porter & Coates, D. Appleton & Co., J. B. Lippincott Co., Dodd, Mead & Co., Macmillan & Co., and others, whereby we are allowed to include their most prominent American copyright books in this list.

In every case the best single-volume edition has been chosen, insuring good print and paper. Each volume will contain a handsome colored photogravure title-page and from four to six new copyright illustrations of original design by American artists. This is a noteworthy feature, as many of the books, including a majority of the American copyrights, have never before been illustrated.

This edition will be of uniform size, printed on fine calendered paper with broad margin, and in clear type. It will be bound in beautiful half calf with gilt top. Each volume will be boxed, and the whole series will form a line of very attractive books for Holiday presents, and as the illustrations are copyrighted, the line can only be procured from ourselves.

The price will be $1.50, excepting for copyright books, which will be $2.00 and $2.50 per volume.

COLUMBUS MEMORIAL

Containing the First Letter of Columbus Descriptive of His Voyage to the New World; the Latin Letter to His Royal Patrons, and a Narrative of the Four Voyages of

AMERIGO VESPUCCI,

Reproduced in fac-simile from the Unique and Excessively Rare Originals. With translations, introductions and notes.

EDITED BY GEORGE YOUNG.

This work is perhaps the most important contribution to the literature of the period. It comprises the Latin and Spanish Letters of Columbus, written by him on February 15, 1493, to announce the Discovery of the New World; also Vespucci's account of his First Four Voyages.

The original editions of the Columbus Letters are in the possession of the Lenox Library of New York; their value cannot be estimated. A copy of Vespucci's Voyages is worth at least $5000.

In order to secure an extensive circulation for the Memorial, its price has been fixed at a figure which places it within the reach of all.

The work is handsomely printed upon specially prepared paper, and is a fine specimen of nineteenth century typography. It is profusely illustrated.

Paper, untrimmed edges, 50 Cents; Cloth, $1.00.

An extra edition of 200 numbered large-paper copies, printed upon hand-made paper, is in preparation.

Tait, Sons & Company's New Books.

Americans in Europe.

By ONE OF THEM. 12mo, cloth, $1.00. [Ready July 1.

This remarkable volume, which casts so strong and at times so fierce a light on American life abroad and the evils to which it is constantly exposed, is, beyond all doubt, destined to make a very great stir, and especially among travelers and those who are already to some extent familiar with the conditions of existence in European Capitals. The author, whose identity is only withheld temporarily, has had an unequalled opportunity of acquainting himself with his subject, and the result is a trenchant and powerful work without a single dull line within its covers. The book is absolutely indispensable to all contemplating a foreign residence for themselves or relatives.

At the Rising of the Moon.

By FRANK MATHEW. Illustrated by Fred Pegram and A. S. Boyd. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

In these stories and studies, the biographer of Father Mathew has done for Moher and its people very much what Mr. Barrie has done for Thrums in his "Idylls." They are in turns racy, humorous and deeply pathetic, like the life, indeed, which they represent so sympathetically.

Tavistock Tales.

By GILBERT PARKER (author of "The Chief Factor," etc.) and others. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

Mr. Gilbert Parker's talent is very conspicuous in this work, and the same may be said of the other authors. Each story rivals the other in dramatic force and skill in treatment. No better book for the holidays can be imagined.

Mrs. Clift-Crosby's Niece.

By ELLA CHILDS HURLBUT. 12mo, cloth, $1.00.

This is an exceedingly piquant society novel. It abounds in striking passages, and its easy, unbroken style makes its reflection of fashionable life singularly faithful and clear. It is rare, indeed, that fashionable New York finds so gifted an illustrator as Mrs. Hurlbut.

Gossip of the Caribbees.

By W. R. H. TROWBRIDGE, JR. Illustrated. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

These sketches of West Indian life are drawn with a skill and finish very rare in a young author. They reveal, in the whirl of fashionable colonial gayety and its accompanying petty jealousies, a freshness and intensity of existence incompatible with our ideas of tropical or subtropical life, but they are, nevertheless, amazingly real as depicted by the writer. A highly interesting and instructive book.

What One Woman Thinks.

ESSAYS OF HARYOT HOLT CAHOON. With frontispiece. Edited by CYNTHIA M. WESTOVER. 12mo, cloth, gilt top, $1.25.

What Mrs. Cahoon "thinks" is worthy of the perusal of every man and every woman, and her essays will be found to afford food for very interesting and profitable reflection. The style is crisp, epigrammatic and enjoyable.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM has just issued "Sanctified Spice," a volume of gleanings from the sermons of Madison C. Peters, pastor of the Bloomingdale Reformed Church, New York City, which the Review of Reviews pronounces "keen, pithy utterances upon various subjects of the day;" and "Revelation by Character," by Robert Tuck, who describes Old Testament lives.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just published "Stories of the South" in the dainty series already containing "Stories of New York" and "Stories of the Railway;" and the "Literary History of Early Christianity," by Charles T. Cruttwell. Among their latest importations are "Founders of Old Testament Criticism," by T. K. Cheyne; and "Modern Painting," by George Moore.

GINN & Co., Boston, have nearly ready No. IV. in the series of Cornell Studies in Classical Philology. "The Development of the Earlier Athenian Constitution," by George W. Botsford. No. V., in preparation, is to be entitled "On the Ritual of the Asklepios Cult," by Dr. Alice Walton. The same publishers announce a new series of Latin Classics for Schools, under the editorial supervision of W. C. Collar, of the Roxbury Latin School, and John Tetlow, of the Girls' High and Latin Schools, Boston.

JORDAN BROS., Philadelphia, publish an interesting contribution to the Columbus literature of this Columbian year. It is called "The Columbus Memorial," and consists of Columbus' first letter describing the voyage to the New World, the Latin letter to his royal patrons, and a narrative of the four voyages of Amerigo Vespucci. These are reproduced in fac-simile from the rare originals, and have been edited and translated, with an introduction and notes, by George Young. The "Memorial" is finely printed upon specially prepared paper, and besides the regular edition, a limited number of copies printed upon hand-made paper are shortly to be issued.

BOUSSOD, VALADON & Co. have in preparation the Paris "Salon," 1893, a review of the most remarkable paintings exhibited at the Champs-Élysées and Champ de Mars. The text is by Gaston Jollivet, of the Figaro, translated by Henry Bacon. The work will contain one hundred illustrations in photogravure, two etchings, and one water-color fac-simile in goupilgravure. There will be several editions at various prices. This house will also issue "Jacqueline," an original story by Th. Bentzon, translated by Mrs. Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, with illustrations by Albert Lynch; and "Mary Stuart," by John Skelton, a historical work taking the part of the unhappy Scotch queen. All these issues will be models of bookmaking.

TAIT, SONS & Co. are just about to publish half a dozen new books of more than average interest. They are: "Americans in Europe," by a writer who for a time withholds his identity, but who describes with unsparing veracity the phases of American life abroad, the evils to which it is exposed, and the varying social and moral conditions of existence in European capitals; "At the Rising of the Moon," a volume of stories and studies, by Frank Mathew, somewhat in the vein of Mr. Barrie's "Thrums" sketches, portraying the humorous, pathetic and dramatic sides of village life; "Tavistock Tales," a volume of short stories, by Gilbert Parker; "Mrs. Clift-Crosby's Niece," by Ella Childs Hurlbut, a piquant society novel of fashionable New York; "Gossip of the Caribbees," fresh and unconventional sketches of West Indian life, by W. H. R. Trowbridge, Jr.; and "What One Woman Thinks," a volume of essays, by Haryot Holt Cahoon, edited by Cynthia M. Westover.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no prices, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

A guide in every-day conduct in all matters and also a mentor in the important affairs of life; it gives the rules to be observed by children in their conduct towards their parents, and the duties of parents toward their children; it goes into the etiquette of entertaining and visiting thoroughly, and will be found most useful either to the inexperienced hostess or to the visitor unaccustomed to society; in the relations between husband and wife it gives rules which will induce and preserve harmony; and likewise offers a code to the business man and a guide to the sportsman.

Cone, Orello, D.D. The gospel and its earliest interpretations: a study of the teaching of Jesus and its doctrinal transformations in the New Testament. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1893. c. 8+413 p. O. cl., $1.75.

"The object of this work is to elucidate the teaching of Jesus and to present both in their relation to it and to one another the principal types of religious doctrine contained in the New Testament. The pursuit of this object has led to a consideration of the resemblances and differences which exist between the word of the Master and the interpretations of it by his followers who composed the several writings of that book. While the classification of the New Testament literature results from critical processes, it was not consistent with the limits proposed to enter upon a detailed discussion of them, and no more has been attempted in this direction than to present those grounds of the classification adopted which are apparent from an analysis of the writings."—Preface.

De Witt, J., D.D. What is inspiration? A fresh study of the question, with new and discriminative replies. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1893.] c. 8+187 p. D. cl., $1.

The writer is a member of the American Old Testament Revision Company, and for many years professor of Biblical exegesis in the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J.; author of "The Psalms, a new translation with notes."

Douglas, Amanda M. Bertha Wray's new name. Bost., Lee & Shepard, 1893. c. 3-405 p. D. cl., $1.50.

Bertha Wray was the daughter of a New England school master, who died on the night of her birth: her mother's death following shortly afterward Bertha is taken in hand by a spinster aunt, who confers on the baby a name which later becomes the child's aversion. The story tells how fate, a rich granduncle and the girl's own fancy conspire to give her a more fitting name, and closes with a romantic episode of her life.

- Macdonald, G: Heather and snow. N. Y., Harper, 1893. 6+285 p. D. cl., $1.25.
In Scotland, the land of heather and snow, the incidents of the story are lived by a healthy, happy, poetic girl, her weak-minded brother and her lover, who is the son of an intemperate mother, lady of the manor. All the author's old dreaminess and poetic interpretation of religious doctrines are found in this tale of a good girl's influence on men and women. For a short time the scene is India during the mutiny.

Matthews, Ja. Brander. The decision of the court: a comedy. N. Y., Harper, 1893. c. 6-60 p. por. il. T. (Harper's black and white ser.) cl., 50 c.

The scene is Newport late in September. Mrs. Stanyhurst, née Kitty Van Kortlandt, of New York, has been suing for a divorce from her husband, an Englishman, on the ground of incompatibility, and has been residing in Newport alone for a year, the law making such a residence there requisite. Just as she is expecting "the decision of the court" giving her her divorce, her husband is announced; he comes on the plea of business and a pretty comedy is played between the two, to which there is a most unexpected ending.

Merriam, Lucius S. The theory of final utility in its relation to money and the standard of deferred payments. Phil., American Acad. of Political and Social Science, [1893.] 93-109 p. O. (Publications of the society, no. 78.) pap., 25 c.

In the annals of the society for November, 1892, appeared a paper on "The standard of deferred payments," by Prof. E. A. Ross, of Cornell University, discussing the subject principally from the standpoint of value. The detection of some errors in his discussion suggested to the present writer the need of a special study of the relation of the theory of final utility to money in general and the standard of deferred payments in particular. In this pamphlet he first presents the results of such a study and then briefly criticises Prof. Ross' article in the light of those results.

Nibelungenlied (The); or, lay of the Nibelung. N. Y., G: Routledge & Sons, 1893. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Ottolengui, Rodrigues. A conflict of evidence. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, [1893.] c. 3+347 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The story opens with the discovery of a mysterious murder in a small New Hampshire village. The victim is an elderly man, wealthy and respected. The niece of the murdered man, her lover and two other young people fall under suspicion. Two of these suspected persons separately confess to having committed the murder; another is pointed out as the murderer by a convincing chain of circumstance. From this "conflict of evidence" the right clue is disentangled by one of the two detectives on the case—the Mr. Barnes who figured in the author's previous story, "An artist in crime." The identity of the real criminal is a complete surprise.

Pardon, G: F., ed. Opera stories. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1893. 8-194 p. il. D. pap., 50 c.

The plots of eleven operas are given in the form of stories.

Phillpotts, Eden. Summer clouds, and other stories; il. by Harrold Copping. N. Y., Raphael Tuck & Sons, 1893. 92 p. por. il. S. (Breezy lib., no. 2.) pap., 50 c.

The initial story is an amusing sketch of a honeymoon in the wilds of Dartmoor, the brightness of which is for a time obscured by "Summer clouds." This is followed by "Tom-tit," a pathetic little tale of an abandoned child who is adopted by the warm-hearted comedian of a country theatre and most of whose short life is passed upon the stage. A poem, "A dead rose," concludes the book. By the author of "Folly and fresh air."

Putnam, S: P. Religion a curse, religion a disease, religion a lie. N. Y., The Truth Seeker Co., [1893.] 2-96 p. D. (Truth Seeker lib., no. 82.) pap., 25 c.

- Scott, W. A. The repudiation of state debts: a study in the financial history of Mississippi, Florida, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee, Minnesota, Michigan and Virginia. N. Y., T. Y. Crowell & Co., 1893. c. 6+325 p. D. (Library of economics and politics, no. 2.) cl., $1.50.
- By "repudiation" Dr. Scott means not merely the absolute avoidance of the obligation to pay just debts but also the "scaling" of debts and the refusal to settle bonds which were not valid from either a moral or legal standpoint. Under this broad general use of the term Dr. Scott presents in a succinct and scholarly style a digest of the constitutional law, state and national in so far as it bears on the subject of repudiation, and comes to the conclusion that the holder of repudiated bonds has no efficent means for enforcing the payment of his dues. He describes in detail the various acts of repudiation passed by twelve states. He gives a careful scientific explanation of the facts presented, and, finally, in the last chapter, discusses various remedies for those evils of defalcation and dishonesty which have brought such heavy penalties upon the states thus compromised.

- A dramatization of Solomon's "Song of songs." The view the author takes in his exposition is: "that the heroine of this poetic drama is to be understood as a fair young maiden of northern Palestine, whom King Solomon is supposed to have sought in vain to win. She resists all his blandishments, rejects all his offers, and remains true to her shepherd lover, to whom she is at last restored."
- United States. Circuit court for the southern district of New York. Rules; rev. by J: A. Shields, clk. N. Y., Baker, Voorhis & Co., 1893. c. 63 p. O. pap., 75 c.

- West, Max. The inheritance tax. N. Y., [Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman, Columbia College,] 1893. 8-140 p. O. (Columbia College studies, v. 4, no. 2.) pap., 75 c.
- "The growing importance of the inheritance tax in America is shown by its adoption within a few years by a number of commonwealths, and by the consideration of the question in some form during the past winter by fully a dozen legislatures. As yet there has been no American work on the subject, treating it from other than a legal standpoint. Such being the case, an historical and economic examination of the subject may not be inappropriate at this time."—Preface. Contains a bibliography of seven pages.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JUNE 24, 1893.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, must reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of "The American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of all trade bibliography in the United States.

THE PROFESSION OF BOOKSELLING.

MOVING AND TAKING STOCK.—III.

THE process of taking stock, as may have been inferred from our introductory remarks, is considered by us as one of great difficulty and requiring much consideration. Indeed, it calls for the greatest care and quick and correct judgment on the part of the one entrusted with this delicate task, because for every foot of shelves he covers he is called upon to decide and determine upon the value of the stock before him. Shall it be taken at the purchase price? Must allowance be made for depreciation in value? If so, wherein has the stock depreciated? From wear and tear? Because it is unsalable, or goes slowly? From over-purchase? If not from any of these causes, why has it depreciated? When the cause has been determined upon the questions arise, What allowance shall be made? From the retail price or from the cost price? These, we admit, are knotty points; they arise on every occasion that stock is taken, and call for cool and deliberate judgment, because on their decision hangs the safety of the business.

The only safe rule, we think, is to take stock at the cost price. That is, such stock as is constantly moving. The moment it ceases to go, it begins to rapidly depreciate in value: hence it would be exceedingly unwise to take it at its cost value. Another valuation, therefore, must be put upon it. What that valuation should be must depend upon the knowledge and judgment of the one taking stock. No hard and fast rules can be laid down for this process, for instance that certain stock should be taken at $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{4}$, or 75%.

Let us take, for example, the sections devoted to any one publisher. The chances are that every variety of that publisher's stock will be represented therein. What would be the best method for making a proper valuation of it?

First, select as you go along all the salable and regular stock which cost say 40%. Draw this out from the shelves a couple of inches, and let it remain in that position until you have made a memorandum of it. This will leave for your consideration the stock that has become "slow." Here the question will arise, Is any of this stock "replace stock," that is such of which you sell one or two copies a year? If any part of it is, it should be taken at its regular cost price, and then be pulled out in line with the regular stock. Now we have left only the old stock, and here is "the rub." Is it worth ten, twenty, thirty, fifty cents on the dollar? It is safer by far to undervalue such stock than to overvalue it, and while it may be well to carry some of it on the chance that it has not yet outlived its usefulness, much of it undoubtedly should be weeded out. Some of it can be put down at half off or lumped as "so many volumes at such a price," the remainder set down to profit and loss and thrown into the "clearance sale" pile.

Talking of clearance sales, which often excite wonder that they can be made to pay, reminds us of the assertion made by an expert that "they are the triumphant result of accurate stock-taking." It is true that many not behind the scenes are puzzled at the apparent paradox of any one making a profit by selling some article at something like half its original cost. It is by the way not at all a bad plan in a department of an extensive business to keep a running note of the average cost of the entire stock of such a department, or of all those goods which are any way kindred to each other, as it has happened before now that a buyer has been so struck by the low figure as a whole, that he has cleared the lot.

The trouble with some of the smaller dealers is that they cling to old stock with a tenacity bred partly of indolence and partly of ignorance. Such people remind one of those land tortoises which a gentleman, possessed of more tobacco than brains, taught to smoke cigars. When turned on their backs they were obliged to open their mouths to breathe. The unlighted end of a lighted cigar being inserted they were set on their legs and crawled away solemnly breathing out smoke. Either through indolence or ignorance, or both, it never occurred to the tortoises to drop it, so they went on their way in discomfort. 'Tis well to be off with the old loves, or at least rate them according to actual merit, so that they will go off without difficulty. And to prepare for the future by intelligently dealing with the past, is one of the best means of securing and keeping a position amongst the intelligent and useful members of the mercantile profession.

THE sudden announcement of the wrecking of the Cassell Publishing Company, Ltd., will be felt as a shock throughout the trade, and especially by the many members of the book trade who have for years known and trusted Mr. Dunham. Although the facts seem to be admitted, it is scarcely fair that a judgment should be pronounced against a man of his standing until the other side has been heard, and it is to be hoped that Mr. Dunham will appear to face any consequences either of his error, or misdoing and do all that he can to set himself right in the eyes of the many who have liked and respected him. The financial outcome of the whole business, important as it is, is insignificant compared with the fall of a man of Mr. Dunham's standing, and if it is true that the affairs of the company and of himself are as stated, his associates and his family will have doubly the sympathy of the trade.

WE publish elsewhere a letter from a well-known bookseller, referring to the method of handling Gen. Wallace's new book which Messrs. Harper have adopted. Their course is intended as a vigorous step to cure certain evils as to which the trade has been long complaining; but it certainly should, as is suggested, go one point further, and include an understanding that if a discount is to be given on the retail price of the book to individual buyers, that should not exceed twenty per cent. The Messrs. Harper have given liberal discounts on the book, probably recognizing the fact that booksellers feel called upon to give a discount to their customers and that it is easier to acknowledge this than to attempt to issue the book at a net price. That, however, is what the whole plan practically will amount to: an actual price somewhat lower than the published price, with discounts sufficiently large to take that fact into consideration. We trust sincerely that the several steps made by different houses in that direction will ultimately result in the establishment of a lower net price for books, with discounts arranged somewhat on the method adopted in this case by Messrs. Harper.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

THE WHITE CITY, JUNE 12, 1893.

THE Columbian World's Exposition, view it from whatever point we may, is overwhelming in detail as well as in mass. The American people has simply outdone itself—one feels tempted to say, has overdone it. Not alone the Americans have sinned in this direction, but the foreigners also, tempted by the opportunities offered, have shown themselves off in as many places as possible. One finds a repetition of similar exhibits by the same parties in a number of buildings and departments, in which it may have been difficult to draw the line, but where one feels the line should have been drawn, even at the expense of sacrificing some of the exhibits.

On every hand one is appalled at the thought of the time, labor, energy and money required in preparing, forwarding and putting up such an exhibit only as that made by the various educational institutions of this country. This is, perhaps, without conception, the most creditable of any exhibit made, and one of which the country may justly feel proud, testifying as it does to the great advance in the intellectual development of its people during the seventeen years since our Centennial Exposition.

Architecturally this exposition is an almost endless source of wonder, admiration and inspiration. This feature alone amply repays the visitor for all the time, trouble and expense he may have invested in coming hither. Dazzling in daylight, changing with every mood and movement of the spectator, singularly resplendent at night when aflame with myriads of lights, its classic and heroic proportions make an impression that time will hardly efface. For this reason, it is a matter of regret that such noble works of art should not have been cast in more enduring material that they might have stood as monuments to the enterprise of this country and for the education of coming generations in the noble and beautiful in art.

The interest of the book-lover in general and of those connected with the book trade in particular, centres, of course, in the exhibits of the publishing houses of America, Germany, France and England. Of these Germany, in its quaint old German house on Lake Michigan in charge of Mr. Otto Baumgärtel, assisted by Mr. Ed. Ackermann, of Chicago, stands easily first when numbers are considered—three hundred and thirty-three firms being represented, of which the firm of Bernhard Tauchnitz alone exhibits upwards of two thousand volumes. France with its collective exhibit artistically arranged and under the able and energetic direction of M. Emil Terquem, in the gallery of the eastern wing of the Manufactures and Liberal Arts section, facing Lake Michigan, and the United States, with its individual exhibits of about sixty firms, in the gallery of the northwest corner of the same buildings may stand together, each as an exemplar of its own method of exhibiting. England, we are surprised to find, is conspicuous by its absence—a few only of lesser known houses being represented by show-cases that are left to guard and explain themselves. Raphael Tuck & Sons have a large display of cards and chromo-lithographs in this department, and Mr. Zaehnsdorf has a show-case displaying samples of some of his inexpensive bindings and a few samples of his better work. On the ground floor of the Manufactures Building two or three publishing firms are represented in the Spanish department.

The antiquarian will find much interesting matter in the quaint little monastery of La Rabida, on the lake front adjoining the Krupp exhibit. The monastery of La Rabida, located near the town of Palos, Spain, was the refuge on two different occasions of Christopher Columbus. The monks of this institution becoming interested in the plans of Columbus encouraged him and gave him letters to influential persons at court, who eventually assisted him in procuring the desired aid to fit out his expedition. It was a happy thought of the government to erect a fac-simile of this building so closely connected with the memory of Columbus and a shelter for all the relics of Columbus that have been secured for exhibition. Here will be found the originals of many of the famous portraits of Columbus, documents and autographs of great rarity; original maps, among them the Da Vinci map loaned by Queen Victoria, and the Cosa Chart of the West Indies, loaned by the government of Spain; together with a large number of scarce volumes relating to America, including the Vatican exhibit of valuable historical documents and objects of art from the archives of the Vatican, loaned by Pope Leo XIII.

The exhibit of the American Library Association; the specimen of embroidered bindings in the Women's Building and in the jewelry department of the French section; the exhibition of the L'Imprimerie Française at the foot of the stairs, east side column, N. 66, or inside the French Court next to the bronze exhibits; and the unique exhibit of Puck comprise about all that may have even the remotest interest to the trade, the teacher, librarian or book-lover. A fuller description of the various publishers' sections must be deferred to another issue. A. G.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY WRECKED.

THE report that the Cassell Publishing Company is insolvent and in the hands of a receiver gives a shock that will be felt far beyond the book trade. The cause given for the sudden wrecking of a prosperous corporation is specially distressing. Mr. Oscar M. Dunham, its president, stands accused of converting $180,000 of the funds of the concern to his own use. The Cassell Publishing Co. purchased the American business of Cassell & Co., of London, in 1890, paying $330,000 in cash for the good-will and plant. Mr. Dunham, who had for years been manager in America for the English house, became president of the new organization, and Hezekiah G. Archer, vice-president. The company has been prosperous and last year, according to the statement submitted by Mr. Dunham to the directors, cleared $30,481.71. The crash came without warning. There was no suspicion of wrong until last Saturday. Mr. Dunham left his office on Thursday, June 15, and has not since been seen or heard from by his business associates or his family. On Saturday Walter H. Wagstaff, the treasurer, called a meeting of the directors, and they notified the lawyers of the firm, Tracy, Boardman & Platt. Under Mr. Platt's direction Mr. Dunham's desk was examined, and this investigation led to a full revelation. To protect his own interests, Mr. Archer went into court and submitted the following affidavit:

"Oscar M. Dunham had been for many years the manager in the United States of the business of Cassell & Co. when said purchase was made, and the defendant corporation organized largely through his efforts. He subscribed for a large amount of the capital stock, over 1400 shares, and in order to pay for the stock Dunham borrowed large sums of money on short time, from various persons, and as said loans matured he met the same by fraudulently making and signing in the name of the defendant its promissory notes, which he discounted and applied the proceeds thereof to the payment of his own individual debts, and he has continued to renew such fraudulent notes, or take up the same by using other similar fraudulent notes of the defendant corporation.

"He has also, ever since the organization of the corporation, fraudulently used its credit for his own purposes by discounting its commercial paper and using the proceeds thereof to pay his individual debts. In addition to the regular promissory note-book kept by the treasurer, in which the legitimate notes of the corporation were regularly numbered and entered, the proper entries also being carried into the other books of the corporation, the said Oscar M. Dunham also kept another note-book in which said fraudulent notes discounted or used by defendant Dunham for his own purpose were entered.

"Said fraudulent notes were not entered upon any of the books of the corporation, and the facts that they were in existence and that the defendant was fraudulently using the credit of the corporation were carefully kept by him concealed from the knowledge of all of the officers, directors and members of the corporation other than Walter H. Wagstaff, the treasurer; and plaintiff had no knowledge that any such fraudulent notes were in existence, or that Oscar M. Dunham had ever been guilty of any of the fraudulent acts and practices until June 17, 1893, when the facts above stated were told him in substance by said Wagstaff."

Lawyer Frank H. Platt, of the firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt, counsel for Archer, says that on Saturday he went with Archer to the corporation's office and examined the desk of Mr. Dunham. Mr. Platt and Mr. Wagstaff examined the private note-book, and found that thirty-four promissory notes were outstanding, aggregating $168,500, all of which had been drawn since January 12 last. They all fall due between June 15 and some time in October next. Four other notes for $5000 each are referred to in the note-book, dated April 20 and 22 last. Mr. Platt says they were signed by Mr. Dunham, but he has been unable to learn if they were also signed in behalf of the corporation. None of these notes, Mr. Platt says, was entered in the regular books of the corporation. All the notes were given by Mr. Dunham to Mr. J. W. Chapman, a note broker, doing business at 31 Wall Street, who sold them to various persons. Mr. Dunham got the proceeds, but the proceeds do not figure in the regular books of the company. Mr. Platt found in the safe what appeared to be two balance-sheets for twelve months ending December 31, 1892. One was a false balance-sheet, with the "bills payable and accounts" increased from $151,316.64 to $211,316.64. On the other side the amount of "amounts due" was increased from $328,444.98 to $388,444.98.

an increase of $60,000 appearing therefore on each side of the balance-sheet. Mr. Platt asked Treasurer Wagstaff what the two balance-sheets meant, and he replied :

"It was necessary for Mr. Dunham to show the company's balance-sheet to Note Broker Chapman in order to obtain further discounts. If the true balance-sheet had been shown, Chapman would have seen at once that the entry of bills payable to the amount of $151,316.64 was false, as he knew of notes outstanding in greater amount than that. Therefore it was necessary to increase the amount of bills payable in the balance-sheet to be shown Chapman in order to deceive him. Dunham, therefore, ordered $60,000 to be added arbitrarily to each side of the balance-sheet for that purpose, which was done, and the false balance-sheet was so used for the purpose of so deceiving said Chapman, and through him the persons discounting the corporation's notes."

Annexed to the affidavit is the following copy of the balance-sheet of the company for twelve months ending December 31, 1892 :

The receiver appointed by Judge Lawrence, Mr. H. J. Broker, is the president of the H. J. Broker Importing Company, of No. 95 William Street, which deals in castor oil. The Union Trust Company was designated in the judge's order as the depository of the funds of Cassell & Co.

Vice-President Archer declared in his petition that the business, if honestly conducted, would yield good returns, and that it was to the interest of every creditor to have it continued, but that would be impossible without the intervention of the court, as the property would be dissipated if the creditors suddenly enforced their claims.

The failure of a house like the Cassell's will involve many smaller concerns, and notably manufacturers, printers and binders. Their credit was always unquestioned and people accepted work from them and took their paper as they would gold in liquidation of large bills. It is impossible yet to say how widespread the disaster is. The receiver is a man of excellent business standing and is now at work with two expert accountants upon the books of the firm.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A BLOW AT COMBINATIONS.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 19, 1893.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

DEAR SIR : Harper & Brothers are sending in advance of their traveller, Col. Ammon, the following agreement, which they ask the booksellers to sign :

"Agreement regarding 'The Prince of India.'

"We, the undersigned, hereby agree not to sell Wallace's 'The Prince of India' to any of our customers, directly or indirectly, at better than — net on smaller quantities than 25 copies ordered by one party at one time. On orders for 25 copies at one time we agree not to sell at better than — net."

"We also agree that we will not divide our order for this book with any other party, nor will we club with any other party for the book, nor exchange our supply of the book with any other party for other stock."

"We agree to this stipulation on the part of the publishers, in consequence of their offering to sell the book in the quantities and at the discounts as follows :"

[Special rates for 500, 250, 100, 25 copies.]

"Less than 25 copies, at customer's regular discount."

This circular must be construed as being particularly intended for the dry-goods dealers, for they are the ones who make combinations and cut prices. If Harper & Bros. are engaged in the praiseworthy enterprise of breaking up dry-goods combinations the booksellers ought to join hands with them heartily. To make such an effort effectual in preventing the cutting of prices they should put a clause in their agreement binding dealers from retailing at better than 20% off the list price.

As it is now, the large buyer can retail the book at the price the small buyer pays without breaking the agreement.

Inasmuch as combinations and cut prices are to be expected from the dry-goods dealers the booksellers should insist that the above clause be added to the agreement, and that Col. Ammon get the signatures of the dry-goods booksellers in each town before he asks for the signatures of the regular trade.

If, on the other hand, Harper & Bros. are simply trying to prevent the booksellers from combining and expect to sell the dry-goods combinations as usual, we think that their request is cool and that no bookseller ought to sign their paper.

That dry-goods stores do combine to buy books in quantities and that the booksellers ought to do so for protection is apparent. Do Harper & Bros. foresee the necessity for such combinations among booksellers in the case of "The Prince of India"? The dry-goods dealers will probably get the best prices on this book and they will use it as a leader, which means that it will be sold at a small profit and in some cases at an actual loss.

That being the case, such booksellers as are not able to take 500 copies of the book ought to combine to make up the quantity, and if Harper & Bros. try to prevent it they are not friendly to the regular trade, but rather put themselves on record as willing to do for the dry-goods dealers what they will not do for the legitimate trade.

It is the bookseller in the past that has helped make Harper & Bros. a great book-publishing house, and if any favors are to be shown it is due to the bookseller and not the dry-goods man. It is time the booksellers "took a drop" on themselves and on the publishers.

For some time publishers, not excepting such conservative houses as Harper & Bros., have catered for, and in some cases even been dictated to, by combinations of dry-goods houses because they purchased in large quantities. Then the publishers turn around and dictate these same prices and quantities to the bookseller, who frequently buys a larger quantity than he can handle or has the cheering knowledge that his dry-goods competitors are buying cheaper than he does, together with the fact that for the amount of business done the latter are under less expense in every count—rent, help, advertising and all.

The following from Harper's Weekly of June 17, page 571, is of interest. The western New York paper referred to is published in Rochester and the item shows what may be expected from the dry-goods bookseller in this city when "The Prince of India" is out:

"A dry-goods merchant advertises in a western New York paper that he is selling 'Reveries of a Bachelor,' 'Dream Life,' 'Scarlet Letter,' and all of that order at 8 cents, 'Webster's Dictionary' for 50 cents, and the 'Emerson tan-shoe for men for $3.50.' Certainly these are great days for American literature; nor is it altogether surprising that in a recent vote on the ten greatest works by American authors Emerson easily led all the rest."

The above is a good joke at the expense of the blundering dry-goods merchant which the intelligent readers of Harper's Weekly can appreciate, and so can the bookseller who knows what the prices quoted in this advertisement mean.

NOTICE TO THE TRADE:

NEW YORK, June 19, 1893.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

THE Brentano's beg to inform the trade that they have missed two numbered parts of a large illustrated work entitled "Reichenbachia," published by Sotheran & Co., London, and would feel greatly obliged if notice should be sent to them if the same be offered for sale or otherwise come to the notice of any firm or individual.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MR. ARTHUR H. CLARK, of the English department of The Burrows Brothers Co., of Cleveland, will sail for Europe for a two months' trip on the Tenonic, June 28.

AFTER resting in this city just long enough to recover from the effects of his voyage on the Etruria, Walter Besant, the famous English novelist, left Tuesday for New Haven. He intends to spend several weeks in New England among the scenes made famous by Hawthorne, Emerson, Whittier, Longfellow and other writers, making his trip to Chicago for the Exposition and the meeting of the International Congress of Authors, July 10, an incident in his outing. Mr. Besant has brought with him eight papers for the congress, some of which he will read and leave the rest to be incorporated with the minutes of the meeting in permanent form. Mr. Besant is evolving a new novel to deal with London subjects.

OBITUARY NOTES.

THE REV. THOMAS MOZLEY died at Cheltenham on Saturday, June 17. He was born in 1806, was graduated from Oriel College, Oxford, in 1828, and became an editorial writer on the staff of the London Times in 1844, and retained the connection to the time of his death. Several volumes of his writings have been published.

M. GROT, the well-known Russian littérateur, has died in his eighty-first year. A clerk in the office of the Council of the Empire, he became known in the thirties by his translations of Byron's "Mazeppa" and the "Fritbiof-Saga." In 1840 he was appointed professor of Russian literature in the University of Helsingfors, and in 1853 tutor of the present emperor and his elder brother. He edited the works of the poet, Derjavine, and the fabulist, Chemnitzer, three volumes of the papers of Catherine I., and also her correspondence with Grimm, upon which he further wrote a monograph. He published two volumes of philological researches, a manual of Russian orthography, and a Swedish-Russian dictionary, which was issued at the expense of the Russian government.

GASTON L. FEUARDENT, the archæologist and numismatist, who was the first to call attention to the unscientific condition of the valuable Cesnola collection of Cypriote antiquities in the Metropolitan Museum, died Monday, June 19, at his home in New York City. His natural taste and skill in matters of archæology and art had been so developed by the studies of a lifetime that his word carried weight in the councils of amateurs and professional students. Mr. Feuardent was born near Cherbourg fifty years ago. Before coming to this country in 1876, he had represented in London the well-known Paris house of Rollin & Feuardent. In 1877 he became a member of the Numismatic Society of New York. Lieut.-Commander Gorringe submitted to him the Greek inscriptions, with the coins found at or near the Alexandrian obelisk now in Central Park, and he presented the best monograph on the subject which is known. His attempt to open the eyes of the directors of the Metropolitan Museum to the character of the Cesnola antiquities injured his business to such an extent that he may fairly be considered a martyr to the cause of art and archæology in this city.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THOMAS NELSON PAGE and his bride have been stopping at Niagara Falls for a few days.

MAURICE BOUCHER, the French poet, is now on his way to the World's Fair.

ARLO BATES, the Boston novelist, has been elected professor of English literature in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

MR. GEORGE PARSONS LATHROP, who went over to Catholicism not long ago, has accepted the editorship of the Visitor, a Catholic weekly published in Providence, R. I.

EDMUND GOSSE has collected another volume of his recent contributions to periodicals, which will have the title "Questions at Issue." It will be issued in style about uniform with his "Gossip in a Library."

W. H. BISHOP, the novelist, has been appointed instructor in French and Spanish at the Yale Scientific School. He will begin work at the opening of the next college year and will live in New Haven.

PROFESSOR W. M. RAMSAY received a few days ago a gold medal of Leo XIII., 1890, with a most complimentary letter in Latin from Cardinal Rampolli about his book on the Church in the Roman Empire, which was presented to the Pope by De Rossi. The Pope had been much interested in the book, and had ordered it to be placed in the new hall which is to hold the library of reference-books.

HARRIET BEECHER STOWE was eighty-one years old on June 14. She lives in a pretty but unpretentious gray stone cottage in Hartford, where she is cared for by her daughters. Notably active of body, for her years, she is ever on foot, and her bent, slight figure, with its white hair crowning the dark, wrinkled face, is a familiar sight in the neighborhood. She wanders in and out, and is fond of slipping across the street to the home of her sister, Mrs. Hooker, and one of her delights is to hear music sung or played.

FERDINAND BRUNETIÈRE, critic and author, was elected on June 8 a member of the French Academy, to fill the chair among the "Immortals" left vacant by the death of Taine. Brunetière was born at Toulon, France, in July, 1849. He was appointed lecturer on the French language and literature in the Normal School, and in 1887 received the decoration of the Legion of Honor. His works numbering, a dozen, are chiefly critical essays on French literature, and he has also prepared a number of annotated editions of French classics.

M. HENRI DE BORNIER was received into the French Academy on May 26. "M. Henri de Bornier has written many works, but his reputation as a dramatic poet," says the N. Y. Tribune "was established especially by his tragedy in five acts, 'Roland's Daughter,' which was played with great success at the Comédie Française, the first of the French theatres. The play waited for eleven years in the drawers of the direction of the theatre before being produced. Some years ago M. de Bornier had presented a drama called 'Mahomet,' which occasioned an exchange of diplomatic notes between the French and Turkish governments, because the latter objected to the founder of the Moslem religion being made the subject of a theatrical performance."

A MONUMENT to William Cullen Bryant will be placed in Central Park. It has been decided to take the bronze bust of the poet, the work of Launt Thompson, now in the Metropolitan Museum, which was executed several years ago but could not be placed in the park until the poet had been dead five years. Ernest Flagg, the architect, has now designed the monument in which this bust will rest. It is to be of Carrara white marble, on a sub-base of granite block. It will be inscribed with the names of the Century Club members who subscribed to help pay for its erection. It will likewise contain, carved in its marble panels, the titles of many of the poet's favorite works, his name, and upon the base of the pedestal the title of his greatest production, "Thanatopsis." The monument will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000, and, says the N. Y. Times, will be one of the handsomest works of art in the line of memorial monuments in this country.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Homiletic Review for July has an article on "Religious Books and Reading," by Prof. Hunt, of Princeton.

THE Art Journal for June has just appeared, and includes a timely article, fully illustrated, concerning the celebrated Spitzer collection of fine-art objects.

Lippincott's Magazine for July will contain "An Old-Fashioned View of Fiction," by Maurice Francis Egan; "The New Poetry and Mr. W. E. Henley," by Gilbert Parker; and "Certain Points of Style in Writing," by Edgar Fawcett.

THE issue of the Christian Union for June 10 is its special Outing Number. Eighty or more pages of summer reading-matter, illustrations in color and in black and white, very full information about summer resorts, routes of travel, etc.

Macmillan's Magazine for June contains an article on "Rare Books," by an anonymous writer, which the Publishers' Circular says "is one to which collectors will turn with interest." It particularly points out the difference between a rare book and one difficult to obtain.

THE CURRENT LITERATURE PUBLISHING CO., in the July issue of Short Stories, will offer prizes of $50 each for a story constructed on a plot given by the editor; for a story having Chicago and the World's Fair for its scene; and for the best story without restriction as to theme or treatment.

McClure's Magazine for July will contain "An Afternoon with Oliver Wendell Holmes," prepared by Edward Everett Hale; the first instalment of the story of the Brontës in Ireland, and portraits of Edward Everett Hale, M. de Blowitz, Thomas A. Edison, and Daniel Vierge, the great illustrator.

A GROUP of clever artists will contribute brief papers to Scribner's, giving their impressions of the World's Fair, both in text and illustrations, from their note-books. Among them are J. A. Mitchell, editor of Life, Will H. Low and F. Hopkinson Smith. The first of these papers, by W. Hamilton Gibson, appears in the July issue.

THE July St. Nicholas will contain an article on the Children's Building at the World's Fair, by Mrs. Clara Doty Bates, who is in charge of the Children's Library at the fair. In the same issue will be an article on "Festival Days at Girls' Colleges," including illustrations taken at Wellesley, Bryn Mawr, Smith, Vassar and Harvard Annex.

THE following is the result of the votes received by the Revue Bleue from 764 readers in reply to a request for a list of the twenty-five best authors: Victor Hugo (616), Molière (563), Shakespeare (476), Racine (475), La Fontaine (426), Musset (426), Corneille (400), Goethe (393), Voltaire (388), Pascal (373), Lamartine (352), Homer (346), The Bible (331), Montaigne (300), Cervantes (288), Michelet (282), Balzac (256), Dante (246), Rénan (246), La Bruyère (245), Flaubert (240), Bossuet (239), Rabelais (237), A. Daudet (214), Virgil (207). Immediately following came the names of Zola, Taine and Thomas à Kempis.

BUSINESS NOTES.

BOSTON, MASS.—Winkley, Dresser & Co., the Milk Street stationers, have made an assignment to Francis Doan. The liabilities are $150,000 and the assets somewhere in the same neighborhood. The firm found itself unable to get its loans renewed soon enough and were obliged to suspend. Up to a few days ago they felt sure that they would pull through. Mr. Dresser, in fact, felt so sure that he could make ends meet that he took considerable money from his father, who lives in Cambridge. A loan of $6000 came to him last Friday, but it was too late and was returned.

BUTTE, MONT.—Kohlberg & Co. have incorporated under the name of The Butte Auction and Commission Co.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The failure of the Cassell Company has caused the works of the Mershon Printing Company at Rahway to shut down. A levy was made on $50,000 worth of stock of the Cassell Company, which was at the printing company's works. The levy was made to satisfy an attachment for $100,000 issued in New Jersey on the application of the Mershon Company.

NEW YORK CITY.—Mary O'Loughlin, publisher of books and newspapers, under the style of the Humboldt Publishing Company, at 19 Astor Place, has made an assignment to George H. Burnham, giving seven preferences for $2295. She succeeded Joseph Fitzgerald in the fall of 1888. About a year ago she bought the plates that stock of the Twentieth Century Publishing Company. Her means, which it was claimed were formerly $30,000, it is said in the trade, were all tied up in plates and stock. Her husband is Daniel O'Loughlin, who managed the business.

SYRACUSE, N. Y.—Wolcott and West have enlarged their quarters by taking in an additional store of equal dimensions next door, and connecting it by arches with the old location. Everything connected with stationery and office supplies will be displayed in the new store, and the old store will be devoted to books exclusively.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

EVERYBODY'S IDEAL, Albany, will issue shortly "The Guardian Angel," by Lillian, a book said to be a refutation of the doctrines of Robert Ingersoll.

CALDWELL & HOLT, Stanton, Va., will shortly issue a "Laboratory Manual of Chemistry," by G. B. M. Zerr, which they have had for some time in preparation.

A PHILADELPHIA publisher says he paid Mr. Blaine the last money he ever received for literary work. It was $5000 for about 12,000 words in a work dealing with Columbus.

THE curious beast on the cover of Mr. Kipling's volume of new stories, "Many Inventions," is from his father's "Man and Beast in India." Every inscription on the beast is a prayer.

THE first edition of Ella Wheeler Wilcox's new book, "Men, Women and Emotions," will be 20,000 copies. This has been made necessary by the large advance orders. The book will be ready early in July.

THE next volume of the Badminton Library will be "Swimming," written by Messrs. Archibald Sinclair and William Henry, joint hon. secretaries of the Life Saving Society, with illustrations by Mr. S. T. Dadd and from photographs.

LEE & SHEPARD have nearly ready "The Builders of American Literature," by F. H. Underwood; "Not Angels Quite," by Nathan Haskell Dole; "Joseph Zalmonah," by Edward King; and "Paula Ferris," a story of domestic life, by Mrs. Sanborn.

HERMANN HEINZE, Chicago, has just issued a "World's Fair Souvenir Pocket Map," twenty-five inches square, which shows every detail down to the peanut-stands and boot-blackening booths. It is printed on bond paper and folds up neatly within a leatherette cover.

THE well-known volume on "Coaching Days and Coaching Ways," written by Mr. Outram Tristram, and illustrated by Hugh Thomson and Herbert Railton, will shortly be reissued by Messrs. Macmillan & Co. in a smaller form, ranging with the illustrated editions of "Cranford" and the "Vicar of Wakefield."

LAIRD & LEE have bought the plates of Opie Reed's famous books, "A Kentucky Colonel," "Emmett Bonlore," "Len Gansett," "The Colossus," and a volume of "Selected Stories," and have also in preparation a new book by this favorite author. The books will be put in tasteful dress. Waterloo Stanley's "A Man and a Woman" will soon be issued in their Library of Choice Fiction.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will shortly publish Samuel H. Scudder's "Brief Guide to the Commoner Butterflies," which will be sufficiently full for all but the most inveterate collectors in the Northern States east of the Great Plains. They will also publish the same author's "The Life of a Butterfly," which presents in untechnical language the story of the life of a conspicuous American species.

THE UNIVERSITY PRESS, of Chicago, now issues five periodicals: the Biblical World, monthly; Hebraica, quarterly; the Journal of Political Economy, quarterly; the Journal of Geology, semi-quarterly; and the University Extension World. The University Department of Social Science proposes to publish monographs, preferring their elasticity of dimension and their immunity from the exigencies of periodical publication.

HENRY CAREY BAIRD & Co. have just issued "Street-Railway Motors," by Herman Haupt, giving descriptions and cost of plants and operation of the various systems in use or proposed for motive-power on street railways. The object is to give such simple explanations of principles as are of interest to practical men who may be called upon to furnish capital for construction or to use their votes in favor of any proposed system of rapid or local transit in cities.

A GOOD word, made it seems by chance, is the word news. The four letters comprising it tell that the information comes from all parts of the horizon: North, East, West, South. It was a clever French writer, Alphonse Karr, who made this discovery; but he missed noting also that, strangely enough, the French words for North, East, West, South, in precisely the same sequence as the initials in the English word, news, Nord, Est, Ouest, Sud—form the Greek word neos, new.

D. C. HEATH & Co. are about to publish an "Introduction to the Study of the Dependent, Defective and Delinquent Classes," by Charles Richmond Henderson, A.M., D.D., assistant professor of social science in the University of Chicago. The work has grown out of twenty years' experience and research; it digests in small compass the consensus of the competent in treating the criminal and the weak. For those who wish more than an introduction the whole literature of the subject is helpfully indicated. The book is intended for personal study, for teachers' and ministers' institutes and for clubs enlisted for philanthropic work.

HENRY D. LLOYD, of Chicago, formerly on the editorial staff of the Tribune of that city, has written a book on trusts, which will probably be published in the autumn. This book will summarize the history of the typical trusts, and present the evidence adduced against them in the courts, giving chapter and verse in each case. Mr. Lloyd's first tilt against the trusts was his paper, "The Story of a Great Monopoly," published in the Atlantic some ten years ago. When Robert Louis Stevenson read the paper he declared Mr. Lloyd to be one of the four best writers of America. In 1890 Mr. Lloyd wrote his pamphlet, "Millionaires Against Miners," in which he recounted the pitiful story of Spring Valley.

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish June 27 Dr. A. Conan Doyle's stirring story, "The Refugees," which attracted so much attention in Harper's Magazine. On the same day will appear in the Black and White Series Laurence Hutton's tribute to Edwin Booth, illustrated with original portraits; "A House-Hunter in Europe," by William Henry Bishop, containing practical suggestions regarding housekeeping by Americans abroad; "Recreations in Botany," a popular treatise by Caroline A. Creevey; and "Woman and the Higher Education," edited by Anna C. Brackett. The last volume is the first in the Distaff Series, which has been written and edited by women, while women have engaged in all the processes of making the book, from setting the type to designing the cover.

MACMILLAN & Co. will publish, in the fall, a translation of Prof. Friedrich von Wieser's work on "Natural Value." This is the latest development of Jevons' marginal utility theory of value, of which the Austrian school have been the principal exponents. The main purport of the book is to show that the laws of value in the modern industrial state are, fundamentally, natural laws, which would reappear in a perfect or a communistic state, and consequently that rent and interest are not phenomena induced by an artificial state of society, but essentially economic. Incidental to this main argument we have the explanation of the present distribution of wealth by "imputation of return" and of the empirical cost of production theory as based essentially on the theory which determines value by marginal utility. The book has been translated by Mrs. Malloch (Miss Christian Brown), under the supervision of Dr. Smart, the translator of Böhm Bawerk's "Capital and Interest," who will edit it, with an introduction and analysis. They will publish immediately the ninth and concluding volume of the Cambridge Shakespeare, edited by Dr. W. Aldis Wright. It contains "Pericles," the Poems, the Sonnets, etc.

FOREIGN NOTES.

THE tablet commemorative of Coleridge's residence at Nether Stowey was fixed on the "Coleridge Cottage" on June 9.

LA MARA's edition and collection of 650 letters written by Liszt to well-known people is in process of translation into English, and this translation will soon be published.

GERMAN papers announce the impending appearance of a posthumous work of Hegel, entitled "Kritik der Verfassung Deutschlands." Dr. G. Mollat, the editor of some posthumous writings of Leibnitz and K. C. F. Krause, will superintend its publication.

MR. R. L. STEVENSON's book on the recent Samoan troubles, "A Footnote to History," has been burned in Germany, and Tauchnitz, who published it, has been heavily fined. The author's narrative was severely critical of German conduct in Samoa.

A COMMITTEE has been formed at Freshwater, in the Isle of Wight, to erect a local memorial to Tennyson. Two proposals are under consideration: one, to substitute a stone tower for the existing wooden beacon on the highest part of Freshwater Down; the other, to erect a granite monolith, in the form of an Iona cross, at the corner of Farringdon Lane, along which the poet often walked. The total amount of money asked for is £500, towards which about half has already been promised. Subscriptions may be sent to Lieut.-Col. Will, R.A., Golden Hill Fort, Freshwater.

DAVID NUTT, London, announces a critical edition of the Hebrew text of the Old Testament, with notes justifying the text adopted. The editor is Professor Paul Haupt, of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, and he has enlisted the services of most of the best-known Hebrew scholars of England, America and Germany. In addition to the text a translation into English and German will be printed separately with brief commentaries. Part 17 in the order of arrangement has already been published. It contains the text of the Book of Job, prepared by Professor Siegfried, of Jena.

ANDREW LANG has written a "Comment" to accompany an edition of "The Secret Commonwealth of Elves, Fauns and Fairies," a very rare book, written by Robert Kirk, Minister of Aberfoyle, in 1691. In this comment Mr. Lang has devoted himself mainly to setting forth and discussing the close parallels that exist between certain elements in the fairy belief in the British Isles, and the phenomena observed in modern physical research. The ordinary issue of the book (which is volume VIII. of the "Bibliothèque de Carabas"), has been strictly limited to 550 copies, and will never be reprinted. There is also an edition of 60 copies on Dutch hand-made paper in large 8vo size. There has hitherto been but one reprint of the work—namely, that issued at Edinburgh by Jamieson in 1815. This edition was limited to 100 copies, and is sufficiently rare. Even the British Museum possesses no copy of the 1691 edition.

Or,

A Return to Earth.

(Ready July 1.)

A PSYCHIC STORY of Intense Interest. By ANNA C. REIFSNIDER, Author of "Unforgven," "How She Earned It," Etc.

Do human souls return to earth? The great question solved by a new and entirely original literary method. Neither reincarnation nor transmigration is advocated in this strange story, but the rapidly unfolding incidents show a revisitation to this earth to complete an unfinished work.

One Poet lives and blooms in thought for a space, and dies. A Philosopher with loftier strains of musical wisdom sometime after appears, as if the Poet were the youth, the Philosopher the finished man, whose harp strings are fetched from a higher heaven. He now sings of the future, as he came out of the past. Know ye not that the Poet and Philosopher are one and the same, finishing his earth work upon a higher plane? Bringing wisdom down from heaven, thoughts from beyond the stars, he stoops to earth again and, guiding some material band, finishes what he had left undone.

A renowned teacher of oratory has a peculiarly attractive and ambitious girl under his training. He dies before she is fitted for the stage, but his only child, a daughter, pays for her instructions under a famous London teacher. This daughter has a mystery connected with her birth, which her father did not reveal to her before his death, and which mars her young life. Salome, the actress, writes a wonderful play which she claims was dictated or written through her by her dead teacher. This play furnishes the dénouement of the story.

The Best Key to Educational Books.

THE

For 1893 [Twenty-fourth Year].

THE AMERICAN EDUCATIONAL CATALOGUE, whose value to the trade is proved by the fact that it is now in its twenty-fourth year, claims to be the best practical aid to the dealer in or buyer of school-books.

With its alphabetical arrangement by authors, its separate class-index, carefully sub-classified to an extent not followed by any other catalogue, its completeness and accuracy, it is presented as the best finding-list, the most convenient order-list, and the most satisfactory class-catalogue for school use.

The catalogue is made entirely new each year, to omit books which have dropped out of use and to include all live books, and all new books (ready or to be ready for the fall) are added in their proper alphabetical place.

The page giving the key to publishers will not be given in imprint editions unless specially ordered.

This Catalogue is specially planned to be of service for circulation by retailers among schools and private buyers. The imprint edition possesses not only temporary value, but will serve its purpose during the whole year. No imprint edition of less than 100 copies can be supplied. Orders for editions should be sent to us at once.

CASH TERMS.

Imprint edition—without publishers' advertisements:

*With sole imprint of ordering firm, and stitched, per 100 copies, $5.00 ;
per 1000, $40.00.*

There is no extra charge for printing name, business card, etc., on the imprint page; the last page is left blank at the disposal of the dealer, but any copy for that page, advertising special lines or general business, will be set up and printed thereon for $5.00, or $1.00 if plate is sent.

. Copy for imprint and shipping directions should accompany the order.

The regular Educational Number of "THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY" will be supplied at 25 cents per copy, or five for $1.00, postpaid.
